GREETINGS.

We greet you!
Once more it is our pleasant privilege to wish our readers a happy New Year. May it be the bright-

New Year. May it be the brightest year in your lives.

To our young lady friends we extend the wish that you may all be popular. We know this is your greatest deaire and we hope you may realize its fulfillment. But in order to gain the coveted popularity, let us caution you against the sacrifice of any of your maidenly charms. The secret of securing popularity among your gentlemen friends is hidden in the meaing of two words—be yourself. If you would win the respect the esteem, the love of your asseself. If you would win the respect the esteem, the love of your associates, be fair, be honest, be kind, be modest. Men soon weary of privileges too early granted. Men soon tire of girls too easily won. Upon entering the New Year, let every girl take these words of Montaigne's with her: "To what use serves the artifice of this virgin modesty, this grave coldness, this severe counternance, but to increase in us the desire to overcome, and with more gluttony subject to our appetites all this ceremony and all these obstaclest?"

gluttony subject to our appetites all this ceremony and all these obstacles?"

To the boys—Oh, what shall we say to the boys? We know you all? God bless you Boys will be boys, but there comes a time when boys must be men. There is no better time to undergo the change than now. Now, at the dawn of New Year! Once more let us turn over another new leaf—but let this leaf remain unsullied. It will require strength of will and determination of purpose to keep from biotting the page, but remember what other men have done. Let us all, girls and boys, enter the New Year hand in hand, with a firm determination to do better and to look higher than inthe past.

And now, to the whole world for fear some one might take offense, let us all step out brightly on the right foot and keep shoulder to shoulder during the year. It is just as easy to be happy as to be miserable and a great deal more satisfactory. Some of us will not be in the line when we reach the next milestone. Then let us carry our selves that the survivors may syllable only words of love when speaking of those who fell by the wayside. Let us live and let live to the fullest sense of the term.

DRIVEN FROM HOME

Walter Wolfe and Family Lose All Their Household Goods By Midnight Fire.

By Midnight Fire.

The residence on the farm owned by Geo. Griffith and occupied by Walter Wolfe and family, and known as the John P. Utz farm at Limaburs, with all its contents, was destroyed by fire last Friday night. It was about 10:30 o'clock when their young son was awakentd by smoke when he aroused his father and mother and they made their escape from the burning building in their night apparel and went to the home of her father, Mr. Dave Houston, who lives a hort distance on the opposite side of the Burlington and Florence pike. It was about 11 o'clock when a call for help over the telephone was exceived in Burlington—just as the crowd was on their way home from the picture show, and quite a number responded to the call, but by the time they reached the scene the fames had gained such headway and so intense was the heat that it was impossible to get near the building, and all that Mr. Wolfe saved was his meat and lard, and it was by hardwork it was saved.

The main building was built of logs weatherboarded, the ell being frame. The fire was caused by a defective fiu in the living room an ino doubt had been burning some time before discovered. The building was insured in the Boone County Insurance Co., but there was no insurance on the household goods, which is a heavy loss on Mr. Wolfe and family.

Son born to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hill. Son born to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hill.
Mr. and Mrs. George Washington
Hill are being congratulated upon the birth of a son in their home, 870 Park Avenue, New York City, on Sunday, December 17th, 1922. The child will be christened Percival Smith Hill the 2nd, after his grandfather, Mr. Percival S. Hill, President of the American Tobacco Co., of which the boy's father, Mr. Geo.
W. Hill, is Vice-President.

GREETINGS.

With grateful appreciation received by me from you, and for that priceless thought, intangible asset, rour good will, which I price beyond measure, I seek to merit your continued confidence and aim to serve you helpfully in the future.

YOUR MEDIUM

The local paper ought to be some thing more than a mere channel for little perconal gossip. It should carry to the homes of the people some fresh, well-written, thought inspiring articles. Its columns should be open to thoughtful people, who, in a broad-minded, liberal way should aim to contribute their knowledge or opinions upon matters of local and general interest. While all matters purely partisan or sectarian should be excluded, different sides of important issues should be admitted, thus furnishing a channel for the expression of intelligent public opinion. The minister, the lawyer, the doctor, school teacher, and every the doctor, school teacher, and every the doctor, school teacher, and every the to their community to aid in the upbuilding of every educational interest, and with such cooperation the home paper can be made a vital force.

Do not fear that the editor will reap too much advantage. He ought to be well sustained. He is entitled to a just return for his work, much better than editors usually get. He will help you in proportion as you help, and more than you help him. To you, as well as to him, a strong local paper will be a matter of pride. Such a paper will sid very materially to give standing to your community and efficiency to your institutions.

When you read a good helpful book write your opinion of it for the paper and for the help of your neighbors. If you hear a good lecture or sermon write an abstract of it. If you see or hear anything of general interest send it to your paper. If you go away from home give your home paper the benefit of your observations. In this way you will have a live paper and a live community, and will greatly enrich and develop your own mind.

What are you going to do in 1925 to make tre "Happy New Year" you wish for all you greet in January 1st, come true?

"What can I do?" is the natural answer.

Here is something you can do; you can interest yourselves in your schools. You can visit some of them. You can see for yourself whether or not your own children are being adequately cared for, properly taught, wisely made inti real American.

"But I have no children," is no good answer. You have an American ideal. You believe in Demorary. You believe in Demorary. You believe in Demorary in which to live. You believe that here, rather than it any other land, man-hather greatest opportunity to be hary.

But you won't be able to believe these things if the generation to the serveration to the terms of the greatest opportunity to be hary.

But you won't be able to believe these things if the generation to the function of the function of the press, of action, within the law. You believe this is the best country in which to live. You believe these things if the generation to live these things if the generation to the function of the press.

She is owned by the Kentucky Holstein Farm at Bardstown.

After making a creditable sevenday official record shortly after fresh ening, she was started on a yearly test. In her first month's test she is credited with 2,736.4 pounds milk and 119 pounds butter. A period of 14 days of illness befell her during the second test month which cut down her high daily average of almost 100 pounds milk to 12 pounds. She resumed her high production upon recovery, however, and completed her yearly test with a record mark for the State.

The coldest day was January 24, the warmest day June 16th. Mercury at 100 mark. No zero weather. I have watched the weather, birds of the forest, insects and many other things for years, and the movements of everything indicate we will have a mild winter. We will have sudden changes, not many cold mornings together. Frosty nights. Rain and snow, not much coasting.

At last a woman has been sworn in as a senator of the U. S. True, she served only one day, having been appointed to fill out an unexpired term.

But that one day term serves as a milestone in the political advancement of America womanhood, a mile stone that is destined to shine very brightly in the history of our countrict.

stone that is destined to shine very brightly in the history-of-our country.

We decry, however, the apparent tendency of some of our women with political ambitions to scale the heights at one bound.

It would be much wiser and decidedly safer to climb the ladder step by step, as the average man is required to do.

As we see it, about the first important political step for a woman is to make a careful study of civic conditions in the home community, and then devote all of her strength to remedying undesirable features thereof.

There are numerous local offices that could be filled by women as well as by men, and after a few terms in such offices their perspective would be enlarged and broadened and they would become better fitted for the higher political honors and responsibilities.

A women can not expect to make higher political honors and responsibilities.

A woman can not expect to make an artistic gown without first learning to sew, and neither can she expect to make a success as a public official without first becoming, thoroughly familiar with the important duties of citizenship.

Woman has made giant strides in the past few years, and she will make greater ones in the years yet to come.

But it is better to begin at the bottom and work up than to begin at the top and not know how to work.

The labor cost of producing the crops of 1922 was still further reduced. There were some substantial reductions in freight rates. Much helpful legislation has been enacted and more will be this winter. Interest rates are ower and the credit strain has been eased. This has made it possible for many farmers who were rather heavily involved orfund their obligations and get themselves in condition to win thru. There are still some dark spots. In some sections weather conditions were unfavorable and crops were short, and farmers in these sections are having a very hard time of it. Freight rates are still too high, especially for those who must pay for a long haul to market.

Taxes are high, but this is largely due to the increase in local taxes, over which farmers themselves must exercise control.

Aside from the help which has been given by legislation and by administration activities, strong economic forces are at work to restore a more normal relation between agriculture and other industries.

The peril is the agricultural dopression is more keenly realized by other groups than ever before, and on every hand a sincere desire is being evidenced to do what can 'c done safely to help the farmer better his condition.

Everything considered, we good reas in to expect still things for agriculture in the 1923.

APPOINTING PROHIBITION

AGENTS.

It takes an unusual combination of qualities to get the type of man who will do work on the prohibition enforcement service. A man must have physical courage, mental resourcefulness, and a degree of honesty so high that he will never be tempted by great bribes.

He must be enthusiastically in favor of maintaining the law, yet must be capable of exercising well considered judgment. The government does not pay a high salary for such par agons of excellence and it is not surprising that it does not always got the ideal type of man.

Appointments to a force calling for such unusual requirements abould not be handled as a political favor. The force might well be put under civil service rules, but no written examination can ever be wholly depended upon. A man's record should be studied, and the opinion of the citizens of his home neighborhood sought, before deciding that he fills this peculiar bill.

Sometimes he mentions them, and at others he doesn't. It often lepends upon whether or not a good purpose can be served.

At the dawn of the new year we have in mind a few things that we have is seen, the mention of which at least will serve no ill purpose.

We have seen litte children pass adults on the street and look wistfully for some sort of recognition-without receiving it.

Thoughtlessly on the part of the adults, of course, but nevertheless an oversight which pains the infantile heart and leaves an impression that is not easy to forget.

We have seen beautiful woman walk along while men stared intently at them—even to the point—of rudeness.

That is not a fault peculiar to ly at hem—even to the ponu-orthogones.

That is not a fault peculiar to the men of our community, as our men measure up to the standard of mankind in general.

It is simply a recognition of the beauty of womanhood, but a recognition so forcible in its nature as to be often misunderstood and to-cause embarrassment and resentment.

nition so foreible in its nature as to be often misunderstood and to cause embarrassment and resentment.

We have seen men spend dollarment of the property of the service of Cod, and that if it were not for the tolerance of the same God there would be no expensive pleasures for them to enjoy.

We have seen people sit still while opportunity walked all around then, waiting vainly to be grasped.

Possibly they expected opportunity to take them gently by the hand and lead them gently by the hand and the gently by the hand and lead them gently by the hand and the gentle by the gentle by the hand and the gentle by the gent

We Americans consider ourselves a God fearing-people, and the world soconsiders us—and perhaps we are. But how much does the average man know of God and His ways?

Test yourself by answering these questions, and then cognitate upon how little you really know:
How did God create the world? How many years did Adam live, and how did he die?

How did God make the skins of some people white, and some red, and others brown, or yellow, or black?

Why does God permit children abe born in deformity, or imbeeility, or both?

What were the first and last miraclea in the life of Christ?

What is the first word in the old testament?

What were the control in the new testament?

What is the last word in the new testament?

In this issue we carry the announcement of the Hon Campbell Cantrill, of Georgetown, Scott county, as a candidate for Governor. Mr. Cantrill was born and reaced in Scott county and has represented he Seventh Congressional District for fourteen years. The last two elections he had no opposition either in his own party or from the Republicans. He is a farmer and an Attorncy, he owns and operates several farms in Scott ecunty. Mr. Cantrill enters this race free from political promises and absolutely free from any help or promise to help in any way from any business. He has been actively engaged if the organization of the Burley "Obacco Cooperative Society, and is a firm believer in Farmers' co-operative movements. There is no question but that Mr. Cantrill it elected Governor, will give to the people of Kentucky an administration that will be appreciated by all who support him. He will conduct the business of this great Commonwealth in a business way, and to the best interest of the taxpayers.

THE FOOD VALUE OF FISH

There are two popular but erroncous notions regarding the use of fish in the diet. The first is that when offor any reason the physician has for bidden the patient to cat meat he can still cat fish with impurity. Sometimes, if he is suffering with one or more of certain diseases, especially diseases of the kidneys, and must therefore avoid extractives,—substances that give the davor to meats, but, that taken in undue amount,
may poison the system—he may cat fish; for fish is poor 1 extractives.
But when the physician's object is to restrict aas far as possible the intake, of proteins the object is defeated by substituting fish, for some varieties of fish contain almost as much protein as chicken or lamb contains.
The seeond roneous celler is that because fish is rich in phosphorus is is a "brain foon." It is true at a the brain, like all nervous substance, centains phosphorus, but is does not follow that eating an excess of phophora-centaining, foods will improve the thought processes; furthermore, the statement that fish is especially rich in phosphorus is not supported by fact.

Fish is nevertheless very valuable both as a source of energy and as a nutritive substance. The energy that comes from eating fish is—owing largely to the amount of fat that it contains. But the different varieties of fish vary greaty in that respect, salmon and eels are among the fatcust of fish, whereas cod contains less fat than lean beef does. The nutritive, tissue-building property of fish is inferior to that of meat, since in general the protein content is less, but the difference is so slight that we ignore it.

The best way to cook fish is to roil or to roast it; boiling dissolves out much of the nutritive makers are herring, salmon, cod, halibut, ee's, mackerel and trout. The fatter fase are eels, halibut, herring, mackerel and salmon, objects and clams coetain comparatively little nourishment and little fat, but are very dimedical contents in the secondary

FARMERS INSTITUTES

FARMERS INSTITUTES

To get the full beneft of the money being spent by state and federal governments for popularizing scientific agriculture, the farmers ought to make every effort to attend the farmers' institutes.

It costs just as much to hold such a meeting with 2g present as if 250 turn out. If 225 who could be present decide to stay away, the whole district may suffer as the "esult of failure to learn about more productive methods.

One state, Indiana, has 500 of whole district may suifer as the "sult of failure to learn about more productive methods.

One state, Indiana, has 500 of these institutes this winter. That commonwealth is no exception, and probably a lot of others have a many relative to population. That shows what the public authorities are doing to help improve production and now the farmers should do their share by attending these useful gatherings.

One of the best features of these institutes is the practical exchange of experience that so frequently follows the addresses given by experts. It is interesting to see how carefully the specialists listen to these individual experiences. They too are learning all the time as well as their Isteners.

The foolish man learns by his own experience, the wise man by others. Some people follow just the same methods year after year, and they are likely to remain stationary or fall behind. The man with a scientific mind wants to know about the methods that other people are using, and which method has produced the best results.

Ile may get useful jideas in a single farm institute meeting that how would not hit upon in a life time if he just blindly goes along on his own hook. It is to be hoped that these meetings, and that most of them will attend such Institutes as are within their reach.

PRESERVING THE EVESIGHT Among all the cripipling defects certainly the most prealent is poor vision. In spite of the active etfort that has been made for the last thirty years to got people to appreciate what they are losing through inability to see perfeetly, it is said on good authority, that in this country alone no less than ten million children of school age are suffering from eye defects that can be corrected.

Not long ago a number of interested persons established a society called the Eyeslght Conservation Council of America, the express purpose of which was to stir up the people, especially school teachers and employers of labor, to a realization of the awantages of god excight. In most of the public schools of the cities tests of vision are made, but in the country districts it is reported that in from seventrive to eighty per cent of the schools tre children's eyes are never tested in the New York City schools '250,000 children were found to be suffering more or less seriously, and there is reason to believe that the proportion is the same throughout all the schools of the United States. However, the same throughout all the schools of the United States. However, the same throughout all the schools of the United States, How serious defects of vision may be, is shown by the fact that fifty per cent of the public-school children in one large city who failed in their examinations also year, were found to have poor-eyesight.

But it is not children only that are handicapped by poor eyes. A statement issued by the same society shows some startling results of the examination of employees in factorical management is the same continued to the camination of employees in factorical management is the same proper content is the content of the public who is a factorical management is the content of the public who is backward in school, who does not care for picture books or who complains of headache, should have his eyes tested and, if visual defects are found, should he fitted with proper glasses. And every adulespecially everyone more than forty verars old, should have his eyes tested and, if visual defects are found, should he fitted with proper glasses.

THIRD PAYMENT ALMOST READY

will Be In Hands of Growers Ba-tween January 15 and February 1 Delay Due to Sale of Tobacco

Lexington, Ky.—The third pav ment on the 1921 tobacco crops of members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association is almost ready for the mail, Secretary H. Lee Earley and his entire staff having been engaged ever since the sale of 3,000,000 pounds December 9 to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., in preparing for the final distribution.

Members of the Association will receive between $4,500,000 and $6,-000,000 in this third payment. The original plan of Secretary Earley had been to get these checks to the growers by January 1, but the sale of the 3,000 hogsbeads left after the big purchase of 54,000,000 pounds by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company in October made it necessary either to issue two checks or to delay sending out the checks to the growers.

either to issue two checks or to delay sending out the checks to the growers.

Inasmuch as the sending of two. Checks would have added a considerable expense to the third and final distribution, Mr. Earley decided that the growers would prefer the delay of a few days to the expense.

Following the aunouncement of the agreement on prices that are to be asked for the Association crop President James C. Stone has received a considerable number of inquiries from manufacturers, including some of the larger buyers of the country. The officials of the association are of the opinion that most of the 1922 crop will be taken off the hands of the Association soon and probably in winter order.

A previously announced, all the checks to be sent in payment for the 1921 crop will be accompanied by a full and complete statement to each grower, showing how much money has been received for each grade of tobacco, the amount paid for expenses, including salaries and on receiving plants taken over, and every other item of expenses. Members thus will be enabled to check their participation receipts with their rehecks and verify the accuracy of the payments made to them.

With wagons overloaded and many customers to be served that it required one to two helpers for each wagon the first plant of the Tri-State Co-operative Milk Marketing Association at Covington was gotten under way-January 1st with great success.

lation at Covington was gotten under way January 1st with great success.

The Covington plant is the last word in scientific dairy engineering and handles milk on the gravity plan so that the quality of the milk can be preserved and a groater degree of efficiency obtained as it is processed through the various parts of the plant. A large churn is soon to be installed so that farmers will be able to ship their cream to the Covington unit as well as whole milk. A derivas concluded last week for the purchase of the milk distributing plant of Meer Brothers in Camp Washington, Cincinnati. This plant will be maintained as at present and the refrigeration facilities increased for handling 5,000 gellons deally. Tho-Meer plant will be the first unit for distribution by the Tri-State in Cincinnati and a good sized list of customers goes with the good will of the property.

Northern Kentucky farmers are showing great interest in the success of the Tri-Sate Association. This was demonstrated at the recent Coperative Rally of milk producers and tobacco growers held at the new Covington plant when more than 500 attended and good talks were mad-by Ex-Congressman James N. Kehos of Maysville, Harry Harthe of Covington and Godfrey Morgan of Louisville, Secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Association.

OVERHEATING AND FIRES

The advent of cold weather brings news of many fires started from overheated stoves and furnaces, and is piled too high. Some pipes are often carelessly allowed to come in contact with wood work. Many people build a roaring fire, and then forget about it and have their house with the drafts in stoves and furnace with. Jen. They need not be surprised if on their return they find the firemen have had to pay a sudden call.

Every open fire ought to be provided with a good tight screen as certain kinds of wood distribute sparks freely. The carelessness of people in such respects causes many disastrious free, and everybody has to pay for them through the cost of insurances policies.

MUSCLE VS. BRAINS

It has in the past years been one of the tragedles of country life that women of bright minds and warm hearts have had to wear their lives out doing museular work.

You can find country homes where the women for many years have carried all the water they used in the house for a considerable distance, when there was all the time a running spring somewhere near by that could have been piped in at moderate cost, saving infinite wearines.

If the life of the women folks is worn out by tiresome muscular effort, they have little mental effort or energy to put in solving the problems of rural industry.

If we go after a thing we at least have a fair chance of getting it. If we wait for it to come to us we soon learn what waiting means.

RURAL PROGRESS

RURAL PROGRESS

Some people doubt if the world at large is making progress. But no one who looks back at the country life of previous years can doubt that the rural sections of the country are making remarkable gains.

Rural schools, for instance, have enormously improved. Instead of giving young people an education that was unrelated to their needs and environment, they teach young people how to make good in country life.

Farming has gained tremendously in these past years. The farmers nave gotten over the old contempt for scientile agriculture and are doing their est to earn the new methods. Machinery is everywhere coming in and making farm ife less toilsome.

ods. Machinery is everywhere coming in and making farm ife less toilsome.

Country homes have enormously improved. A great number of then have put in the same improvements that city people enjoy, and most of them have done something in the way of labor saving devices. Rural prosperity in spite of the recent difficulties caused by the back wash of the war is far more general.

Automobiles have linked up country life with the towns. New co-operative methods have brought prosperity to many previously depressed producers. So one could go through every phase of rural life and show how tremendously it has gained. It is exceedingly signiveant that while the conditions of city life have remained much the same, with the old evils still just about as menacing as ever, rural life sows such uniform improvement. This suggests that it is in country life that the nation's real vitality is found. A type of community that shows such capacity for improvement ras in it the seeds of growth and evolution and is bound to keep on gaining. When a young person settles down in the country, he ties up with the portion of the country that shows the best capacity for progress. country that for progress.

ENCOURAGING FARM AND HOME OWNERSHIP.

HOME OWNERSHIP.

It is of vital interest to any rural community to have people come in and settle down permanently. Special efforts should be made to welcome those who buy farms or homes or hope to do so. They are likely to so much more for a community than those that rent, temorarily with the purpose of moving on somewhere else.

Every new resident should be welcomed. Perhaps if he only intended to stay a limited period, you can thereby encourage him in become permanent. But the entire in fluence of the community should be given in favor of permanent settlement. People should be shown that in moving from one place to another they throw away their gains.

NEW YEAR PURPOSES

NEW YEAR PURPOSES

The idea of good resolutions to be made January I used to be practiced by many people. Many thousands of men who used liquor intemperately or indulged in other vices have sworn off on that date. Thucustom has been much ridiculed. It is absurd only to this extent, that the making of good resolutions should not be confined to any one date.

The present

The people who have accomplished it hings in this world make good resolutions on January 1 and also on other days f the year. It wuld never occur to them to limit their resolves to one artificial date which is in no way different from the other 384 days of the calendar. They kept on making them, often falling down and disappointing themselves, yet rising and starting again with renewed determination.

Success and happinees in this world is already and the termination.

Success and happinees in this world is already are good time to cherish they purposes, but in forming them one such expect that they will have to be renewed and confirmed with equal onergy at very frequent intervals.

PENDLETON COUNTY.

Would you call a farmer who has not washed his neck since last 4th of July a "dirt farmer?" If so, we have a lot 'em here in Falmouth.

Fred Reinheimer, of near Browning's Corner, has a three-month-old-pig that has four ears. The two extra cara are attached to the regular ears, making three on one side. The pig is quite a freak.

In Ohio, forty cents of every dollar collected for taxes goes to pay interest and debt. Kentucky has not reached this point yet, but if the $50,000,000 good road bond issue carries, Kentucky will be in the same boat with Ohio. and a number of other progressive States.

other progressive States.

The poultry and egg dealers of this city and county caught it in the neck last week when turkeys and eggs took a six-cent drop in one day Every dealer was stocked heavily and lost big money and a lot of hard work. There are a lot of people who believe that the produce dealers are sleeping on a bed of ease and make big money, when in fact they are in a hazardour usness. Do not knock the man who buys your produce and pays you spot cash for it.

duce and pays you spot cash for it.

There is still a lot of wholesome talk going the rounds of the press about the kind of man needed for Kentucky's next Governor. The understand the state of the press are the state of the press and the state of the press and who will execute the law without fear or favor. This man may not be a statesman, he may not be a college man who wears patent leather shoes and rides in an auto-robile. He could be a man who would not ge ashamed to stuff his trouverr down the top of his boots and walk to the state house every merning and do an honest day's work when he got there. Kentucky has thousands of this sort, but none of them will ever sit in the Governor's chair.

Problem of Road Maintenance," has published a letter from Mr. W. B. Himes of Indianapolis, who according to his own statement, operates a very extensive line of trucks over the Indiana roads. We are printing the letter here, for the reason that we believe it to be valuable information, coming from the owner of so large a uset of trucks.

"I operate more trucks than any other trucking organization in America, and I have decided it is up. to me to admit the truthand to go to the taxpayers and other people who use the public ighways and offer a solution on a problem that is giving considerable trouble to all and that I consider to be the most important issue confronting the American taxpayers of the age.

"Throughout past generations the property owners and taxpayers have built the public highways and maintained them, but we have now reacted a place where the increased usage of roads by trucks and automobisel wears out the roads so fast that taxpayers in many counties have refused to make further appropriations to build roads.

"Looking into the future, I can see nothing but failure for myself and other truck operators who kid themselves into thinking that they can continue to enjop the privileges of using the public highways and payout a small percentage of the money it takes to build and maintain the roads on which we operate.

"In many parts of the country we already have issued bonds of a total amount of $30 to $49 an are of land in the district to buildroads, and yet not one-tenth of the roads are in first-class shape. Do you think it will be possible for the same people who have been building these roads to continue to build them under such circumstances." And will they do it?"

SPEEDING UP CONGRESS

SPEEDING UP CONGRESS

Various changes are suggested in the system of federal elections, concerning which there will be differences of opinion. But one of these proposals ought to appeal to almost everybody, to the effect that Congress should meet and begin work-early in January following the election in November. If this were done, it would seem logical that the presidential term should begin at the same time instead of in March.

The existing system by which a rongress does not meet until 13 months after it is elected, unless called in extra seasion, might have been well enough in days before rairoads and steamships, but it is archaic now. The time between the election of a congress and the date when it takes office is a "between hap and grass" period when little business is ugually done.

The American people want action and achievement Allowing an interval of four to 13 months to interval experience between an election and the time when the new officials go to work, is a pretty poor way to get things done.

TRUCKS AND TAXES.

The most destructive agents to highways in the present day are trucks varying in total weight from a fraction of a ton to fifteen tons or more, which are using the highwaysystems of the country. In Kentucky the effects of heavily-loaded trucks traveling over old macadau roads are very plainly seen. An sptillustration is the macadam surface treated road between Shelbyville and Louisville, where havely-loaded trucks make regular, if not daily trips. The cost of main tenance on a road of this kind is heavy, due to the fact that a macadam surfacing is not sufficiently strong to resist breaking thru under heavy loads.

During the year of 1920 the total

During the year of 1920 the total amount paid on license tax forpassenger automobiles was $1,342,173.
66, while the total sum paid on truck license tax was $419,153.12. In that same year there were 111,227 registered passenger automobiles and 15,144 trucks. The average licensetax paid per automobile was $12.20 while the average paid for trucks was $27.70 or 2.27 times the average for passenger automobiles. If we assume that an average passenger automobile loaded would weigh 3,000 pounds and the average truck loaded woul weigh 15,000 pounds, we see that the average truck carries five times more weight than does the average passenger automobile.

It is well known to the State that for years I have been an advocate of cooperative organization among the farmers. Farming is the chief business in Kentucky and I am delighted that our cooperative organizations are proving so successful. I congratulate the bankers of Kentucky on the stand they have taken in supporting the Farmers' Cooperative Movement, and as a farmer I thank them for their help in our time of need. For the past two years I have been actively at work in the field to organize the tarmers, both in the Eurley District and the Black Fatch, and I trust-I have always paid my own expenses in these campaigns. This has been a considerable sum for a man of my limited means but I was glad to make the contribution of both time and means to help perfect our-Farmers' Organizations.

Lexington, Ky. — Using purebreams on the common mountain shee rams on the common mountain sheep of Kentucky in tests at the Kentucky in tests at the Kentucky and a half pounds of wood to that average of the pounds of wood to that average of five pounds which these animals generally shear and in practically every instance improved the quality of that wool, according to a new bulletin entitled, "Breeding Experiments With Kentucky Mountain Ewes," which has just come off the press at the experiment station of the College of Agriculture. The new publication summarizes the results of experiments with Kentucky Mountain of the College of Agriculture. The new publication summarizes the results of experiments that have been carried on by the station since 1915 to show how the native mountain ewes of the state could be bred up with purebred rams.

Rams of the Rambouillet breed should be given rareful consideration by Kentucky sheep men when they are considering the blood to use in building up their flocks, then we bullettin points out. This was found to be the most satisfactory breed for improving the mountain ewes. Ewes from this cross produced market lambs of better quality and type than the lambs from the common mountain ewes. Southdown, Cheviot and Hampshire rams also were used in the experiment.

The grade Hampshire lambs resulting from crossing the mountain ewes and purebred Hampshire rams gained rapidly and were ready for market sooner than those from any of the other crosses. However, they lacked the quality if the Southdown and Cheviot grades.

The Southdown grades had excellent quality and good mutton form but gained slowly and required—a longer time to reach marketable weights than those from the Cheviot, Hampshire and Rambouillet crossee.

Rams of the four breeds used in the experiment sired lambs that were more meaty, grew more rapidly, and of finer quality and dressed out a higher percentage than lambs sired by scrub rams.

NEW BURLEY VARIETY SEED WILL BE DISTRIBUTED SOON

Lexington, Ky.—Fifty farmers in every county of the Kentucky burley tobacco district having a county farm agent will have a chance this year to get a start of the new strain of root-rotresistant tobacco developed by the Kentucky-Agricultural Experiment Station, according to the method for the free distribution of seed from this strain which has justbeen announced by Ralph Kenney crops extension specialist of the College of Agriculture.

Fifty lots of the seed, each containing one level teaspoonful, will be sent to every county agent in the burley district soon after the first of the year, each of these agents in turn distributing the seed to the first 50 farmers in their county that apply for it. Distribution of the seed is being done through county agents since experience has shown that the majority of requests for it in the last year or so have come from this source. A small supply of seed for 1923 plantings will be left at the station to fill any requests that mayb e receiver from growers in rounties not having county farm agents.

Counties in which seeh will be distributed by county agents include Mercer, Boone, Kenton, Cadpbell, Carroll, Grant, Trimble, Mason, Jefterson, Oldhau, Breckinsidge, Meade, Nelson, Larue, Hart, Barren, Taylor, Grayson, Marlon, Washington, Boyle and Fayette.

Development of the root-rot resistant strain of burley by the station workers has now reached the stage where the new type of leaf bids fair to be a means of checking the heavy annual losses which from the rew strain to farmers of the state was started last pear with the sending out of 500 lots of it. Practically all farmers who grow the resistant burley last year have saved from 10 to 40 setd heads from their copy and in addition have passed some of the seed from the new strain slong to their neighbors with the result that close to 1,000 burley growers are expected to plant aif or more of their 1923 crop with seed from the first of the seed from the new strain slong to the control resistant burley rower as are expected to pla

According to Treasury Department officials, there are still outstanding approximately $700,000,000 worth of tre first series of War Savings Stamps, issued during the year 191°, and which are due for payment the first of the coming year. These stamps, it is estimated, are held by some twenty million people.

This means, of course, trat a great many people who have served on a small scale, from comparatively slen der incomes, have managed to come through the period of depression with treir War Savings Stamps still in their possession, and will have the money, plus the interest it has earned, for possible reinvestment. With $90,000,000 of these stamps to ecased in the Fourth Federal Reserve District, it need hardly be said that the venders of all kinds of dishonest or uncertain securities are on the watch, determined to "make good killing" out of this immensement if possible.

It would be a sad ending for people of small or only moderate means thus to be deceived into trrowing away what they have saved and held, through rigid self-denial in times of stringency. Each will decide for rimself, n the end; but for investors to whom absolute safety is a paramount consideration, what better reinvestment of their War Savings Stamps, fund can be named than the Treatury Savings Certificates, issued by the government on tre same five-year plan. They are available in denominations of $25, $100 and $1000, maturity value, purchasable at the start for $20.50' $52 and $820. As the Recorder felt justified in encouraging the purchase of the Was Savings Stamps, in 1918, so it feels justified now in encouraging a reinvestment of trees same savings in the Treasury Savings Certificates. There is none whom you can more safely make your debtor than Uncle Sam.

WHO 15 FILIBUSTERING?

WHO IS FILIBUSTERING?
President aHrding and his Republican Congress are filibustering to defeat the deliberate wish and will of the American people, expressed at the polls on November?. The President's ship bonus bill was one of Republican proposals discussed during the campaign and republican the campaign and republican Congress seems determined that this bill shall be passed and the Amprican people srall be tayed some $75, con 00,000 a year additional for further enrichment of special interests.

It is announced, that radical pro-on people srail be tayed some $75, colongold a year additional for further enrichment of special interests.

It is announced that radical progressive Republicans in the Senate to conduct a fillbuster against the ship bonus bill. Republican "regulars" and Republican newspapers are anticipating this procedure with langry denunciation. It is uttriy indefensible, these champions of trabill say, in effect for its opponents to prevent a discussion and vote on the merits of this measure.

Following the people's summary visction of Republican candidates are policies on November 7, Presisident Harding called a special season of Congress to force to enactment this shipping bill, which, next to the Fordney-McCumber profiteers tariff act, was tre object of more public condemnation than any other favored and furthered by the administration. "Lame ducks" to the number of eighty-two supported the President's ship bonus bill in the House of Represenatives. But for the vote of those Republicans who are to retire to private life on March 4 next, this bill would have been defeated by a majority of 20.

The next Congress, it is conceded, will overwhelm the bill unless feated by a majority of 29.

The next Congress, it is conceded, will overwhelm the bill unless it is killed in the meantimt. Practically all the Democrats and Republicans who were elected to succeed the "lame ducks" of the present House of Representatives are hostile to the measure. A majority of the voters are still opposed to it.

Who is the real fillbuster? The Senators who are accused of frustrating the President, or the President and Senators who are bent upon thwarting the will of the people?

One of the most common social events in many country localities is the surprise party. If a family have had difficulties, the neighbors are apt to get together some night with gifts of substntial character that will help them by their hard rub. Or if some one has done exceptionally good work in the community, if such a one has sung in the choir or organized Sunday school classes, or carried the burden in a local society, the neighbors are apt to get together and offer some valuable gift in token of appreciation.

Such occasions reveal the fine neighborly spirit that exists in modern country towns. They bind people closer together and cultivate friendship and co-operation.

TIVE FLUE.

The residence on the farm of C. E. Tanner, near Hopeful church, occupied by Chas. R. Snyder and wife with all its contents, was destroyed by fire, about 6 o'clock last Thursday evening. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective flue. Mrs. Snyder was away visiting her parents at Erlanger, where she had been for some time. Mr. Snyder had been from home since early that morning and when he returned that evening and open ed the door to his house the flames met him and so intense was the heat and smoke that he could not enter the building. He gave the alarm but by the time assistance arrived the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to save any of the household effects. This is quite a loss to Mr. Snyder as he carried no insurance. Mr. Snyder had advertised all his personal property for sale at public auction for the day following the fire, (Friday).

THE BOYS' RADIO WORK

THE BOYS' RADIO WORK

THE BOYS' RADIO WORK

The last year has seen a great number of boys going in for experiments with radio apparatus, and hundreds of thousands of them have become amateur wireless fans. Secretary of the Navy Denby has issued a statement commending these young experimenters, and he believes that such activities incite a boys' ambition-and would make him more useful in case of national emergency.

Anything that makes a boy use his brain is helpful. Formerly millions of boys used to spend their spare hours loading on curbstones and at local hang-outs. They stood with open mouths, watching older or more active people do things.

Today the typical boy finds such active life uninteresting. He wants to do something with his own hands. The boy who has done something with wireless work has gained a new idea of his own, power. He will not be content to take hold of his life work in a routine way and do it just the same as the man before him did. He will want to think out better ways of doing things, and that spirit in the nation at large will improvaliving conditions for everybody.

OLD ACCOUNTS

One of the best ways in which the people can celebrate the New Year season is to pay upold bills. There are a lot of folks who have a mouttain of unpaid accounts hanging over the half the time. Now is the occasion when a tremendous ecortabould be made to throw off this burden.

Debt is depressing and discouraging. It takes the pep out of a manand makea him feel it is of no use to atruggle. He can branch out in no projects for improvement of his conditions while he carries this load. To debt burdened family should go the limit in self denial for the sake of getting rid of this handicap.

THE AVERAGE STUDENT
There is a certain conflict in achools and colleges between the interests of exceptionally qualified to the complain that their children are held, back by the more ordinary students. In some of the colleges there is a tondency to imitate the English universities, in the special chances they give to the exceptional man. Young people who have unusual gifts get impatient at what seems to them the dwalding pace of the whole class. Some times in the lack of surfailed the complaint to work independently, and make as rapid progress as their exceptional talents allow.

In this democratic country, however, it is of first importance to assitt the most careful attention. The genius can look out for himself, he should take extra work or go in for other useful activities.

Our people may have splendid and gifted leaders, but if the ordinary run of people fall to acquire higher ideals and broader intelligence, out of their school courses, they will not follow after the best leaders, but will be influenced by those of superion telligence and chimerical not the country's average minds can become patriotic, able to distinguish false leaders from the true, and if they can acquire higher leading the country's average minds can become patriotic, able to distinguish false leaders from the true, and if they can acquire higher care of itself.

BOONE CORN GROWERS USE BETTER METHODS

Burlington, Ky.—Practical factor

Burlington, Ky.—Practical factors that boost corn crop yields are getting an increased amount of attention from Boone county farmers, a cording to County Agent W. D. Sutton. Twenty-four of them last fall selected a total of 384 bushels of seed corn with which to plant this year's crop while more than 50 of them planted selected seed corn in the spring of 1922.

An increasing number of farmers in the county also are coming to realize that the testing of seed corn before it is planted is an important point in keeping up yields, Mr. Sutton says. During 1922, 12 of them tested a total of 48 bushels of seed. Corn growing practices were improved on a total of 60 farms during the year, according to the report.

KEEPING DIARIES IN

KEEPING DIARIES IN GRANDFATHER'S DAYS.

A great many of the old timers used to celebrate January 1 by making the first entries in their new blank journals, often given for Christmas presents. Some of them of an introspective tendency felt better after getting their explosive thoughts out of their systems in this way.

thoughts out of their systems in this way.

The diaries kept by our gran!.

I parents illustrated their painstaking attention to the daily routine of life. They might note down their visit to the town to buy groceries as if it was an event worthy of being handed own. If preserved, these old records present an interesting picture of the way people lived in the diffiluit conditions of these times. Modern young people would laugh at the trivialities in these old journals that their grand parents kept. But not many of the present day crowd have the capacity for sticking to a self appointed task the way these old diary keepers did.

When the city folks want style, they may invite their young folks to the parties, but when they want in-itiative and enterprise they go out in the country for boys who have learned to work.

The changes created by automobiles in this country are something amazing. They have in 20 years created a new system of transportation. They have revolutionized country life, they have made available for residence and farming purposes vast tracts of land that otherwise would have been almost untenanted.

With the coming of the automobile, the problem of building and maintaining roads has been wholly changed. A community that might have got along comforably in the horse age with a moderately bad road, finds itself side-tracked in these times if it fails to keep up its highways.

road, finds itself side-tracked in these times if it fails to keep up its highways.

Automobiles and motor trucks are increasing all the time and wearing out the roads a little faster each year than ever before. An amount of money sufficient five years ago to keep the highways in fair shape is wholly inadequate now.

Taxes are heavy as they can be, and the pressure of their burdens holds up business and helps dragmany to bankruptcy. The country may be spending today about all ican for roads.

Here then the American people seem to have al almost insoluble problem in their hands. They must have better roads, yet can not pay any nore taxes. What can he done?

The Recorder will shortly print a series of brief editorials reviewing this situation in a common sense way and suggesting some plain and practical thoughts as to what could become to make the roads of Boole county serve these pressing needs more efficaciously. All who are concerned to see our county and state hold its own on the road question should read these brief reviews of an urgent situation.

THE FUTURE COUNTRY TOWN.

Country life has seen great progress during the past 20 years. And more changes are to come. The country town of 1933 will be a quite different thing from what it is in 1928. It is interesting to look ahead and try to forecast the lines along whier our towns and villages will develop.

Improved rural education and movements to interest young people in country life, are making great changes. The young crowd are coming along with a different point of view from what their fathers and mothers had at their age. They cheris more ambitions hopes than their fanhers and mothers had. Young folks who are working with the girden clubs, the pig clubs, the catches and mothers had. Young clubs, the canning and preserving competitions, etc., are enjoying an experience that must greatly affect their plans and ideals and thus mollify the environment in which they live.

When these young folks take thereins, they are going to do thing quite different from what their parents did.

There is no use in waiting until the present generation is dead before realizing the gains of modern progress. We might just as way have trem right now.

HOLIDAY WRECKAGE

HOLIDAY WRECKAGE.

Some one tells of a family in one of our cities, which just after Xmas took a chair to a furniture dealer's to be repaired. The furniture man laughed and remarked "Christmas wreckage." He added that his firm always got a good many repair jol-a soon after the holidays due to the fact that at these informal celebrations people would get to playing kid tricks and scuffling in their homes, and while doing so would break down furniture that happened to be in a weak condition.

This explanation seems plausible, as many families will say from their own experience. It suggests the youthful spirit which the average. American man and woman retains far into elderly life. When the holiday fun gets going, many gray haired people feel the impulse of childhood fun. There is much boisterous meriment that is not always healthful for furniture heirlooms. However, it helps keep people young.

SCHOOL AND REAL LIFE

SCHOOL AND REAL LIFE
In former years children used to drop out of rural schools at an early age. Their lessons seemed to have little to do with real life. They were studying abstract arithmetic, or they learned about the rivers of China. But there was little to show them how to run a farm, a store, or a bank in Boone county. They got it into their heads that school work was not practical. They refused to take interest in it, and their parents would take them out and put them to work.

In so far as the country schools are giving instruction in subjects that show their pupils how to make a success of rural life, they keep the children interested in school work so that they will develop ability and intelligence and fit themselves better for their life work.

WOUND UP ANOTHER YEAR OF SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS JAN-UARY 1.

The officers of the Farmers' Mintal Fire Insurance Co., of Boone county, at their meeting, Monday, January 1st, wound up another year of successful business, with very few losses during the year 1922. This company was organized nearly a half century ago and has in force more than $2,000,000. Every citizen of Boone county who carries insurance in this company is well aware of what he has saved in premiums. Every loss that this company has sustained has been paid promptly, and a policy in this sompany is as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar. The men who have piloted this home insuras the Rock of Gibraltar. The men who have piloted this home insur-ance company to the success it has attained from year to year, deserve great credit for the efficient manner in which the business of the com-pany has been handled.

Now if folks will make out their income tax returns with the same enthusiasm they show in hollering for the flag, perhaps the government

County Clerk Rogers, hp to Tuesday night, had issued about 750 attomobile licenses in Boone county. This is only about two-hirds of the macrines in the lounty. The amount of money paid out for these license amounts to between $10,000 and $12,000 the taxpayers have paid for the privilege of overating their motor vehicles. Every person who operates a motor vehicle after the first of the year without a new license is disobeying the law and can we arrested and fined.

In the past 15 years the U. S. Department of Agriculture has conduct ed breeding experiments in which 34,000 guinea pigs were used. As a result of this work it has been found that inbreeding weakens the animals in many respects and that by crossing the inbreed families there is a rapid improvement, some of the improvements being at the maximum in the first generation. The crossbred animals resulting were even better than the random-bred families that were used as checks on the inbred families.

The people of the United States are using more milk and cream than they did 10 years ago. Statistics compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture show that serent entered and the states Department of Agriculture show that serent entered and the states Department of Agriculture show that serent entered and the states of a pint is the average daily consumption for every man, woman and child in the country, whereas a decade ago the consumption was six-tenths of a pint daily. This is an increase of nearly 17 percent. These figures are based only upon milk and cream consumed such and do not include any that enters into manufactured products.

The resits are based upon figures obtained from health department of 356 cities in all parts of the country-having a combined population of more than 32,000,000.

The lowest consumption 0.47 of a pint, is in the East South Central States and highest 0.89 of a pint, in New England. The lowest consumption in general is found in the Southern States, but it must be kept in mind that many family cows avekept in this section and milk from these animals was not taken into consideration.

DID YOU KNOW THIS?

DID YOU KNOW THIS?

Slage odors are absorbed largely through the body of the cow rathet than from the air, according to tests made by te United States Department of Agriculture. However, these odors may be practically or entirely removed by the aeration of the mi'k while it is still warm. Rather heavy feeds of silage may be given to cows one hour after milking without any undesirable flavors or odors passing into the milk. When green alfal'a was fed relatively large quantities one hour before milking marked flavors and odors were noticed in the milk, but when as much as 30 pounds per cow was fed after milking there was no effect on the milk from the next milking.

More than 500 farmers and breeders raising all kinds of domestic animals answered questions sent out by the United States Department of it has been determined that these scrubs. Also, pure breds were found in nearly all cases to be more

ENEMIES OF WHITE GRUBS

Crows and robins have been found very useful; says-the-Biological Survey of the United States Depart ment of Agriculture, in the extermination of white grubs, which are the larvae of May beetles, or June bugs. These grubs cause extensive, dannage to lawns and grain crops if the birds do not find them. On cranberry, bogs they are also very destructive, as they remain in the soil for several years and are difficult to control. A case is cited where every plant on portions of a cranberry log in Massachusetts was killed. All the roots were destroyed. New vines were planted, and almost immediately numbers of robins were seen at work their beaks and pulled out the grubs. Some of the roots of the vines were cut off by the grubs, and these vines the robins pulled up and discarded, and dug out the grubs. The robins worked so diligently that practically no grubs escaped and nearly all the vines survived.

Prosperity comes to those who earnestly and diligently and intelligently seek it—unless it is left by a rich dad who conveniently fades away. It is greater prosperity that we want in this town, and in this community, and in the state and nation.

Will it be arb the coming year?
Will it be arb the coming year?
Will it be a policy of fairness and usine toward each other, a case of live and let live, or will they continue their present policy of "hogging" everything upon which they can lay their hands?
Let us klance over the field.
I America we naturally want the haild up our merchant marine and extend our foreign trade. Bue we do not covet any foreign territory, we want to "reparations," we seek not ing that can not come to us in a legitimate manner and with peace and good will toward all men. Ther is the traditional policy of this country as handed down to us fro 1 the days of our forefathers.

And while we are engaged in building prosperity, let's also endeavor to promote harmony.

If the doors of our hearts are open harmony will always seek admittance. It doesn't like to wan der around without a home— and its home is in the head and the heart.

Harmony will do wonderful things for us in the run of a year.

Washington and Trimble county farmerss are the most recent ones in the state to get pointers on the easier's and best way to do home butchering on the farm, according to Grady Sellards, swine extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, who has just returned after finishing another lap in the campaign being put on over the state by the college to help farmers with their home butchering. Demonstrations on how to cut up meat were given in the Mount Tabor and Milton combunitles of Trimble county while the Washington county demonstrations were staged on the farms of Dr. J. H. Despite the fact that the farm butchering season is well advanced, farmers are showing keen interest in the demonstrations being put on in connection with the campaign and all seem anxious to learn better methods of killing and curing their own meats, according to Mr. Sellards. FARM MEET MAKES APPEAL TO PARENTS OF STUDENTS

TO PARENTS OF STUDENTS

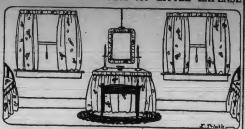

Lexington, Ky.—A special effort is being made this year to get mothers and fathers of students enrolled in the College of Agriculture to attend the eleventh snual Farm and Home Convention to be held at the college Jan. 30 to Feb. 2, according to Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the institution. In a special invitation to them, he is calling attention to the fact that the annual meeting of Kentucky farmers and their wives will afford them an opportunity to see the work of the college and the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and to meet the men and women who teach their sons and daughters. Programs of the farm and home convention are being included with the invitation to meet the weather that the meeting will have something of value in it for every Kentucky farmer and he wife.

PAY TAXES.

For years many people have allowed tax paying time to catch them the things of the pay with and have been forced to borrow.

Many people allow winter to come without making any preparation for feeding stock or family thruthe bleake days. Whether this is good business or not we will leave our readers to decide. We know of institutions that open an account to which they put money to pay taxes etc. They open the account at the beginning of the year and when the time comes to pay they have the money. We all know as well in January as we do in November that taxes must be paid.

A small bunch of hogs or an acro of tobacco grown for that purpose would, if set apart for that occasion, only, take care of the matter and the habit of looking ahead is a good one to form.

OLDHAM COUNTY BOOSTED BETTER FARMING IN 1922

Lexington, Ky.—Marked improvement in almost a dozen lines of farm and farm home activity has been brought about in Oldham county during the year just past by the means of extension work in agrichlure and home economics, according to the annual report of County Agt. Gordon B. Nance, which has just been made to the extension division of the College of Agriculture.

The enrollment of 122 farmers during the year in the nation-wide during the year in the nation-wide of the College of Agriculture.

The enrollment of 122 fermers during the year in the nation-wide "Better Sires-Better Stock" campaign marked the work that is being carried on in the county for the improvement of livestock. Purebred livestock has strengthened its hold in the county, in view of the fact that all those who enroll in the better stock campaign agree to use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work.

Potato yields in the county during 1922 were 38 per cent greater than they were the previous year, due largely to the fact that more farmers used certified seed. The pledging of 56 per cent of the county's orchard grass seed crop to the cooperative association set up for marketing of this crop marked a big step toward marketing methods in the county.

TO BE THERE AT MEET.

Lexington, Ky.—Better dairying methods that will pay Kentucky farmers higher profits this year again are listed among the subjects that will get special attention on the program for the eleventh annual Farm and Home Convention to his higher profits and 31 and Feb. 1 and 2. J. H. McLain, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be the principal speaker on dairy subjects at the meeting. Practically all of the dairy talks and lectures of the meeting are scheduled on the program for Thursday, Feb. 1.

The morning program will be given over to a general discussion of some of the most importanat dairy problems facing Kentucky farmers at the present time. The right way to build dairy barns will be discussed in detail by J. B. Kelly, head of the farm engineering section of the College of Agriculture, after which E. M. Prewitt, dairy extension specialist of the college, will tell how cooperative purched dairy aire associations are helping farmers of the state build up their herds to the point where they produce more milk and butterfat.

MARKET FOR YOUNG GUINEAS

Season is During Latter Part immer and Fail—Seil Best With Feathers On,

Propered by the United States Department of Africanium, and the factorium of Africanium, and the factorium of Africanium, and the factorium of Africanium, and throughout the fall. At this time the demand in the city markets is for young birds weighing from one to two pounds each. At about two and one-half months old guineas weigh from one to one and one-half pounds, and at this size they begin reaching the markets in August. As the season advances the demand is for heavier birds.

advances the demand is for heavier birds.

The usual practice in marketing game birds is to place them on the market unpluched, and in most markets guineas are sold this way. They appear more attractive with feathers on, and sell more readily. Dressed, the small size and dark color of the skin are likely to prejudice the prospective customer who may be unfamiliar with the bird's excellent eating qualities. The Department of Agriculture has learned that if the feathers are to be left on the birds all that is necessary in preparing for market is to bleed them by severing the principal blood vessels of the neck, allowing them to hang head downward until bleeding is complete.

TO AVOID POULTRY DISEASES

Health of Fowls Depends Almost Entirely Upon Clean Quarters and Right Feed.

Many people who raise poultry spend money for recredies for aliments in their flock which they could prevent if they would realize that the health of poultry depends almost entirely upon clean quarters and proper feeding.

Few poultry diseases are caused by anything but lack of pre-caution. A leaky roof causes damp litter, Lack of litter under roosts causes a damp and foul house under a good roof. Cracks in the floor or sides mean fratts. Lack of clean stratch litter means lack of exercise and reduced vigor.

Lack of balanced rations means a tendency towards digestive troubles. No grit helps to keep feed from being properly digested. Too tight quarters cause them to become damp, foul-smelling and unhealthful. Lack of ventilation causes poultry to lose in vitality. Colds are caused by dasty houses and exposure to moisture and cold.

Put your eggs in cold storage via the waterglass route.

Keep the baby chlets hungry at all times. Never feed too much.

Pinches of sodium fluorid in the feathers will rid a hen of lice.

Scatter nir-staked lime freely about the house and yards; it will go a long way towards preventing disease.

Alfairs meal and wheat bran are, perhaps, the most common "bases" for chick growing mashes and they are hard to excel,

Alfalfa meal abould be in all mash rations and it will pay to encourage the chicks or fowls to set as much of it as possible. It makes for greater capacity.

FEED POINTS FOR DAIRYMAN

Obtain Maximum Milk Production Must Be Attended to at Proper Moment.

If you would get a maximum milk production from your cows, feed the right feed at the right time and in the right maximum advises M. H. Keeney, dairy specialist of the New Jorsey State College of Agricultura.

Mr. Keeney gives the following practical suggestions for dairymen in feeding for milk production:

1. Feed all the roughage a cow will ckean up. Part of it should be a legume such as clover or alfalfa.

2. Feed some succulent feed such as slinge or roots.

3. Feed a bahanced ration.

4. Feed grain in accordance to milk production: For a Holstein or Ayrshire, approximately one pound of grain for each 4 pounds of milk; for a Guernsey or Jersey, about one pound grain for each 3 pounds of milk. A variety of grains in the mixture is desirable.

5. During short pastures supplement with slage or some green feed, together with some grain.

6. Feed and milk regularly.

7. Supply an abundance of pure fresh water at all times.

8. Give access to sait daily.

9. Purchase grain feeds on the basis of their protein and energy content and not alone on just the cost per cwe.

GROWING RATIONS FOR CALF

In Feeding Young Dairy Animals M terial Supplied Must Be Flesh-Building—Salt Is Needed.

"There are two things to remember in feeding dairy calves," says E. A. Hanson, dairy specialist with the agri-cultural extension division of the Uni-versity of Minnesotta. "The feed must make them grow and must supply feeh-building material so-they will be in good condition.

make them grow and must supply flesh-bullfulm materials or they will be in good condition. Growing feeds, he says, consist of skim milk, clover hay, onts, bran and oil meal. The fattening feeds are corn, barley and oil meal. For calves under six months oid in good condition and having a soft, mellow hide a mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds bran and 10 pounds oil meal, fed three to five pounds daily, is recommended by Mr. Hanson. A mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground barley, 40 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground barley, 40 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground stay, is advised for calves in poor condition. "Sait improves the calf's appetite, so keep a box with clean sait in sheltered place where the calf may eat of it freely," Mr. Hanson advises. "Provide all the good clover or affaits hay the calf will eat up clean. Never allow the calves or yearlings to run with the herd."

About 7,800 of the old emblems have been issued to breeders and others working with the department in improving the utility value of farm animals, reducing the number of runks, and in other ways bonefiting the live stock of the country.

McLeod told Police Holmes that he had tried to take an express package so he would be sent to jail.

"I was just discouraged with my failure to find work," the war veteran said. "I was hungry, and jail looked like my only place," Judge Holmes called Hird Stryker, comamnder of Douglas County Post, who lost n: time in reviving McLeod's morale with a good meal and the job.

Indianapolis, Ind.Since the adoption of a form of initiation, the American Legion has accepted the principle that a man, once iniated, becomes a member of the organization for life. The legion enters the new year this new idea in mind. "He may elapse in his dues and become of bad standing," Lemuel Bolles, the national adjutant said. "He, however, remains a member of the American Legion, under the present policy, for the remainedr of his life unless he voluntarily resigns or is expelled for non-payment of dues.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Eleven thousand posts of the American Legion will cooperate with officers of the Quartermasters Corps of the United States Army in placing headstones at the graves of all veterans of the World War and previous American wars, Lemuel Bolles, Legion national adjutant, has announced.

The Quartermaster Corps has asked the Legion to make arrangements for receiving the headstones with the families of the war heroes and to insure that the stone is placed in the cemeteries in which war heroes are buried. Appropriate ceremonies with he held by many posts when the headstones arrive. An effort will be held by many posts when the headstones arrive. Columbus, Ohio.—The Ohio American Legion will receive $115,000 instead of $$54,000, under a decision rendered by the Ohio court of appeals. The sum represents the amount plus accumulated interest, that was collected during the World War to aupply comforts for the men of the B3rd division. The division was broken uv overseas and the money was never used.

The court ruled trat the American Legion is the one representative organization of veterans of the World War and that comforts belonging to the men who served should coma properly to them in their present organization. "As the G. A. R. is the Civil War so the Aemrican Legion is and will be the outstanding military organization representing the ex-soldiers of the World War," the opinion of the court stated.

The court of appeals decision overrules a previous decision that the money should be used for thebenefit of the Ohio disabled men. The court of appeals held that the care of the disabled is the function of the Federal government and that there is every reason to believe that the fatter will discharge that duty fully and satisfactorily.

Gilbert Bettman, state commander of the Legion, acted as attorney for the ex-service men in the rourt action.

The American Legion has acquired exclusive distribution and exhibition rights of the screen classic "The Man Without a Country," according to an announcement from the office of Leumel Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion. The rights carry with them—the ownership of the negative and ten copies of the film, all of which are transferred to the Legion by S. H. Boynton, of Chicago. The film is valced at $60,000.

Immediately after completing regotiations for the acquisition of the film Mr. Bolles announced that the picture would be placed in distribution through the American Legion Film Service in connection with the Légiona Americanism campaign.

FILM ANALYZES MOVEMENTS
You have seen a horse walk, trot, pace, gallop, run, and jump, but du you know just how from a new U.
S. Department of Agriculture motion picture, "The Horse in Motion."
This one-reel film, sponsored by the Bureau of Animal Industry, is an analysis by means of a high-speed camera of all the important gaits of horses. The gaits are first shown at normal speed, followed by the retarded action, one-ighth of normal. The normal pictures were made sitten to the second, but the slow pictures were made 128 to the second. Among the typs of horsees shown are draft animals, pacers, trotters, hunters, runners and cavalry horses.

The technique of the jumps is demonstrated by Dandy Dude, owned by Gen. John J. Pershing, who was present at the first showing of the film in Chicago, before the Horse Association of America. The movements of cavalry horses are show by three troops of United States Cavalry in a stirring charge on the parade ground at Fort Myer, Va.

"The Horse in Motion" will be circulated through the Department of Agriculture's film distribution system. Copies may be bought by authorized purchasers at the cost of printing.

Just ten minutes—link's all I'll need. The safe's over in one corner of the bedroom, and the combination's one I could work in my sleep—one of those old-fashloned affairs where you can bear the tumblers drop clear across the room.

"It sounds all right," admitted the girl to whom the burglar was speakling, "but I've got a hunch that there's a slip-up somewhere. You'll be careful to wear those rubber gloves?"
"Sure I will," answered the other. "Foro, or whatever he calls bimself, ain't goin' to find any of my finger marks all over the place. No, nor any footprints either. I tell you, Jen, this is a clinch. This time next week we'll be out in the sticks—somewhere where they don't know us—landin' a decent job with no fear of bulls. Hurry up with those socks, will you? Don't bother to finish them. It ain't the first time that I've worn 'em full o' holes."

Shortly after ten o'clock anyone who might have been watching the fence which marked the end of the Phipps' property, would have seen a shadow balance listelf for a moment, silhouetted against the dark gray sky, and then drop, notselessly, inside the grounds.

Moving cautiously, so as to avoid the burglar-alarm wires which he had previously charted. Lefty Joe crept softly toward the bouse.

If was the work of a moment to Jimmy open one of the windows on the first floor, and in almost less time than it takes to tell it, Joe was in the bedroom, spinning the combination of the wail safe, his sensitive ears listening for the click of the tumbers as they dropped into position. Less than half an hour later he was back in his room, pouring his loot into Jennie's lap, "We'll have to lay low for a couple of days or so," he informed the girl." If the police find out that I've skipped, they'll suspect me right away, and try to frame up something. They'll have a hard time proving it though. I had my gloves on and my shoes off, and not a soul saw me. So we're safe, girl, and I'm through—at least until I find another crib as easy as this one."

But even as Joe was speaking, Inspector Joseph A. Faurot of the New York detective force, was on his way to the Phipps home. One of the servants, returning early, had noted the opened window and had notified Mr. Phipps. The latter, after a husty examination of the rifled safe, had phoned for the police, and the mere statement that some $10,000 worth of Jewels were missing, had been enough to hring Faurot, the finger-print expert, to the scene of the crime.

"Whoever broke in here knew what he was doing," stated the inspector, after he had examined the house and the grounds. "It wasn't much of a trick to open the safe, and our friend took good care to use rubber gloves. No finger prints anywhere about the house. Anything outside?

a record, I mean."

One by one, as they were brought into headquarters, the suspected men were put through a strange ordeal.

After removing their shoes and socks, prints of their toes were taken, precisely as their finger prints had previously been recorded. It took the inspector less than five seconds to order the release of each man, until he examined the prints of the sixteenth prisoner.

MANY KENTUCKY BEEKEEPERS MAKE A LIVING FROM HONEY

Lexington, Ky.—Although bekeeping usually is taken on as a sideline, there are beekeepers in many parts of Kentucky who make a good living by giving all their time to the production of honey, according to a revised circular entitled, "Elements of Beekeeping," which has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture and which is being sent out free to interested persona. Any locality where farming, gardening or fruit growing is followed is adapted to the keeping of bees. The mountain sections of the state are good places for beekeeping because of the wild plants and the native forest trees, the circular points out.
It is best to strt with a few colonies and make the bees pay for themselves and after that buy more equipment and gradually make the apiary bigger. A few coonies managed right can be made a paying investment, considering the amount of money and time expended on them.
Fall feeding and wintering of bees are given special attention in the new circular which points out that lack of enough food, no winter protection and too few young bees to go thru the winter are the three big causes for losses in beekeeping during that season. In sections where winters

Bee diseases, sources of honey and the uses and care of honey also are given attention in the new publication. It also contains a number of pictures and drawings designed to be of practical help to the beekeeper. The inside of the nose is intensely vascular, that is to asy, it has many blood vessels, and for that reason in the case of a sudden blow a large and some times a terrifying amount of blood may flow. Happily, however, nosebleed is rarely dangerous and often it is helpful. Sesides nosebleed that follows in ritation or injury to the nose, there is naebleed that innumerable bodily. Often—it accompanies acute disorders such as typhoid fever, scarlet fever, pneumonia and many other diseases. Moreover, it may indicate the presence of adenoids or in the case of young children a foreign body in the nasal passages; or it may be owing to anaemia or scurvy.

Young people approaching adolescence and middle-aged persons approaching old age often have severe attacks of nosebleed that, as they tend to relieve the general circulation, are salutary unless they are excessive. In elderly people nosebleed sometimes means that the arteries have grown brittle and that he kidneys are diseased. Persons in either of those conditions suffer from too high blood pressure; nosebleed therefore, by relieving the general system, may save the patient from applexy.

GUARD AGAINST STONE BRUISES

This Form of Injury to Tires Is One of Most Common and Expensive to Owner.

BREAK IN FABRIC IS INSIDE

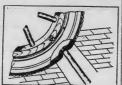

xperienced Driver Who Gets Hard sump Against Curb or Any Other Object Usually Looke for In-jury on the Outside.

Jury on the Outside.

A "stone bruise" is the term used to describe an injury to a tire caused by striking some object with sufficient force to cause the tire fabric to be broken. It need not be a stone that causes the damage.

The break in the fabric may be in only one ply or it may be in all of them; but in any case it is always the inside ply that breaks first.

An inexperienced driver whose tire gets a heavy blow from a stone or a curb usually looks over the outside of the tire to see if any damage has been done. But the old driver knows that if harm has been done the place to look for it is in the inside and that any break in the fabric will be registered on the inside ply fish.

Inside Ply Shorter.

Normall': the inside ply is shorter than the rest and each ply is shorter than any of the others which are located outside of it. This is because it is on the inside of the curvature of the tire. Now if the trie is -indiently compressed at some point to a considerable extent, such as shown in the illustration, the relative position of the plies is reversed; that is, the ousder ply becomes, at this particular point, the inside ply as regards the curvature and the inside ply as regards the wind the please of the injury on the outside until a considerable time afterward. This is because the other plies will unbroken will continue to hold against the air pressure even though they will be under excessive strain. But continued fiering will eventually break them also, and the result may be a blowout, which may occur at any time, even on a perfectly smooth perwenent.

Other Effects.

Another effect of a break in one or two inner plies may be that from continued bending the broken edges of the fabric rub a hole in the inner tube at that polin. Sometimes the break is appronounced, especially in a fabric tire, that the air pressure broves the inner tube into the break, and as this is continued bending the broken edges of the fabric rub a force the rubber side coverling, and sometimes the tread, loose from the fabric, when this happens the user generally terms it a blowout, and as a matter of fact it is; but, continued and injury sustained some time prior to the final breaking down of the tire.

YOU AUTO KNOW

That gasoline, oil and greass are the natural enemies of rubber and that they will rapidle lead to decay and dishintegration of these, particularly if the latter have been driven for a considerable distance and are nicked or cut. Gasoline especially is injurious to these because it is a solvent of gum rubber, but, because of the fact that it evaporates rapidly, it does not present such a menace as oil and grouse.

Permitting a car to stand in a garage in a pool of oil will, in a Permitting a car to stand in a garage in a pool of oil will, in a comparatively short time, lead to a decay of the rubber and a marked shortening of the life of the tire itself. Even the pools of oil and grease which are to be noted on streets where automobiles are usually parked are dangerous for this reason—as well as for the fact that they provide extremely treacherous footing and may lead to a serious skid. So injurious are all kinds of oil to the fabric of which three are made that one manufacturer advises motorists who are forced to go over freshly oiled roads to stop as soon as they have passed the oiled section and clean the surface of their tires with gasoline, taking care to wipe the cleansing agent off with a dryrag.

RUTS TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

FIX INDICATOR FOR BACKING

Notch Cut on Under 86 Iteering Wheel Will Be of Great Assistance.

A small notch cut on the under side of the steering wheel rim, in a praition nearest the driver, will greatly ald whee backing the car in a straight and narrow direction. Before making the notch simply set the wheels in a straight position. When backing, if the mark be to one side or to the other, it naturally shows that the wheels are not straight.

AUTOMOBILE MEWS ____

A thorough motorist should be good judge of distance and speed.

More accidents result from faulty adjustment or application of brakes than from any other cause.

One cause of lack of power in an engine while pulling against a load is a partly clogged gasoline line from the for carburstor, not permitting enough feet to enter the carburstor and insan on to engine.

One of the newest ideas requesting safety on the highways, especially at night, is the outgreatian that pedistrians on the inferhand side of the road keep out of the range passio of an automobile approaching from the rear.

Christ, the Firstfruits

By REV. JOHN C. PACE

other part of that vision—when the dry bones had been gathered together. breathed upon from heaven, vitalized and made to stand upon their feet, an exceeding great army ready for battle. If you are a Christian believer, beware of that which minimizes the importance of Christian doctrine.

The value of Christian truth and doctrine lies—in its ability to supply spiritual power, to furnish moral incentive and to impart mental vision or understanding. This very truth of Christ rises from the dead, the first-fruits of them that siept, is an example of this. When believed and received it operates in a saving way: "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus Christ, and shalt believe in this beart that God hath missed Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

Salvation to comprehensive.

Salvation is a big word, and comprehends the whole process of God's remedial work, past, present and future. It includes the resurrection of Christ as the firstfruits and the resurrection of believers in Christ as the harvest. The firstfruits is the pattern and pledge of the coming harvest. In the Mosaic law the Hebrew people were directed to bring a sheaf of the field, like other sheaves that were to be gathered later, and to wave it before the Lord as the first sheaf of the harvest. So is Christ presented as the firstfruits of the glorious and plenteous harvest to come—"Because it live, ye shall live also." There is spiritual power in this. What is true of our Lord is true of every believer in Him. Everything is made dependant on the believer's position as united to Christ. This underlies the whole philosophy of the Gospel message, in which we are invited to change our position from headship in Christ, who through His attonement for sin and His victory over death and the grave, has become Sarlor to all who put their trust in Him.

The doctrine of our identity with Christ and our participation in His risen life and victory supplies moral incentive for a holy walk, and for acrificial, service. This very truth of the bodily resurrection of Christian believers when He returns, is the ground of the appeal in I Cor. 15:58—Therefore be ye steadingt, unmorable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

The Apostie John used the same basis of appeal and finds moral incentive in the same facts—"Beloved, now are we the some of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be but we know that when He shall appear we thall be like Him, for we shall see Him is He is. And every man that that his hope in him purifieth himself, even so He is pure."

These great doctrines concerning the future blessings of Christian believes are never presented as abstract ruths or for mere academic discussion, but as vitalizing truths supplying the necessary incentive for the conflict with with and without.

Such a truth as this concerning our Lord's resurrection as the firstruits of a great harrest, to follow imparts clear mental vision and understanding concerning the future. It reclaims the future from that dreary indefiniteness and unthinkubleness into which false philosophy and false spiritualism have put it. The New Testament teaching of the resurrection is plain, and when believed it saves us from the detusive teaching against which the Holy Spirit through the inspired writers always put Christians on their guard. "Beware, lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ." This philosophy may be very attractive; it is to the natural mind. It has in it a spectousness and an appearance which promise much, but which in the end give no rest, no power for a holy life and no solid hope for the future. It belongs to the rudiments of the world and is not after Christ.

PROPOSE MODIFICATION OF IMMIGRATION LAWS

BARS WANTED DOWN FOR UN-

SKILLED LABOR

Washington.—Results of a twy years' study of the immigration question made by the National Association of Manufacturers, have been made public, showing a basis, from the viewpoint of employers of large numbers of laboerrs, for a demand for a change in the present quota law.

The present employment situation, to different from what it was a yeas, on whe more than two million men were without jobs, is used as an argument, if noing stated that industry and expansion, good times and "the full dimer pail" must suffer if more unknilled labor is not made available through a change in the immigration laws. One of these changes, as outlined by the Association, calls for a fixing of immigration quota in terms of net numbers, rather than quotas. In support of this idea, figures are quoted to show that during the past year forty thousand Italians came to these shores, but that fifty-three thousand left. It is proposed to reject altogether the present literacy test, on the grounds that a good workman may be illiterate and a bad revolutionary immigrant perfectly literate. No prosposals are included in the figures worked out which would change naturalization processes or exclude literacy from the qualifications of those applying for citizenship papers.

Many members of Congress are studying the report, but it is more generally regarded as the plea of a special interest (manufacturing) than a contribution to the American viewpoint on immigration and naturalization.

ELECTING OFFICERS.

ELECTING OFFICERS.

January is a month when many organizations elect their officers for the year. There are many people who are glad to see their names in the paper as chosen to a certain office. But there are not so many who will take hold of the official work of some organization and devote energy enough to do it well.

The success of an organization depends upon good judgment in selecting its leaders, and upon its ability to arouse enough enthusiasm so that its officers will do some real work. It takes considerable time to carry on a church or chamber of commerce or fraternal society but every one has 24 hous in his day and not more than eight of them are necessary for sleep. Somewhere in the other sixteen, the people should be able to find chinks in which they can do public work. These responsibilities may seem tiresome at the time, but they help anyone make lasting friends and they bring permanent rewards.

Another of those great evils from which the country is suffering, is the tough, stringy, and streatked co'd boiled ham they put off on you in these decadent days.

Mr. N. E. Riddell, Ky.,
Dear Sir:
You will find enclosed a check for three dollars for this and last year's subscription to the Recorder. My wife don't think we can do without it. It keeps us in touch with the happehings in old Boone you know.
Well, since we have been in Alabama we are farming and raisin, cotton; it is nice work all except the picking, that is hard on the back. It is the main money crop here and what it takes to pay off notes.
Since I have been here I have built several buildings for myself on the farm, one 5-room bungalow and other small buildings, and now am about to complete a barn 30x66 feet, to eave. I will close. Wishing you all a prosperous year, I remain.

LONG LIFE IN THE COUNTRY.

The average age of the American farmer at death is seven years above the average age of the city business man at death. The average country town resident not engaged in 'Arming,' probably has about the same additional period of life.

There is something in the nervous haste of city life that kills. Rural longevity is cut down to a certain extent by the fact that in many districts there is a lack of good sanitation. But if the rural family will obey the laws of hygiene, the pure air and greater freedom from nervous strain ought to make the average countryman's life even more than seven years longer than the average countryman's life even more than seven years longer than the average countryman's life even more than seven years longer than the average chy man's. People who give up country homes reflect that they probably shouten their lives by doing so.

Being urged not to let any green.

THE CALLING HABIT
It is often a shock to the old generation to find that people do not make social calls as they used to. Such persons will move into some town where they are strangers, and will feel disgruntled because people do not call on them. If they attend the services of some church, they often find fault because the members of the parish do not come to their homes.

TAXATION BIG QUESTION. Commissioner Hanna Urges Farmers to Organize.

Farmers to Organize.

Frankfort, Ky.—Farmers of Kentucky are facing a year of prosperity and it will not be long until this State will be linked with California when referring to co-operative marketing and farm wealth, W. C. Hanna, Commissioner of Agriculture, said in a message to the farmers of Kentucky.

Mr. Hanna urged farmers to organize and see that agricultural counties are represented by farmers in the next Legislature.

"During the past few years the farmer has made a desperate appeal for legislation in his own behal?. Beneficial legislation for the farmer has made a desperate appeal for legislation in his own behal?. Beneficial legislation for the farmer being rapidly enacted along the line of finance and also thru laws al lowing the pooling of agricultural rounding the problem of the farmer shall be the state of the farmers. None of us believe in "class legislation," but it is always the privilege of any section to send to the Legislature, or to Congress, men who will represent the leading interest in that community.

"The greatest problem confronting the next Legislature is staxifor. Let the farmer be in that Legislature in sufficient numbers that he may be sure the farmer is getting a square dead on the taxation question."

"It means much for this nation that the farmers have caught the vision of what organization really means; then every farmer will have the opportunity to hold his produce for fairer prices. Kentucky is especially blessed in that her great commodity, tobacco, is so signally adapted to co-operative marketing."

Liquer and College Stuents.

Alarming remorts are circulated.

Liquor and College Students.

Alarming reports are circulated about the extent to which college students drink intoxicating liquor. In many colleges this practice is common. The boys feel they are grown up men and should decide such matters for tremselvess. As a result there is a dissipation in certain college circles, and some of these fellows come to grief.

A number of the colleges are trying to straighten out their students in this respect, not always making stricter rules, but creating student sentiment against liquor. Colleges were established to impart wisdom. A student who goes to such an institution and gets the drinking habit, would do better to uit latin and algebra and go to work sawing wood or do some other kind of honest labbr.

The merchant who makes no effort to get new trade, sometimes wonders why the mail order catalogs distrib-uted all through the rural districts get so much business away from him.

The custom of making social calls seems to be dying out. Many men dislike it exceedingly. They groan when their wives remark that they owe this or that call. They may have a fairly good time after they have put on their store clothes and rave made the necessary visit, but the proceeding appears too formal and starched for them. They would rather go to some club or lodge and play games and talk informally.

The use of the telephone does away with one motive for calling. This is an energetic age and people prefer to do some active thing rather than, sit around the sides of a room in stuffed chairs and talk.

ROADS THAT GROW WORSE

ROADS THAT GROW WORSE.
While a certain portion of the public highways have been greatly improved during recent years, due largely to the sentiment created by automobile owners, many others have grown worse.
The result has been that food producers who are not fortunate enough to live near improved higways, are often worse off as respects transportation than they were a few years tation than they were a few years ago.

A large part of the country highways are being torn to pieces by automobiles and trucks. The great amounts being spent for highway building are not enough to go around. Thus the cost of getting farm products to market has probably increased in the past five years, in spite of all that has been done toward construction, which means that poor roads are one factor in the cost of living. It is doubtful if the roads as a whole are improving. Thus the highway situation constitutes one of our most serious national problems.

BIGGEST SHORT COURSE

At Aurora, Ind., Jan. 30-31 & Fob. 1-2--Four Great Days

Four great days for Dearborn, Boone and Ohio counties come on Jan. 30, 31 and Feb. 1 ahd 2 when another Purdue Short Course is to be held at Aurora. This time Livestock, Poultry, Soils, and Crops, Farm Management and Dairying will be given together with a fine array of Home Economics lectures and demonstrations for all women folks. The management consisting largely of farm men and women have set out to have an attendance bigger than anything known in the state in the fifteen years of short course work in Indiana. Tris means an attendance of 2500 or more. This should be recomplished mainly for the sake of the information and inspiration that such an occasion will bring to the people of the three counties. The Purdue staff come again not with the feeling that they know it all but in the hope that the results of experimental work at Purdue and simil' institutions, and the observations that have been made in the last year or more will be of direct benefit to all. The coming together of folks to meet representatives of their institution, and to hear what they have to say, and also to discuss various, problems with one another cannot but be a great help to the agriculture of the three counties. It is to be hoped that all of our people will look at this event in the right light, feel that the information brought is practical and useful (for it is) rally to the short course and make a grand success of it.

THE FUTURE

One of the most favorable signs for development of the country towns during the immediate future, is the decline of what would be called the old clique spirit. Many people have in the past had a prejudice against country life, as the result of having lived in towns that were divided and dominated by little nar row cliques.

having lived in towns that were divided and dominated by little nar row cliques.

In many such towns church and society membership would create lines of division. Each church or other organization would attract one distinct section of people, and they might not mix well. Then in each section there would be a further subdivision by age, into older people, the middle aged and married folks, and the young crowd. These various little groups were much inclined to flock by themselves.

Some people would hold themselves aloof because they thought they were better than others. Some would go in for dancing, some for study, some for card playing. There were so many little sets, that no one of them was influential enough to accomplish much for the town. Often the various groups, not knowing each other well were jealous of each other.

Modern tendencies are working to break up these little selfish groups...
Rut they are inclined to laugh at petty spirit. They feel in progressive towns at least, that the community snould be all one big family, that all should work together for town TROGRESS.

all should work together for town pregress.

This spirit is making towns delightful residence communities. Where people all know each other and work together well, it becomes possible to make rapid progress. Community life is characterized by jolly friendliness, and people get attached to their home towns. The typical country town of ten years hence, should see the old cliques spirit dead, and all elements pulling for the general benefit.

Meeting Red Propaganda
Considerable alarm is felt by many people at the spread-of radical propaganda in this country, much of it said to be financed by the soviet Rusian government. The number of radical publications in this country has nearly doubled within tre last year Red agitators go about stirring up class feeling, creating discontent and preaching that the working massess of the country will never be happy until there is a revolution.

Some folks would have all these agitators locked up in jail. But it is doubtful if that would get results Such a course would enable the near radicals to raise the cry that free speech is not permitted and that "liberal" thinkers are persecuted.

About the only way to meet sophistry is by plain facts and argument. The newspapers and public speakers should take some pains to how the falsity of the theories of the radicals. They should demonstrate that these notions have been tried offt again and again, and have never been found to work. They might well speak of the misery and suffering that has resulted in Russia from the adoption of radical ideas.

In so far as the present government of this country is faulty, the resulted in Russia from the adoption of radical ideas.

In so far as the present government of this country is faulty, the people who desire change can get it modified, when ever they get a majority of the voters on their side. They have every opportunity to promote their views.

Wherever they can get a majority vote, they can experiment with secialistic projects to their hearts' content. If they can show that their theories work out more human happiness than those now embodied in our government, their ideas will be widely followed. But people should pay very little attention to them, as long as they merely rave and theorize, without giving practical demonstration of the merit of their proposals.

Girls' club work through the country-towns in a neighboring state, remark-ed the other day that she some times found the young people dissatisfied, with what they called the dull life of their home towns. They wished that they could live in some city where the organizations for young women have handsome buildings and elabor-ate cquipment.

But if these girls realized it, this young vomen said, they have a far better chance for enjoyment than the city girls. They do not have costly equipment, but in the out does life of the country they have a wonderful chance to organize every kind of outdoor sport, which the city girls are deprived of. Handsome buildings are a poor substitute for out door life and sport.

BIRDS OFTEN VALUABLE AID IN FIGHTING INSECT PESTS.

IN FIGHTING INSECT PESTS.

Birds help keep down many insect pests even when they are not sufficiently numerous to exterminate them over a large area of infestation, and there are many instances where the saving of a crop appears to be entirely the work of birds. When the Mormons emigrated to Utah, says the Biological Survey, U.S. Department of Agriculture, in a recent compilation of instances where birds have been beneficial, the short-winged grasshopper, common-ly known as the black, or Mormon cricket, came and devoured the crops-Fields of wheat as promising as posible in the morning would be as are as a man's hand at night.

The second year they came again, but providentially, or miraculously, as it was thought by the Mormons vast flocks of California white gults underly appeared and destroyed the crickets, eradicating them for the time being. The remainedr of the crop on which the Mormons had to rely for food the next season was aved. Since that time these birds have been held almost sacred in Utah. A monument commemorating their valuable aid stands in Salt Lake City.

HELP YOUR CARRIERS

Many of the patrons of the rural routes can make the work of the carrier a great deal lighter in the winter months if they would just do a few things that will not take any extra time on the part of the patron. One is to procure a few stamps and keep them on hand. This seems a little matter, but when a letter is stamped and in the right place in he mail box the carrier can get it without taking off his gloves. Do not place loose pennies in a box on a cold morning or any other time, for that matter. The carrier is not obliged to pick up loose change. Another thing that many people forget to do: That is to put up a signal when you deposit a letter in the box. Many times a carrier passes a box in which a letter is placed by the patorn as there is no mail to leave and he does not know that your letter is there. Another good thing to do is to have the roads dragged on all mail routes. This, assists the carrier nore than anything else. You would not drive your car over roads that are full of ruts when there is a good road a little farther away. The carrier has to drive on the route and is compelled to travel the road regardless of the smoothness. Many patrons have lost their mail service by the bad condition of the roads. Also shovel away the drifts in front of the mail box. You would not wade in the snow, neither would you drive your car in a snow bank in zero weather in not a pleasant thing and yemany patrons do not do the littlings that will make life more pleasant for the carrier. Just try it once and notice the smile on the part of your carrier.—R. F. D. News.

"PARIS COMES TO AMERICA"

It used to be said that good Americans when they died went to Paris. The Parislau ture no doubt is still powerful; but every day I should guess that more of Paris comes to America. The upper parts of New York have boulevards and apartment houses very like the real thing, and I noticed that the architecture of France strains a secretal attraction for the feld. ts a special attraction for the rich decreeing himself a pleasure

There are millionaires' residences in New York that might have been transplanted not only from the Avenue du Bols de Boulogne but from Tournine Itself; while when I made my pilgrimage to Mr. Widener's, just outside Philadelphia, I found Rembrandt's "Milli," and Manet's dead ball fighter, and a Vermeen and a little mendow painted outside by Color and El Greco's family group, and Donntello's St. George, and one of the most lovely access that ever was created by Turner's enchanted brush, all enshrined in a palace which Louis Selze might bave built.

But Auerica is still more French. There are millionaires' residences in

But America is still more French than this. Her women can not be less solgnee than those of France, aithough they suggest a cooler blood and less dependence on mile society; her shops can be as distinguished as those of the Rue de is Paix and far more costly; and ther bread is better than France's best. Moreover, when it comes to night, and the Broadway constellations chillenge the durkness, New York leaves Paris far behind. For every cabaret and supper resort that Paris can provide New York has three; and for every daching floor in Paris New York lugs 30.

Good America's, however, will still

ROT-PROOF BURLEY
SHOWS SUPERIORITY

Lexington, Ky. — Striking proof that root rot resistant burley, developed by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, is superior in many respects to the common types of burley now being grown in the state was obtained in 1922 by 311 growers in 26 counties of the burley district who cooperated with the experiment station in growing the resistant type on their farms, according to Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist of the College of Agriculture.

Free distribution of a limited amount of root rot resistant burley seed is now being made to farmers for the second year by the experiment station to demonstrate further the value of the new variety to Kentucky burley growers. A total of 1,100 packets of seed, each containing a level teaspoonful, have been sent out at the rate of 50 packets to each of 22 counties in the burley district having a county agricultural agent. Growers in counties not having a county agent will have an opportunity to get seed from the station as long as the supply holds out.

The 311 farmers who grew the resistant burley on their farms in 1922 furnished an opportunity for comparing the new variety with a total of 21 common varieties of strains of burley. The results of these demonstrations have been summarized as follows:

Realizing that eleanliness and eart in handling wool gives him no advantage under the old system with the itinerant junk man as the wool buyer, this Jason joins a wool growers' organization and sells his wool on grade, thus getting a price commensurate with the high quality of his clip, and learning that a clean fleece in its rightful grade is the true "golden fleece." At the same time, his neighbor, Old Man Hidebound, who thinks that cleanliness in handling wool is immaterial, finds that cleanliness is reversed. ndling wool is immaterial, it cleanliness is very vital ar able when wool is sold on

PROPER CARE OF MOTOR BATTERY

Corroded Terminals Are Frequently Source of Trouble, Says Prof. Brokaw.

FLOW OF CURRENT RETARDED

After Corrosion Has Formed Best Way to Get Rid of it is to Scrape the Terminals Until There is Bright Lead Finish.

Corroded terminals are the chief source of battery trouble, according to H. Clifford Brokaw, technical director of the West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile schools. He explains that occasionally the self-starter will not work while the lights, horn and ignition operate smoothly.

"This condition may be traced," he adds, "to corroded or poorly fitting hattery terminals which will only allow a sufficient amount of current to pass to operate the lights and horn. As the starting motor takes a larger amount of current, the resistance may be great enough to prevent it from perating.

"Corrosion is formed by the action of the electrolyte or acid in the battery. After it has formed, the most astisfactory way to get rid of it is to acrape the terminals until there is a bright lead finish. Washing the terminals with ammonia or some other lakeline solution will neutralize any acid that may be present and prevent extractions. When such washing is done, care should be taken that none of this solution gets into the battery. After the terminals have been scraped and the parts assembled, cure should be taken to see that the terminals make contact for the full area of their surface. A firm and full contact is required to supply the amount of current for the siarting motor. Some motorists cost the terminals with vaseline or other grease to, prevent the acid from coming in contact with the joint.

Lights Burn Out Entirely.
"If the contact from any other reason becomes poor, the lights are apt to fine up to excessive brightness, and if the contact is so poor that no current can pass or if the wire should become disconnected from the battery, the lights will burn out entirely in most systems. This is because the generator which charges the battery at low speed, and when the engine is speed, and when the engine is speed, and when the engine is speed, ed up it will deliver more than is necessary. The system of regulating the voltage in most cases is such that the battery plays an important part in keeping the voltage from rising to a poi

LESSON IN GENTLE BRAKING

With Jork.

Apply the brakes considerately and the car will soon show its gratitude, because gentle brake application reduces the strain on tires, wheels, springs and other parts. If the brakes are applied with full force at least one, if not both rear wheels are likely to lock, and in sliding along the ground a notleeable amount of rubber is acraped from the tire at the point where it contacts with the ground. There is no quicker nor more certain way of sending three guidely to fraublish heap or the junkman. Harsh brake application wears the brake linking unduly and pulls and racks the whole car. Muck greater economy will be buying a possible.

That ordinary soap should not be used on the highly polished surface of the body of the cur, because soap usually contains free alkall or lye which enables it to cut the dirt and grease loose, but, at the same time, in-jures the varnished surface and wears off the attractive gloss-which is the pride of the new car owner.

The best method is to use a hose alone, removing the nozzle so that the flow of water conces out slowly and does not tear the grit against the gloss of the car.

It hose is not available, a large sponge and a pall of water may be used, but care should be taken to rinse the sponge after practically every stroke, in order to avoid scratching the finish. A mixture of a gallion of linseed oil with a half-pint of good varnish makes an excellent renewal agent for a surface which has nish makes an excellent renewall agent for a surface which has begun to dull. As this is designed only to freshen up the varnish, the mixture should not be sticky, but sufficiently oily to impart a luster without catching dust.

A RECORD AIMED AT THIS TIME

All Animal Husbandry instruction at the Aurora Short Course will be given by J. W. Schwab of the Animal Husbandry Division of the Extension Department of Purdus University. Schwab is an Iowa Agricultural College man of middle age and good personality. After graduating in Animal Husbandry at Ames in the great livestock state of Iowa. Schwab farmed for a number of years with his father, but the farm not being big enough for two families, he obtained employment with Purdue University. This was some eight years ago. From the first Schwab showed himself to be a born livestock man in every sense of the word. He has a way of meeting people and addressing audiences that people like, and that has made him popular from the beginning. In all the years of Extension work in Indiana, there has not been a more efficient and exective man in livestock extension work. He has hand a hand in experimental work here and elsewhere, is a kee, observer, intensely practical, a strong clear talker, never guesses at thinge, thus making his information dependable and useful. All interested in livestock will find his work—fix the Short Course well worth any trouble that may be taken to get in to the short course. If anyone has were for some plain, practical, up odate information on livestock, here will be the opportunity to get it.

He graduated from Purdue University some five or six years ago, had some actual experience in poultry raising, and then became County Agent is Starke County where he remained two years. At the end of that period he became a member of the Poultry Extension Division of the Extension Department at Purdue. He has made good always. Anyone-interested hasinly to inquire of those who know Riley and his work to find that he is thoroughly well posted in poultry raising and can be depended upon to give information that is accurate. To better fit himself for good work in poultry extension Riley has become the proprietor of a poultry farm, so that he knows first hand the problems of the poultry raiser. He has a strong voice and speaks in a clear convincing way.

W. A. Oatrander comes originally from Wisconsin University, is farmborn and brought up. After leaving Wisconsin he spent some time on the state of the University of South Dakota. From there he came to Purdue. He has actual experience a-plenty in handling land anl crops. If he goes once to any point in Indiana for lecture or demonstration he is want ed back again, which is good evidence that his work is acceptable and helpful. Since coining to Indiana he has directed several useful campaigns looking toward better crops and an increase in the acreage of legumes. While there are posphate, the rotation of crops so as to get a far greater increase in the acreage of legumes. He was a few months ago made head of the Dairy Division and has proven to be a very valuable man in the development of the dairy interests in Indiana. He knows dairy conditions in this State, he has a fine large fund of good information bearing on the problems in dairying, his manner of talking is forceful, his information is dependable, it is practical, it has proven to be exceedingly helpful it dealers bearing the dairy sections of the state, and will doubtless be received with much interest who attend the Short Course at Aurora, January 30, 31, Feb. 1 and 2nd.

GUNSHOT WOUNDS

In military surgery the term "gunshot wounds" embraces wounds made by projectiles from shotguns, pistole, rifles, hombs, torpedoes, chells, hand also wounds inflicted by stones, pieces of mortar or brick, sand, splinters of motar or brick, sand, splinters of wood and indeed anything sent flying by an explosion of any kind. ... civil life, however, the term includes only wounds from shot or bullets discharged from weapons.

when the bullet passes thru the body or through an arm or a leg the two durface wounds differ; that of curtance is smaller and smoother than that of exit; and if the weapon was discharged at close range, say from a foot to eighteen inches, the diges of the entrance wound may show powder stains and burns. The wound of exit is usually ranged and has bruised, projecting edges; and sometimes is torn by pieces of bone that the projectile has pushed ahead of it.

The first-ald treatment of gunsot wounds consists first of all in stopping the hemmorrhage, if it is profuse either by pressing on the main actery that leads to the part or by pressing on the main actery that leads to the part or by pressing on the wound tiself. If the wound is in a leg or an arm, a thick cord, a towel or a handkerchief can be tied round the limb above the spot and then tightened by inserting a stick under the loop and twisting it. The wound itself should be washed; all loose particles of dirt should be reisoved, and the part should be covered with clean wet cloths. Never use cobwebs or dirty cloths to stop the bleeding, for they might inoculate the wound with the germs of lockjaw. If the bone of a leg or in an arm has been broken, the limb can be splinted with a strip of bark, a cane or an umbrella bound firmly to it. That will keep the injured limb in place while the patient is being carried to his home. where she underwent an operation, where she underwent an operation.

Detective Stories

THE DOUBLE CRIME

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

T WAS in the late summer of 1903 that the New York police discovered the body of a man, evidently an Italian, concealed in a barrel on the East side. Every park that could possibly rupply a cide ', his identification had been embyed from his clothes—and the manner in whi h his clothes—and the manner in whi h his clothes—and the manner ende. So the totally unrecognizable.

But, just as the case was about to be entered upon the book of New York's unsolved mysteries, it was cleared up through a coincidence so startling that no writer of detective fiction would have darad make use of it.

On the night of the murder, William J. Firm three others with several

On the night of the murder, William J. Flynn, then chief of the Eastern division for the United States secrete service, with hendquarters in New York, was working on one of the numerous counterfelting cases which occur so frequently in the Italian section of the metropolis.

Flynn himself was elected to trail a pair of Italians whom he had reason to believe were working for or with the counterfeiters. The trail lied to an Italian grocery, where, srom the shadow of a doorway across the street, the government detective could see lato a lighted room in the suspected house. A few moments later a covered wagen drew up in front of the house, a man got out, entered the grocery, and made hie way into the very room that Flynn was watching. The light from the lamp fell directly upon his face, and the secret service operative realized that this must be a new addition to the kang, for he was certainly no one that he had seen before. Then the curtains to the window were drawn, and Flynn abandomed his chase for the time being. The next morning the murdered man was discovered, nearly half a mile from the place where Flynn had hidden himself the night before. It was several days later that the operative read the official account of the rime and noted that the hody had been found in a sugar barrel, partiy, filled with blood-stained sawdust. The date of the murder, coupled with the use of a sugar barrel, recalied to thioperatives mind the fact that he had been watching an Italian grocery at or about the time that the foreigner land been killed. Merely to satisfy himself that there was no connection between the counterfeiters and the murder, coupled with the does not a doubt. It was the stranger whom Flynn had been marching!

Feeling certain that here was a sign which pointed toward the operations of the gang which he was after, Flynn had the body photographed from a number of an angles, while experts in hysiognomy reconstructed the features to sometting approaching a life-like appearance. Then, armed with these post-mortem-pictu working citizen who had never been implicated in any of the crimes of the Italian settlement.

Working backward from this clue Flynn and the other secret service operatives trailed the Italians whem the chief had seen in the grocery store on the night of the murder, and it was not long before they had made a complete roundup of the gung. As was to be expected in a crime of this nature, alibis were plentiful, but, as was usual, these were none too well supported by fact, and it was a comparatively simple matter for the police to get at the bottom of the case, once the identity of the victim had been established.

A judicious application of the "third degree" brought to light the fact that Benedett had been killed because he had gotten wind of the counterfeiting plot, and because he was the brother-in-law of the man who later lidentified the body—a man who laid incurred the undying enmity of his compartois by turning state's evidence. The inflexible laws of the society to which they both belonged—one of the societies which rules Little Italy with a rule of Iron and a hund of blood—demanded the sacrifice of the next of kin in the event-of information being given to the police.

But, if Flynn had not happened to be watching the grucery store the night of the murder, the chances are that the crime would still be unsolved. The leader of the morder gung was found to be Ignazio Lupo, one of the very men Flynn was after, but the gevenument allowed the counterfeiting charge to imag fire until the expiration of Lupo's term for manslauchter Another Lage, brother to Flangzio, as exped at the time and was not captured until tea years inter, although Flynn and his associates were on the lockout for him all its time.

BACK UP THE ORGANIZATIONS
January is the period when many community organizations start on another year of effort, commoniry with some new officers. These organizations are not merely groups of people looking for some-benefits for themselves. They all contribute something of value to the life of the community.

A society that lives year after year, that so overcomps inertia that people will keep it up and do its work in this busy age, must meet human needs, and provide the community with forms of life and service whish it could not do without.

People who join an organization should expect usually to take the official positions that they are asked to fill. If a person is invited take a certain office, it is a sign that his friends and associates think he is equal to the job. He need not show false modesty and set up the claim that he is not qualified. All must take hold and help to make the churches and societies.

Steps preliminary to the changing of the name of The Tri-State Cooperative Milk Marketing Association in accordance with the agreements reached following the withdrawal of the $50,000 injunction and damage suit filed by the Tri-State Butter Co. of Cincipment with taken this week by the Board of Trustees. The name of The Co-operative Pure Milk Association was decided upon by the trustees and submitted to the Secretary of State of Ohio at Columbus for his approval. The matter will be attended to by H. F. Ballard, attorney for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The withdrawal was brought about when it developed at the prtliminary hearing of the injunction nuit, before Judge Stanley W. Mathewa of the Common Pleas Court at Cincinnatt that an early argument of the merits of the case could not be had. As there was a probability that the matter might be carried to higher-courts by—eitherparty, involving great expense and loss of time, the representatives of the Association decided it would be more expedient to change its name rather than have its activities harrassed and impeded by the pendency of the suit.

According to the agreement reached between the litigants The Tri-State Co-operative Milk Marketing. Association is to be allowed to continue the use of the name "Tri-State" and continue to conduct its business with that title until such a time as a legal change of th name can be effected. There has therefore been no interruption to business by the co-operative institution and its number of customers has had an encouraging increase during the week A notice was sent to the various banks of southern Ohio and Indiaha and Northern Kentucky with whom The Tri-State Co-operative has been doing business informing them of the action of the Board of Trustees and a decision to extend the payment of farmers' notes from January 15, to February 1, 1923.

Demand for fresh churned butter has been large and to satisfy these customers the Association has issued, a call to its northern Kentucky menibers to ship their cream to the Coving

CHURCH SOCIALS

In many city churches about now where people are largely strangers to each other, they are doing their best under difficulties to hold really sociable socials. But too frequently the people sit around the sides of the room, without any common interest to help them become friends. In country churches the social is more of a success. The people ail know each other, and do not lack for subjects in which they have a common interest. The home folks dignity is not so impressive and restraining that they can't participate⁸ in songe jolly game that breaks any ice that they may be Jef. There the stranger is given the glad hand, and "the cordial welcome he usually gets makes him feel at home in a short time.

HIGHLY ENTERTAINED.

On Wednesday of last week about twenty-five members of the Ladies Mite Society were handsomely entertained by Mrs. J. E. Smith at her home on Jefferson street, with an all-day quilting bee. At the noon hour the table in the spacious dining room surrounded by the members, were served with oyster soup and all the trimmings of a quality that would delight the palate of an epicure and cause old Lucullus himself tofie the onyx paving stones of Paradise. Just how much quilting was done after the moon hour, our informant did not state, but, that the day was so pleasantly spent that it was not until the sum had begun to disappear behind the hills in the west, causing the shadows of evening to draw over the earth that the guests, reluctantly, took their leave expressing their enjoyment of the day and wishing Mrs. Smith many more such occasions.

RURAL CONTACT.

A noted writer on rural life remarks that the greatest handicap in farm life is the restricted contact that the farmer and his wife have with the human mind. There is something in the contact of mind with mind that sharpens wits. People need to exchange experiences, and learn what other folks are thinking about and doing.

That is why it is to desirable and necessary that farm families should all ally themeslves with some kind of clubs or other socities where matters of local and public interest arodiscussed, and their own problems and experiences come up for comparison. Rural life will not be fully successful until every farm family has these associations that bring them in close contact with heir neighbors' thoughts and experiences.

CONSERVING GASOLINE
(Fam Life)

The automobile driver who seeks economy of operation and wails at his bus because it is a "gas hog" has only himself to blame for the heavy consumption of fuel and oil.

A common fault which cuts down the gasoline mileage is the excessive use of the brakes.

The brake should be used to slow the car down when it is necessary and the driver should watch his road to that the ear will slow down from its own weight, which in the great ma jority of cases can be done without the use of the brakes.

When the brakes are applied the

jority of cases can be done without the use of the brakes.

When the brakes are applied the car is going at a certain clip, and that was obtained by the description of the amount of gasoline consumed. If the driver had been watching he would have known that he murt slow down at a certain place and could have slipped out his clutch, allowing the car to coast the short distance, slowing itself down as idi so, an thus the driver would get the benefit of the gasoline already cohsumed.

Mr. Hughes is said to be disgusted because of the dissatisfaction with the Administration's foreign policy; whatever that may be. Senator Hiram Johnson describes it as. "puzzling and humiliaring". Puzzling and humiliaring it is unquestionably regarded not only by the "irreconciables" of the Johnson stripe who insist that Americas shall maintain an attitude of strict isolation, but by those who wish the greatest of nations to bear its part in world affairs. Nobody who would see this country follow a positive and consistent foreign policy is pleased with the policy, or lack of policy, of Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes. Nobody, indeed, has any definite idea what it is, or whether it is.

Lexington, Ky.—Seed treatment, the use of new or sterlized canvasser, care in the selection of the site for the plant bed and either spraying or dusting the plant bed are being suggested by W. D. Valltau, plant path ologist of the Kentucley Agricultural Experiment Station, as possible means whereby Kentucky tobacco growers both in the burley and dark belts, this spring can check the heavy losses caused by angular leaf spot and wildfire, two of the worst diseases with which leaf growers of the state have to contend.

The extent to which the diseases will injure plantings this year cannot be predicted, on a mobably will be to the advantage of all growers to take steps to head off any chances of the diseases causing trouble.

Atthough still in the experimental stage, treating seed with mercury bichloride, known as corrosive sublime, has given a 60 per cent control in tests made in other tobacco growing states. The seed is soaked for 15 minutes in a 1-to-1000 solution of mercury bichloride, then washed thoroughly and dried immediately. Mercury bichloride may be bought in tablets at any drug store with directions on the package for making a 1-to-1,000 solution. If the directions, for seed treatment are followed carefully, there is not danger of hurting the germination of the seed. Dusting or spraying the Dusting or spraying the Junta in the bed has given almost complete control of the two dileases in testimade in other states. Bordeaux mixture is used, as the spray and copper lime dust as the dust. The plants are dusted or sprayed several times between the time that they are as big as a finger, nail and the time that they are set in the field, care being taken to see that they are kept well covered with the spray or dust. The initial cost of the dusting is a little higher than the cost of spraying, but since, most growers have dusting out fits, it is expected that this method of control will be the more popular. THE RUHR BASIN

THE RUHR BASIN

The Ruhr Basin—which figures in every story of the reparations controversy—is perhaps the richest industrial center of Europe.

Territorially it is but a small part of the German State, containing some 7,921 square kilometers against 472,082 for the nation.

In point of population, however, it ranks as one of Europe's most congested centers, boasting of 5,500,000 inhabitants in 1920, or one 12th of the population of Germany.

In area it is about one-seventh the size of Tennessee, but contains a population more than twice as large.

The Ruhr Basin lies in the southwest corner of Prussia and includes parts of Westphalia and the Rhine Province.

One of the most marked changes that recent years have brought ... typical country towns, is the growth of oragnization spirit. In former years the farmers were largely independent units, each of whom played a lone hand, and as a consequence he rarely got anywhere. Recent years have shown a tremendous growth in organized activities in country towns.

Yet even now there are many farmers and country town people who are not identified with any form of rural or village oragnizations, and contribute little or nothing to the combined effort of that community to go ahead.

The movement to form boys and girls agricultural and home making contribute little or nothing to the combined effort of that community to go ahead.

The movement to form boys and girls agricultural and home making clubs is changing the interests of the coming generation along co-operative and oragnizing lines. The young peple that have had a good time and have won hoso r and profit as the result of their work in these clubs, have seen these satisfactor results flow from their affiliation with good or ganizations. It has been demonstrated that they get results from joining in with other people to secure certain ends. Having had this experience, it is not likely that when they grow up and assume the buckens of the community, that they will want to depend on their solitary and unsided efforts.

The boys and girls of the future country town are going to be good workers in organizations, and are going to depend for their success largely on united effort. With that did governing their conduct and shaping their efforts, many results will be attained that previously had seemed impossible.

If our people want to accelerate the rate of rural progress, one of the first things to do is for them to commission to ecomplishing the purposes for which the organizations are formed.

FARMERS MAKE PROGRESS IN BETTER POULTRY WORK

The year just ended has seen a marked advance in almost every line of work that is being carried to to bring about better and more pro thable farm poultry focks in Rock-castle and Southerh Madison counties, according to a report of County Agent Robert F. Spence, who is cooperating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

Practically all of the poultry work done in the county during the year has centered in the standardization campaign being put on over the state by the college extension division. In connection with this movement, a total of 15,000 purebred Rhode Island Red hatching eggs were distributed to farmers and their wives in the county who wished to obtain a start with the breed that is being established as the standard one in this section of the state.

Culling demonstrations, put on to show farmers and their wives how to distinguish betweeh the good and poor layers in their flecks, also have played a big part in the steady advance of better poultry methods in the county. A total of 22 demonstrations were held in different parts of the county, 47 per cent of the bird handled in the demonstrations being discarded because they showed the characteristic signs of being por layers.

Seventeen feeding demonstrations have been held in the county during the year, 14 new poultry houses built, 27 others repaired and 32 purebred Rhode Island Red roost rekept for breeding purposes.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

"Americanism"—teachers preach is civic organizations inculeate it, demagogues mouth it. but who explains it? What is "Americanism?"

The very question will be hailed by some as "un-American," "Why" says the patriot, "every one knows what Americanism is." But do they? And is there not a steady tendency to bring under the banner of the word ideas which have no place there? Is there not a continuous attempt on the part of enthusiastic factions and minories to twine into the Stars and Stripes beliefs and convictions which do not there belong?

Americanism is something more than taking off your hat when the flag goes by, going to the polls ovote, and paying a tax. The real American believes in the principles upon which this Nation was builded, not necessarily upon the way some people have thought these principles should be worked out. There are good Americans who believe it the salvation of the world. There were two 3d Americans who believe the League of Nations is anathma, and there are good Americans who believe it the salvation of the world. There were two sides to the world war. But there are no good Americans who refuse to stand by American, not in the league, because they believe in the league. Americanism is a matter of principles, and living up to them. Americanism is a matter of principles, and living up to them. Americanism is a matter of principles, and living up to them. Americanism is a matter of principles, and living up to them. THE INCREASING HIGH-WAY STRAIN

THE INCREASING HIGHWAY STRAIN.

The strain upon the highways created by automobiles increases each year at a rapid rate and makes the problem very much more difficult of solution.

It is probable that many of the states will have 50 per cent more automobile traffic this summer than they had two or three years ago, perhaps more than that. With a constantly increasing throng of cars tearing down the roads night and aday, a rate of disintergration provided for by the road making plans of five years ago becomes very much below actual conditions today.

Some people are predicting that before many years nearly every family will have its motor car. The road making plans for the future must allow for a rate of wear and tear fag greater than that existing today.

Thus the problem of creating a surface that will stand this tremendous strain grows more difficult and burdensome every year.

The entrance of women into politics has had a beneficial effect upon the country, but it has not gone far enough.

Going to the polls and voting at election time does not constitute the entire duty of the woman in politics. Her first and prime object should be the selection of the best people available in the primaries, in order that the candidates may be of such calibre and standing that the people will be assured competent and honest officials, regardless of which party wins.

There is no better way of doing this than by forming women's clubs

The past record and history of every person who seeks public office

we know of no one who is better fitted to pass judgment upon a man's

Women invariably judge a man

STUDYING CIVICS.

When "clvics" is mentioned as a school study, some people think it sounds highbrow and unpractical. One reason, why government is often unstifactory, is that a vast number of people have no conception of their civic duties, and no idea of the practical steps necessary to secure good government.

Every boy and girl ought to learn something in school about their prospective duties as citizens. They should find out how they will suffer from bad or ineffecient government or high taxes.

They should be given ome idea of how people can improve governing conditions. They should be warned against the fakes of politics. Lessons of this kind, if taught in a spirit of non-partisanship, ought to be just as useful to a coming citizen as anything found in any lesson book.

government upon the construction of federal-aid roads under the supervision of state departments, existing state highway departments were enlarged and strengthened, and in 17 states adequate departments have been created where there had been none or the existing one was not properly equipped to perform necessary functions.

With adequate departments the work has been shifted to their control until at the present time they supervise more than 60 per cent of the road work. This assures to the taxpayer the services of engineers trained in road work, a centralized authority responsible for the expenditure of funds, and a far-sighted plan of development and financing.

COMPILING COST OF PAVING

of Work.

Average costs per square yard of various types of paving for country roads have been compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures cover 03,000,000 square yards of paving constructed with federal aid in all parts of the United States during the period of 1910-21. The costs per square yard are as follows: Sandelay, 18 cents; gravel, 46 cents; plain and surface-treated macadam, 05 cents: Dituminous macadam, $2.10; Dituminous concrete, $2.50; plain cemeat and surface-treated macadam, 92 cents; bituminous macadam, 82.0; bituminous macadam, 82.0; bituminous concrete, 82.50; piain cement concrete, 82.51; reinforced-cement concrete, 82.71; reinforced-cement concrete, 82.74; and brick, 84.10.

These figures cover only the cost of the paying; they do not include the cost of grailing and officials point out that it must not be assumed that roads of the several types can be constructed in any locality at these figures. For example, the cost of bituminous concrete varied from $1.70 in the New Engiand states to $3.13 in the group of states including Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. In one group of states the cost of brick dropped to $2.40. Costs of constructing these types in the various groups of states have been compiled and can be obtained from the bureau.

One of the factors that will help to sustain farm prices is the large amount of road building planned for this year. The government will spend a larger sum for this purpose than ever before, and states and countles will co-operate to the extent of their financial abilities.

COX/POINTS THE WAY

Messagea, oral or written, delivered by Deinocratic leaders at Jackson Day celebrations have more than once gripped the country's attention. It was at Jackson Day-dinners that Mr. Tilden sounded his call to battle against political corruption in 1874 and 1876; that Mr. Cleveland railied Democratic hosts to fight for tariff reform in 1892; that Mr. Wilson heralded "the new freedom" that was to emanchast the masses from political and financial throlldom in 1922. At Langader, Ohio. on westerleys.

At Lancaster, Ohio, on yesterday James M., Cox delivered a message in which may readily be discerned a touch of "Old Hickory's" firmness fairness and fortitude.

in which was yearlily be alseerned as touch of 'Old Hickory's' firmness. Tailriess and fortitude.

Thougo defeated for the Presidency in 1824 by "a coalition of the Puritan and the Blackleg." Jackson in 1828 was overwhelmingly elected. For twelve years the party controlled the Federal Government. In 1840, by a campaign of misrepresentation excelled only by that of the eighty years a campaign of misrepresentation excelled only by that of the eighty years later, the opposition party, made up of grievances accumulating thruot twelve tempestuous years, was successful; but its elements were so discordant, its policies so conflicting, that it was promptly discredited by fore it had been twelve months in power. After four years of power the Whig party ceased to exist.

The analogy between the opposition to Andrew Jackson's Administration is too obviest to require comment.

To displace the Whig party, made, up-of-contentious factions, as it was in 1844, the Democratic party, defeated in 1840, needed only to standfast for the things incarnated in "Ol1 Hickory."

Mr. Cox is wise in huts summoning the third and fifth decades of the Nineteenth Century to redress the balance of the third decade of the Twentieth.

In laying emphasis upon the need of regiving the ideals of Woodrov.

Twentieth.

Judge emphasis upon the need of reviving the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, Mr. Cox proves that he is not lacking in political acumen. In the Democratic party of 194 there should be as little room for "little Americans" afraid of their shadow as there was for their prototypes in Jackson's time.

Mr. Cox courageously "carries on" in a speech free of rancor, yet full of vigor.

"We profane the underlying sentiment of this solemn occasion" sail Mr. Cox, "unless we pledge our efforts to make the Democratic party an instrument of useful service." That sentence has in it the unmistal-able ring of Jackson, Tilden, Cleveland and Wilson. It is the high spot in Mr. Cox's address.—C.-J.

THE "VAMPS."

It is interesting to see how popular slang expressions represent public sentiment toward people's characteristics and conduct. A slang word heard much nowadays is vamp, It suggests a type of people some of whom to be called "firsts" and others something worse.

The word appearance of the control of the called "firsts" and others.

It suggests a type of people some of whom to be called "flirts" and others; something worse.

The word apparently comes from "wampire," which was a fabulous and ghostly being that used to be supposed to suck people's blood. The term has been translated thru literature into popular use, and is oftenused to designate those who derive profit and pleasure from other. people in a selfish and harmful way.

It is hard to draw lines in the relations of men and women, and some of the people who used to be called flirts may have done no serious harro. Folks of a vivacious temperament often carry their fooling pretty far. But if they have sense they know when to stop, and what people it is safe to play with.

There is a type of people who have an abnormal interest in persons of the other sex, and are constantly looking for flirtatious conquest. They do not seek worthy friendship or affection but are merely trying to satisfy some passing fancy, usually based on physical attractiveness. As soon as their temporary whim is pleased they become sated and go oft to seek new conquests. Such frequently get so beyond their control that they violate the lowes of God and man.

Genuine friendships between men and women are noble and uplifting. But the people who are out to make conquests and satisfy passing fancies without regard to moral obligation, are pretty well described by the slang term "vamp" which has become into the popular speech.

The man who later became the head of the secret service said nothing at the time.

It was three years before Flynn again came into contact with the two Italians, and again the federal forces had to be content with the losing end of the argument.

This time the case was the famous one of the "Morristown Fives"—five-doilar bills printed in precise luitation of the currency issued by the National-Iron hank of Morristown, N. J. Flynn's men found that the trail led directly into "Little Italy" in New York, right up to the door of a grocery store-owned by Guiseppe de Primo, But there, apparently, it disappeared into thin air.

Flynn investigated the matter very carefully from the outside, but the only supplicious circumstance that he could discover was that De Primo was importing a much larger quantity of olive oil than his business appeared to warrant. On account of the duty, citye oil is usually imported in barrels and then canned or bottled on this side—the empty cans being shipped from Italy ready for use.

Feeling certain that there must be some connection between the olive oil and the mysterious counterfeits, Flynn first tapped several of the barrels consigned to De Primo. But these were filled to the brim with oil of the precise quality mentioned in the bills of lading. Then, merely to make certain that he had not neglected any possible angle of the case, the secret service man ripped open one of the boxes of "empty cans." Instantly the mystery was solved. The cans contained roil upon roll of "Morristown Flyes," manufactured in Italy.

In the roundup which followed this discovery, Lupp and Morello were sathered in the the grathered in the upon roll of the "Morristown Fives," nanufactured in Italy.

In the roundup which followed this discovery, Lupo and Morello were gathered in by the government agents and charged, with passing counterfelf, money. It was a moral certainty that the two Sicillans had had a hand in the plot—in fact, Filyan suspected that they were the rinquesters—but none of the others would implicate them, even to save themselves. De Primo and his associates went to the penitentary, but Lupo and Morello walked out of the courtroom still sneering at the "brainless American detectives."

During the years that followed, counterfeiting operations and Black Hund murders, extortion and black-mall of all kinds were almost traced to Lupo and Morello—almost. Apparently they worked as far west as Chicago and south to New Orleans, but every time the police or the government agents started-to close in on them, the pair slipped out through some legal loophole prepared in advance.

A few days later, a young Italian named Comita, who claimed to be a printing expert who had been forced to leave Italy on account of participation in a number of Mafia outrages, appiled to Lupo for a position. The recruit was put through a gitting cross-examination, but Flynn had seen to it that he was suppiled with the proper answers to all the questions, and it wasn't long before the secret service had an operative planted in the very heart of the counterfeit plot.

Comito reported that the gang was operating from a small farm near Highland, N. Y., and that thousands of doliars in spurious currency was ready to be released.

Human nature is supposed to be a weak and selfish thing in this age when people are all going selfishly for themselves. But often some one in a moment of emergency ability to perform a noble act courage and devotion. Often it some quiet young person, and it be some slight woman or girl as such acts.

So it nappened one day last summer, when a young New York city miss of 15 years of age Cressa Anderson, while wearing only a bathing suit, ran into burning bungalows at Arverne and saved six children and one woman. Her deed is now recognized by a medal from the Safety Institute of America. The world is still full of latent heroism, and those who live unselfishly in daily life artalikely to rise to the occasion if some fearful emergency comes.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

A WEERA REND.

In several counties in the Burley tobacco district there are a few of the growers who have violated their contract and sold their tobacco on the open market. The Association is going after these ducks, and it will cost them severely, as every one has been sued for five cents per pound and other damages. We can not understand why any man would sign the Co-operative contract and then deliterately violate it in the face of all the warning that has been given. So far no violations of the contract have been reported from Pendleton counts, but we are a little muddled down here over non-pooling tenants raising tobacco on pooled land, and wantiny to divide the crops in the barns.—Falmouth Outlook,

Miss Isabelle Henderson, who die Miss Isabelle Henderson, who died Sunday of pneumonia at her home on Walnut street, bequeathed her home to her neighbor, Mrs. Chas. Peak. A sixty-acre farm on Gunpowder creek over in Boone county was left to the Christlan church of this city. Mrs. Peak had been exceptionally good and kind to Miss Henderson, who, it is evident keenly appreciated favors shown her by this good woman. Miss Henderson was not a member of the Christian church, but attended services there regularly. Personal belongings of Miss Henderson will alvo go to the church.—Ohio County (Indiana) News.

The tobacco market has been fine for the growers in the matter of price at which the weed has been selling, all of which goes to prove that the co-operative plan of marketing is THE THING for the growers of any kind of farm products. Some growers were a little skeptical at the beginning of the co-operative marketing plan movement, but now they see its benefits and are the warmest supporters of the new system of marketing their produce.

CLARK DEFENDS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

FORMER SUPREME COURT JUS-TICE .CITES .GOOD .ACCOM-

Washington, Jan. 25.—Beginning the work for which he resigned a seat upon the Supreme Bench of the United States, Justice Jno. H. Clarko of Youngstown, Ohlo, addressed the initian meeting of the Nonpartisan Association for the League of Nations.

initia meeting of the Nonpartisan Association for the League of Nations.

Justice Clarke made out a powerful case for algreater regard for the existing League of Nations, stating that it had brought about a peaceful settlement of "four as promising prospects of war as the worst enemy of the league could have wished to, see provided to test its usefulness and power, the settlement of the disagree provided to test its usefulness and power, the settlement of the disagree were between Finland and Sweden over the Aaland Islands, the disagree ment between Poland and Lithuania, and dispute between Germany and Poland, and that between Jugooslavia and Albania."

Justice Clarke referred to various standpoints of public men, all of which pointed, he said, toward a belief in a new World War. He quoted General Pershing as urging preparation for another war, Secretary Weeks for a larger Army for the next war, and the President, urging on Congress the survey of a plan to draf, all America's resources for the next war.

Referring to these ideas as show-war.

Referring to these ideas as showing the trend of thought of leaders of American public life, Justice Clarke said:

"If another war is inevitable with the leaders who not join the out the league, why not join the league? Any refuge, any experiment even would he better than to push blindly, helplessly, stupidly forward into the hell of another war."

ISABELLE HENDERSON.

ISABELLE HENDERSON.

Miss Isabelle F. Henderson, second child of James and Julia Henderson, was born in Boone County, Ky., on November 1st, 1853, and departed this life on Sunday morning, January 21st, 1923, after a short illness, aged 69 years, 2 months and twenty days, at Rising. Sun, Indiana.

Miss Isabelle was born on a farm and grew to womanhood on the same farm, moving to Rising Sun about 20 years ago. She passed a happy chibhood with her parents in their Kentucky home, her family being prominent and substantial citizens of that locality.

While Miss Isabelle was not a member of any church, she was a good woman and attended the services of the Christian church of Rising Sun regularly. She was of a gentle and retiring disposition and appreciated every little act of kindness to her. In her girlhood, she attended the Baptist church at Big Bone, Kentucky.

Her parents and sister Amanda McMullen, preceded her in death many years ago and has not been heard from for more than seven years. She leaves no other near relatives, but many close friends who will miss her for her many good qualities.

THE COUNTRY CHILD'S DEVELOPMENT

THE COUNTRY CHILD'S DEVELOPMENT.

There is a great deal of complaint from city schools about the constant loss of energy and health by school children, owing to many social engagements and late hours. These city kids may enjoy this fun, but parents know that they are risking their future and skating on the thin ice of dissipation.

The country children get their enjoyment primarily in out door life and sports. They have pleasant social vocasiomy, but they are not so numerous as to interfere with gork and sleep. As a consequence the average country child attends to his school work better than the average city child, and his health is not hazarded by over excitement and late hours. This is one reason why country children grow up better equipped for life than city children.

FUTURE COUNTRY TOWNS

One of the most hopeful aspects of country life at this time is the rapidly changing attitude of the farming population toward modern methods of agriculture.

The old time American farmer was entitled to the admiration of the world, for the diligence and persistence with which he pursued his way through all discouragements. It he had poor success he nevertheless kept on working patiently and tirelessly. He would conclude if his results were unsatisfactory, that it was due to unfavorable weather, insect pests or some temporary cause that might not recur another year. So with unconquerable faith he kept on planting and harvesting.

It was a splendid spirit, yet it did not have the same business sense that you find in the commercial world. If a business man has bad success, he does not keep digging away at the same old methods. He makes an effort to secure competent advice, and he remedies defects in his operating methods.

The farmer of today is doing that far more than he did a few years ago. If he has a crop failure, he is apt like the business man to make inquiries of his county agent or other expert authority and try to find out where his methods could be improved.

The coming generation of young roots and the thous here were the method of young roots.

out where his methods could be im proved.

The coming generation of young people, when they get farms of their own, have been so trained that they are likely to follow these business methods of farming. If they make failures, they will secure competent advice to help them avoid such losses in the future. The result must be to place the rural industries on a footing more like that of other forms of business.

MODERN ORATORY

Some people think that the art of oractory, on which men have prided themselves in all ages, is dying out Yet there is more public speaking than ever before.

The modern orator not usually swell in glowing periods. He gets down level with his audience and talks in a conversational and business way. Today the after dinner speech and the club address take the place to some extent of the old time formal lecture. It is forten difficult now to sell tickets to a lecture advertised as merely a lecture. But be calling it a smoke talk or serving a supper, you cajole the crowd into hearing good talks.

Most of the community and improvement and business projects are bocated in this way nowadays. Filled the place to some extent of the old time formal lecture. ROAD MAINTENANCE.

The strain upon modern roads in so tremendous and is increasing so fast, that every possible source of revenue must be drawn upon to imerove the highway system. Local taxation alone would place such a heavy burden upon the property along the routes of the highways that it could not bear the load.

States, cities and counties must it could not bear the load.

States, cities and counties must all contribute liberally to the cost of roams are cities must realize that they can not get food products transported cheaply unless the country roads are in good shape. The federal government will have to help toward improving the main lines of travel.

Taxes on gasoline used by the motorist, or upon the individual automobile, are extremely unpopular. But the number of cars has increased so rapidly, that it does not seen as if the highways would ever get to the point where they should be unless the car owners make a considerably increased contribution to the cost of the roads that they are wearing out so fast.

THE MENACE OF WAR

THE MENACE OF WAR

The action of France in seizing a part of the Ruhr valley in Germany is viewed with uneasiness all over the world. Some prophets believe that this act must stir revolt.

As they look at it, it might occur to the soviet chieftinas of Russia that by making common cause with the German people they could upset the dominating power of France, England and Italy. If these powers once get to fighting again, there is no telling when the conflict will end or how far it will go.

But while Germany may have evade the disarrament provisions of the Versailles treaty to some extent, yet it is in no condition to make much war at present. The war making power is a vast machine that calls for a tremendous equipment, and Germany has had to give up most of this equipment.

many has had to give up most of this equipment.

But all the same these powers are acting much like the man who smokes in a powder magazine. The peoples of Europe are in a highly excitable state, depressed by bad conditions and in a mood where there might be temporary outbreaks if not any real war. To settle these disturbed con-ditions calls for hroad statesmanship and conciliation rather than use of force.

and conclusion rather than use of force.

The Germans have committed crimes and astrocities of the greatest enormity. But that does not mean that it is good policy to try to hold them down indefinitely by force. The world must reach some kind of a working agreement with them.

If they are given no incentive to pay for the damage they did, they will never try to pay, and will stall the whole machine hy passive resistance. The United States should exert its influence against extreme policies of force, and try to show France that it will get more out of the Germans if it reaches some voluntary agreement with them.

THE CALLING HABIT

THE CALLING HABIT

It is often a shock to the old generation to find that people do not make social calls as they used to. Such persons mill move into some town where they are strangers, and will feel disgrunted because people do not call on them. If they attend the services of some church they often find fault because the members of the parish do not come to their homes.

The custom of making social calls seem. I ying out salany men dislike it exceedingly. They groam when their wives remark that they owe this or that call. They may have a fairly good time after they have put on their store clothes and have made the necessary visit, but the proceeding appears too formal and starched for them. They would rather go to some club or lodge and play games and talk informally.

The use of the telephone does away with one motive for calling. This is an energetic age and people prefer to do some active thing rather than sit around the sides of room in stuffed chairs and talk.—Exchange.

According to the calendar it will be a month of rain and sunshine, snow and storms.

No Free Seeds, But Bonuses for Sp cial Privilege.

cial Privilege.

In an excess of virtuous economy, the Republican Congress has rejected the provision for the free distribution of seeds among the people, thereby "saving" $360,000—about one one-thousandth of the total annual cost of the government. All the Republican bosses and machinery of both branches of Congress were mistered to the task of accomplishing this big "economy" for the taxpayers.

this big "economy" for the taxpayers.

Almost at the same moment funds were provided for the remodeling of President Harding's yacht, the May-flower, at a cost of about $200,000. A few hours subsequently Senator Smoot introduced a bill—which his Republican fellow bosses have promised to pass for him—to relieve the banks of the cost of shipping silver dollars from the mints to their vaults. This will cost the government at least $15,000 a year.

One one-thousandth of the annual expense of the government is not much to appropriate, even for free seeds. It issn't anything like so vast a sum as one-fourth of the yearly cost of the Federal Government. Yet President Harding and all his Congressional cohorts, including the contingent of "lame ducks," is eager to give the latter sum—$750,000,000.

ships for which the people paid $3,000,000,000.

Two members of President Harding's Cabinet—Secretary Mellon ard Postmaster General Work—are giving aid and comfort to the passays of a "pork aarrel" bill which contemplates the expenditure of more than $100,000,000 on new post offices, courts and other Federal buildings, apparently with the object of parceling them out as rewards or baits where they may de the most good for the Republican party.

The Republican administration seems merely to be niggardly with the people that it may be lavish with Special Privilege.

The Movable School held at the Court House, Friday and Saturday of last week, was the event of its kind ever held in Boone county. The crowdin-attendance the two days were libseral in tuer praise of the instructors or speakers in the able way they presented their subjects, and expressed their appreciation to the College of Agriculture for favoring us with this staff of instructors. All were present as advertised, except Mr. Ralph Kenney, whose wife took suddenly ill, but Dr. R. E. Stephenson handled his subject for him to the satisfaction of all.

Separate meetings were held for men and women during the discussions of Crops and Soils and Home Economics. The ladies had an overflow meeting both days. Miss Enright is a speaker that always pleases and is an authority in her work, and thaldies were well pleased with their meetings.
Coming at this time, perhaps the discussions on poultry by J. R. Smyth were most in demand. Mr. Smyth is well known to the poultry folks in Boone county and is always welcomed either for field work, poultry meetings or in the show room.

The Movable School is new in Boone county, but from the interest shown it will likely become an annual event.

THE RECORD AUTOMO-

THE RECORD AUTOMO-BILE YEAR.

In 1922, for the first time, the number of automobiles manufactured in this country reached the tremendous total of 3,000,000, the total being 2,287,000. Some people will see in such figures an indication that the American people have become extravagant, and will argue that a great many people that have bought cars are not able to run them.

Yet a lot of money that has gone into these cars has been withdrawn from some other form of expenditure. Many people have denied themselves other pleasures in order to purchase these machines.

Probably a good many people did buy cars who could scarcely afford to operate them. Yet in many cases they saved people from paying steam and street car fares. Also they have given people who formerly were tied up closely in homes and shops a chance to get life giving air, and such folks are better fitted to meet the strain of life.

A FAILURE AT FORTY

It has been said by many that a man never comes to himself until he has reached 35 years of age and it is said of Henry Ford that he was a failure at forty, though now he is said to be the richest man in the world and a strong man for next president of the democratic ticket in the coming national election.

The things which we believe count most in the future of any man is what daily progress and improvement he is personally making and that he has not lost nis nerve in the game.

We have known men broke at 60 years of age who were well to do at 80 and who succeeded by their own efforts, a man may have been a financial failure at forty and still have learned the game of life well enough by that time to be able to put on a successful fight and win after that. Some people pull the hill by shifting the gear, changing the occupation and even the territory of action.—Ex.

Slightly more than one-third of the United States has been surveyed by the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture. A little more than half of this area has been covered by detailed surveys showing the extent and distribution of the various soils by types; the rest has ben overed by reconnaissance maps showing the soils in larger groups. There are in some of the Western States large areas of mountainous lands and deserts, where there is no immediate prospect of irrigation or of grazing, and for which there will likely be no need of soil surveys.

The accessile timber of the worldin inadequate to the requirements of modern civilization, says the Forest Service United States Department of Agriculture. We now draw one-third of our paper requirements from Canada. There is an embargo on the export of pulp wood from the crownlands of Canada, and this is ilkely to be extended to all forest lands in the Dominion, completely shutting off the supply of raw material for the paper industry of the United States. This illustrates the hazard of becoming dependent upon foreign supplies of timber, it is pointed out.

STONE MOUNTAIN MEMORIAL.

By carving into the pure granite of Stone Mountain a memorial to-the Southern Confederacy, Americans will attain what the ancient Greeks dreamed of, but never realized, according to Gutzon Borglum, American sculptor, who has undertaken the work as his life's masterpiece.

The mountain, a mile from bast to summit, and the largest solid rock in the world, has been dedicated to the people of the United States for the purpost of perpetually honoring the momory of the Confederacf. Every State hats contributed to a fund of $2,000,000 which is being used in converting the mountain into a memorial that will make the Pyramids, the Colossus of Rhodes, tht Hangig Gardens of Babylon and every other work of man look small in comparison.

Gardens of Babylon and every other work of man look small in comparison.

An army of nearly a thousand men will be carved into the mountain side. Some of the figures will be 'more than fifty feet in height, in full relief, and the features of Lee, Jackson, Johnston and other of the Confederate leaders will be recognizable two or three miles from the foot of the mountain. The appearance of the work when completed will be that of the natural mountain across the surface of which the gray army is silently marching.

The cutting of the memorial was begun early in September and will be completed probably by 1930.

At the base of the mountain a monster hall will be cut as a memor ial to the women of the Confederacy. The hall, 200 feet long, will reach back into the solid granite of the mountain's base sixty feet. The roof will be fifty feet high. The hall will be turned over to the United Daugiters of the Confederacy and will be used as their meeting place and for keeping the documents and mementoes of the Confederacy.

The hall, with its Colonial facade, will typify the Southern home of the sixties.

The cutting of the figures is all being done by pneumatic chisels. An along the perpendicular granite cliff for a distance of 2,000 feet. An air compressor on the top of the mountain furnishes air for the operation of the tools.

Added Profits Predicted

From Standardized Lambs.

Lexington, Ky.—Added profits of from a half to a cent a pound more on improved quality alone this year are in sight for Kentucky farmers and sheep raisers who dock and otherwise alter their spring lambs before sending them to market, according to R. Lambs so standardized have sold all the way from 50 cents to $1.25 a hundred pounds above the top of their market in the last two years. Standardization of all Kentuck lambs going to the market by means of docking and otherwise altering, promises to be equally as profitable this year, in view of the farmer who sends docked wether and ewe lambs to market.

THE CHILD BORN DEAF

It is hard to say which is the greater handicap to a child, total blindness or total deafness. Fortunately, neither congenial deafness nor deafness acquired in Infancy from any disease except meningitis, which destroys the nervous mechanism of sound-wave appreciation, is ever total. Though sufferers may hear no ordinary sounds at a distance of more than a few inches from the ear almost all of them can hear words spoken clearly an inch or two away.

ear almost all of them can hearear almost all of them can hearwords spoken clearly an inch or two away.

People who have to do with the education of deaf children usually classify them according to the age at which the deafness began; those who are born deaf, in which group are included those who become deaf before acquiring speech and intelligence; those who become deaf afterthe age of six and sixteen; and those who become deaf afterthe age of sixteen.

Children of the first class will grow up to be deaf-mutes unless taken in hand early and taught by scientific methods to articulate. Members, of the family should speak to them loud and distinctly close to the ear.
The whole family must be made to realize that here is an opportunity to do great good, and that, if the selfishly refuse to take the trouble to speak loud and distinctly, the child will grow up with the onemously greater handleap of inability to talk properly—and they will be responsible for his condition just *a

DO NOT USE TOO MUCH CRETONNE IN A ROOM

Cretonnes are good, but do not overdo them is the advice of the interior decorators. In a room with a figured wall covering or a patterned rug, even a very attractive cretonne strikes a wrong note. The room shown in the sketch affords a very pleasing effect gained by using a chintz-patterned paper hung in panels, white ruffled curtains and ivory woodwork and furniture. A taupe carpet covering the entire floor is a new touch,

Impressive Statue of Lincoln

The Daniel Chester French 175-ton statue of Abraham Lincoin, in the massive memorial at Washington, compared with a human figure. Reflections on the statue come from streams of bright sunlight pouring between the huge pillars at the entrance of the memorial.

WORLD PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE "GREATEST AMERICAN" For him her old-world moid aside she threw, And choosing sweet clay from the breast Of the unexhausted West, With stuff unitalited, shaped a hero new, Wise, ansatzak in the strength of God, and true

On February 12, everywhere over this country—In its schools and its public gatherings, or in the silent reverence of the hearts of its hurrying throngs—the people pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, on the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary of bis birth. And I think that, almost insatinctively, will come the universal longing that he were with us again today, with his sympathetic understanding of men, kindly philosophy and far-seeing vision, to help guide us through the problems and dangers of the reconstruction period.

But as we do so, we should realize that the reverence we now accord his—alited memory has been the growth of years, and that in his life, fully as much as in his death, he suffered the martyrdom which the world usually accords its saints and seers. It is not Abraham Lincoln which the world usually accords its saints and seers, It is not Abraham Lincoln, with the passing years, has come into a realization of his true greatness, I am reminded, in this connection, of the eloquent words of Brand Whitlock, spoken regarding Lincoln, in 1903, as follows:

"His beautiful dream was not to be. Shrewd, logical realist though he was, nevertheless he was essentially an idealist, and his ideal was too high, too far. Mutual forgiveness, immediate reconcillation, brotherly love, were not for his contemporaries, and their hatred bore its inevitable fruit in the bitter days of reconstruction that followed. Because they could not understand him, the men of his time reviled and ridiculed—him, measured themselves, and, in Judging him, Judged only themselves. Themselves impractical, they thought him impractical, they how as the most practical-of men; thought him ignorant, who was the most practical-of men; thought him ignorant, who was the wises tof men; neered at him as uneducated—him on whom degrees and accors's hoods would have appeared pinchbeck—and ridiculous! As the seenes of the great war receded, as the perspective lengthened and passions cooled, men came to see how great, how mightly, how orig

The place of Abraham Lincoln in history is not only secure, but it is one which will grow from year to year. His name stands first in the Pantheon of this republic, and his star will shine down the vista of the centuries, a guiding light to all who follow. To the cause of liberty and equality, to the nation and all humanity he gave him self in life and death, and a Savior could not do more. That is what constitutes his universal appeal to the common people of all antions and all decades, and that is why we should pause in our busy, work-a-dary world on February 12, to pay our humble tribute to the greatest American.

FREIGHT RATES

The chief obstacle to agriculture oppority is high freight rates and sufficient equipment to move the crops.

The country people should get clearly in mind the principal reason why freight rates do not come down. And that is that the railroad men, through powerful unions, succeed in keeping their wages up to a point about twice as much as they were getting before the war.

PROFITS, POULTRYMEN SAY

Lexington, Ky.—Oone of the sureet ways to make money out of the of Agriculture say. Any farmer that has pullets laying between October in the state now hatch their pullets too late to take advantage of this condition, the poultrymen say.

The average pullet will pay her wife eggs that she lays between October I and January I. Some farmers and poultrymen go so far as to say that if a pullet lays four dozen eggs before the first of the year, she has

REFUGEES.

A bill is before Congress that would admit 75,000 adult Armenian refugees to the country, with 25,000 children. It would be required that adults measure up to the regular standards as to fitness and literacy and that they are required to settle on the land as farmers or farm helpers.

Other people arenot much inclined to let down the bars on immigration, but they can not be indifferent to the heart breaking condition of these pathetic exiles, who have been driven from their homes in the dead of winter. They ought not to be permitted to herd in cities, but it would seem, if this country fails to find moom for a considerable share of them, that it would be guilty of a heartless and cruel act.

Billings, Mont—The spot at the Crow Indian Agency in Montana, where Marshal Foch was initiated into the Crow Indian tribe during his tour of this country in 1921 under the auspices of the American Legion has been named Foch Park by the Crow Jodians in general council.

A letter was written to General Foch asking that Ah-Ba-Ko-Ta Ba-Taga-Chish, or "chief of all warriors" as the Indians call him, send them some fitting memorial to place in the park in his honor. The Indians prefer a captured German cannon as a memorial, it was said. The letter to Found the Crow tribe. Indianapolis, Ind.Joe Sparks, chairman of the American Legion's national rehabilitation committee, has announced that the Knights of Columbus has set aside a fund of $50,000 to be administered by the American Legion in the relief of thousands of tubercular ex-service mea, who have migrated to the South West and who are at present in destitute circumstances.

The fund was authorized following a recent survey of conditions among tubercular veterans made by Claude J. Harris, director of the Legion's national service division, and William J. McGinley, supreme secretary of the Knights of Columbus.

The Legion will provide finances many ex-fighters who have developed tuberculosis since the war. A great many of these men are ineligible for compensation from the United States Veterans' Bureau because their disability has developed at a period later than two years from time of discharge, the Bureau's time limit for compensation from the United States Veterans' Bureau because their disability has developed at a period later than two years from time of discharge, the Bureau's time limit for compensation in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis. "Our survey showed that thousands of ex-service men are flocking to Colorado, California and the stater of the South West, "Mr. Harris said. "Most of these men are in destitute of the South West, "Mr. Harris said." Most of these men are in destitute increased to such an extent them. Legion posts and charitable organizations are attempting to provide for the vetrans, but their number has increased to such an extent that these organizations are unable to care for a large percentage of veterans. The gift of the Knights of Columbus will assist us materially in providing for the War victims."

The store and stock of goods of Robert Skoll, Stewartsville merchant, which was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning of last week, is to be replaced by a bigger and better one according to Mr. Skoll.

Detroit, Mich.—The Michigan department of the American Legion which opened the celebrated Roosevelt Memorial Hospital last year, has again attracted favorable mention by the ex-service men for a new venture. The department is about to establish on a six-are tract about 20 miles northeast of Flint a home for World War orphans.

Several hundred orphaned or dependent children are to be cared for The children will be divided into groups of from six to ten each and every group will be placed in charge of a "mother." "These women will be chosen from among the widows of former service men and they will receive their clothing, food and shelter in exchange for caring for the children. The boys and girls will be kept at the home, to be known as the American Legion Billet, until they are 16 years old.

A large boilding on the tract will be used for quarters until cottage bunalows can be built. Eventually each "mother" and her family of children will occupy a separate cottage. Larger boys in the colony will tend garden patches during the summer and thus provide much of the food for the various families. The Legion will defray all necessary x-penses.

The Billet will be in operation by At the meeting of the Grant County Fiscal Court last Monday it was decided to employ a county farm agent. This step was not taken until after a survey of the county had been made by parties interested and it developed that a great many farmers favored the move. In some sections the sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of a county agent, while in others it was just as strongly against one.

The first suit to condemn property for the right of way for the Dixie Highway was filed Monday. Condemnation proceedings were started against Ira Adams. who demands what the Court regards as an exorbitant price for a few feet of land abutting the highway. Other suits will be filed against all who refuse to accept, what the court considers a reasonable adjustment.

A. B. Renaker, cashier of the Peoples Deposit Bank of Burlington, was a visitor here Monday and drove over to Dry Ridge later in the day to see his mother. Mr. Renaker, who is a former Grant county boy and has one of the best farms in the county, located on the Dixle Highway at Shernan, came up to cede the right of way through his farm for the highway which it is hoped will soon be constructed. His bank reports deposits of $513,750.97.

The Kentucky Children's Home Society will launch a drive in the near future to raise $600,000 to build additional room to the home so they can take proper care of the children now in that institution, and also make room for hundreds of children who are making application to enter the the state, and every community and every citizen should be vitally interested in it. When you are solicited, give liberally, as the money goes direct to help starving and neglected children of your own blood. The home is now in a crowded condition with 185 children. Judge Robert Bingham is President of the Kentucky Children's Home Society.

Circuit Judge J. W/ Stoll, of Lexington, gives this timely warning to farmers in a recent issue of the Lexington Herald. History repeats viself, so read what he says and profit thereby: "Perhaps I am getting old and the conservatism of age has seized hold of me, but remember, tobacco was our king in 1919 and cotton was the monarch of the states south of us. These are valuable and most productive vommodities, but in these days and times kings of the day are paupers of he 'morrow. So while the going is good, let's be cautious. Let's be frugal in our habits. Let's are and lay up for the inevitable 'rainy day.' Let's don't get' cornered again."

The first arrest under the "Road Limit" law in this county was made by Deputy Sheriff Utz, when he ar rested Geo. Hern, driver of a truck belonging to the Plerson Lumber Co.. Cincinnati, fast Thursday for having the truck overloaded. He had on a load of lumber for the new school building at Hebron, the combined weight of truck and load was much greater than the 10,000 lbs., allowed by law. The defendant executed bond for his appearance at the final trial. The road department is insisting that trucks be not loaded in excess of the limits allowed by law.

He had delivered his crop of tobacco—4965 pounds to the pool at Aurora, Indiana, some time ago, for which he received an advance of eight cents.

NOTED LAWYER EXPIRES.

W. W. Dickerson Dies While at Work in His Office--Had Many Friends Hera.

Colonel William Worth Dickerson, one of the best known attorneys in Southern Ohlo and Northern Kentucky, died Jan. 31st in his law office in the Mercantile Library Building, Cincinnati, Ohlo. Mr. Dickerson, who was 71 years old, was 6he father of Assistant United States District Attorney Richard T. Dickerson. He was writing a letter to his brother-in-law, William Thorne, of Eminence, Ky., when stricken, and he fell-forward upon his desk. His stenographer, Miss Mary Donahue, returned to the office a few moments later gad found his body. Dr. J. R. McCleary pronounced Colonel Dickerson to be dead.

Mr. Dickerson was born at Williamstown, Ky., and lived many years in that state, during which time he served in the Kentucky State Senate and later he served two terms as Congressman from Kentucky, succeeding the late John G. Carlisle: He moved to Clincinnati from Kentucky in 1902 and lived at 3971 Beechwood avenue.

During all of the time which Mr. Dickerson lived in Williamstown he moved to Cincinnati from Kentucky in 1902 and lived at 3971 Beechwood avenue.

During all of the time which Mr. Dickerson lived in Williamstown he was an active practitioner and his services were in contant. demand. He was a lawyer of wide repute and practiced in all of the counties of this judicial district. After he left Williamstown and removed with his family to Cincinnati, he continued to practice in the Grant Circuit Court and few terms have been held in law cases.

During his life in Williamstown he was active in the affairs of the town and was one of the organizers of the Grant County Building Loan Association, a concern which did a flourishing business twenty-five years ago. He was liberal in his dealing with his fellow men, was of a genial nature, a ready mixer with his contiluents, an able stump speaker, and his death will be mourned by a large circle of friends throughout the county of his nativity.

Mr. Dickerson is survived by his widow and five children, Richard T. Dickerson, John K. Dickerson, Mistumies Lickerson and Mrs. Robert Black, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Robert Black, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Tuner Loaghborough, Staunton, Va. Funeral services were held at his residence, Cincinnati, Friday afternoon, Feb 2nd, and at his request his body was cremated.

YOUTHFUL AUTO THIEVES

Wednesday night, Jan. 31 Howard Worman, Dan Wenworth and Elmer Nolan, of Cincinnati took from the garage of Vernon Jones, of Walton, its Chevrolet automobile. Mr. Jones discovered that his car was-stolen ir less than one hour after the thee and called Deputy Sheriff Thomas Pereival, who together with Sheriff Hume notified surrounding towns of the theft by telephone, and before midnight the automobile, had been returned to its owner and the thieves arrested who were all under 15 years of age. They were brought to Burlington Thursday morning and a prellminary hearing was had before the County Judge who paroled them, putting them in charge of teachers at St. Xavier College, Cincinnati.

YOUTH AND STYLE.

The average man today does not seem to care much about styles of clothing, and he buys what his favorite store hands out to him without much question. But the young crowd have a keen seent for style changes. In many of the college towns, particularly where there are many stricularly where there are many stricents from wealthy families, you see these rapid changes in clothing styles sweep through the student body. In a short time they will take up some new fact that is favored by the smart dresses, until it seems almost like a uniform.

The boys who but a few years a yound hardly be persuaded to take baths and keep themselves decently clean, will now adjust their hats and necktles before the mirror with carryla scrutiny. All this may be considered rather dudish. But when you considered hather dudish. But when you consider how he later years many men become careless abot i dress and neatness, it is just as well that these fellows start out with the idea that personal appearance is an important. element in life.

A Kentucky farmer was called "a

A Kentucky farmer was called "a crank" by a Kentucky newspaper, and entered suit for heavy damages, which the jury in the case would not award. Soma people never know whan they are being complimented. To call a man "a crank" is really to pay him a high compliment. A man never amounts to much in any line of human endeavor unless he becomes "a crank" Cranks move the world just as cranks move grindstones.—Exchange.

BOYS WHO GO WRONG

The will of John Wanamaker suggests that some portion of his estate maf be used for erection of a home in Philadelphia for boys who have ocmunited offenses. It was his idea that some further ecort ought to be made to reclaim such boys before they are shut up in penal institutions.

Probably half of the penal institutions.

Probably half of the penal institution where each one was given a chance to take up some activity along the line of his ability, would sare the majority of them from a life of crime. Mr. Wanamaker has grasped a noble idea which already is being successfully worked out in many places.

PLANT A GARDEN

One of the advantages of country town life 'is that almost everybody can have a garden. There is usually land enough on house lots or if not, a little garden space can be secured close by. The gardening habit will enable the people to avoid å large element of costs that city people have to pay. It promotes vigorous physical condition, and modern health experts feel that an abuniance of green vegetables are a worderful addition to the diet.

People have not gained the full benefit and enloyment of country life unless they have their vegetables, growing in their back yard. Those who have acquired the gardening habit find there is a fascination in dealing skillfully with vegetable culture, and a sense of triumph in making nature serve your table fruitfully.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT.

One of the most notable features of rural development during recent years is along the line of town planning. This partly follows the movements for better city planning as seen in larger places, and yet is broader in that it weeks to consider all the needs of a town and planfor them.

The country town of former years was a haphazard and unorganized assemblage of people who happened to live near together, yet who did not consider their civic and business needs in any systematic way.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES

People sometimes think that they get much greater advantages for self improvement by moving to the cities. They look at the great city libraries, and think what a wonderful time they will have among all those books.

But if they move to such acity, they often find that it takes them + 1 long to visit such a library and take books from it, that they rarely avail themselves of the privileger. In the country, they exchange books and magazines with intima of friends, and can have all they can read of the best literature for a quarter of what they are likely to pay for street car fares in the city. It is the country people today who are doing the best literary study.

"They can not leave their elections to the dictation of a few. They can not leave the holding of office merely to self-seekers. They must be prepared to make the satrifices, to eadure the discomforture and the misrepresentation, the loss of business opportunity required by being a candidate for and holding publioffice."

With statistics at hand showing that more than half of the electorate (almost twenty-eight million) did not vote in the last election, the highest officers in the Government are urging a better and more conscientious effort to discharge the first duty of citizenship. It is well realized that a people deserve the kind of government they get, and that only through a program of education as to the patriotic duty of voting intelligently can the government adequately reflect the popular will. It is emphasized that while this Government is one erected by the consent of the governed, it was never-intended that such consent should be literally not only of the people and for the people, but by all the people antitled to a vote.

was a haphazard and unorganized assemblage of people who happened to live near together, yet who did not consider their civic and business needs in any systematic way, and did not form arranged plans to meet those needs.

The future country town will plan for its growth. It will lay out spaces for parks and playgrounds and school house lots that are going to be needed, and it will take them aside while they can be had for little money.

It will study its own needs thoroughly, and it will lay out programs of achievement which it hopes to realize. If it needs better schools, better roads, better transportation, improved systems of co-operation, and more scientific education among farmers, etc., its organizations with the considerable program that a live, country town could expect to accomplish, and then it will work with united energy toget those things done.

In the effort for improvement, there must always be some disappointments and failures. But the town that sets certain people to work to accomplish certain well defined ends, is going to come a greated an earer accomplishing those gains than the old time country town which just drifted along without effort to improve civic conditions or secure better industrial and business methods and facilities.

Today the feeling in wealthy farilies is quite different. In secol and when they get through, it is generally customary for them to seek sonc their father's business.

Most wealthy men today realize that in a certain way it is a handicap to a fellow to be born rich. They feel that such a boy does not get the

that he needs, and he tends to become soft and effeminate. Many men

PRUNK IN HOTEL ROOM

Frankfort.—There is nothing in the statute making it a misdemeanor to be drunk in a room in a hotel, said the Court of Appeals in reversing the penitentiary sentence imposed on Ben Lewis by the Harlan circuit court who was convicted of carrying concealed a deadly weapon after being arrested on the charge of drunkness. Lewis was arrested while occupying a room in a hotel in Harlan, the afresting officer testifying that the took Lewis into custody because he was "drunk" but upon searching him discovered that he had concealed on his person a deadly weapon. He was indicted and convicted of the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons which the court held was illegal for the reason that Lewis' arrest for "drunkness" was unauthorized, there being nothing: in the statute making it a misdemeanor to hodrunk in a room in a hotel.

Passing of A. P. Sandford.

Kenton county lost one of its best known pioneer citizens, Friday Fed. 2nd, in the death of A. P. Sandford, 92, Confederate soldier, who died at his residence on the Dixie Highway, Automobilists along the Dixie Highway, throughout the summer months of the year, will miss the familiar figure of this aged citizen, whose custom it was to wave greetings to travelers as he sat on the front veranda of his home.

Seven years ago Mr. Sandford suffered a bone disease—which caused his left leg to be amputated. The disease later spread to his other leg, and that also had to be removed. The aged soldier bore his suffering with fortitude.

He was a son of the late Alexan-

Mr. Sandford was a cousin of the late Albert Berry of Newport, who represented the Sixth district in Congress.

He was also a relative of the late Jorn L. Sandford, former Covington banker. William Sandford, police lieutenant, and Thomas W. Sandford, Covington real estate agent, also are relatives.

Six daughters, Misses Kate, Mary, Camilla, Alice, Fannie and Marie Sandford, and one son, Alexander Sandford, survive him.

The funeral of Mr. Sandford was held Monday afternoon from the residence on the Dixle Highway at 2 o'clock. Burial was in Highland cemetery.

THE CLOSING DAYS

OF CONGRESS
The 67th Congress is approaching the close of its term, and as usual there will be a tremendous scramble of contending interests and factions to get their pet legislative projects passed. As usual there will be many disappointments, and many will feet that the legislators have failed to perform the tasks that the people want done.

The fundamental difficulty with all congresses has been that the country is so big and there are so many conflicting interests and demands to be reconciled that it takes a high grade of statesmanship for this tack. Sometimes the people seem to prefer politicians to real statesmen.

The Congressmen accomplish the fer politicians to real statesmen.

The Congressmen accomplish the mest where they try to be something more than mere errand boys for their constituents. If some of them would think a little less about the general problems for their home folks, and a little more about the general problems of economics and business, it would help promote the national welfare.

BURLEY CHECKS TO BE SENT THIS WEEK.

pacco Co-operative Hopes to Get 1921 Final Payment in Mails Wednesday, Says Secre-tary Earley.

Lexington, Ky.—News from Lexington is to the effect that checks for the final distribution to the members of the Burley Tobacco Grower? Co-operative Association on their 1921 crops will be mailed this week. Secretary and Treasurer H. Lee Earley planned to get them out by Wednesday.

ley planned to get them out by Wednesday.

Reports from a number of counties of the district to the effect that the old Burley Tobacco Society has been sending out some checks for small amounts to its members, causing corfusion in the minds of the growers, some of whom think these checks are from the Burley Cooperative, have been received at the Association offices.

"We have not mailed any of our checks," said Secretary Earley, "but we hope to have them in the mails by Wednesday. We should have mailed them ten days or two weeks ago had not a number of members of our office force been stricken with the prevailing influenza. We have worked eighteen hours a day most of the time for the past month, and in two shifts of employees for the past two weeks og et these checks out. The growers have been wonderfally patient, but I want them to know the reson for the delay and to understand that we have done all possible to get their money to them."

The brides who get a plece of rice lodged in their eye by wedding celbrators, will perhaps be convinced to a belief in quiet home weddings.

Somechildren when they get about about half way through school, become convinced that there is danger of learning too much.

It is not probably true that the politicians are sinking the people's maney, as most likely they are only tying wings to it.

BLOW TO SHEEP RAISERS.

Lexington, Ky. — Unfavorable weather conditions, caused by the sudden drops and rises in temperature which have been experienced this winter are apt to deal a hard blow to sheep raisers of the state during the lambing season, now at its height in almost every part of the state, experienced sheepmen say. One cold night that comes as a surprise may mean the loss of several new-born lambs in a single flock.

Even though a lamb may become chilled, there is always hope for its recovery as long as there is a sign of life, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture. One of the best ways to revive a hadly chilled lamb is to put all but its head in a bucket of water as warm as the bare elbow can stand. As the water becomes cool, hot water should be added to maintain the temperature. The purpose of this bath is to start the blood circulation, hence the lamb should be taken out as soon as it becomes somewhat lively. Just as soon as it is taken out of the water, the young animal should be rubbed briskly with a towel until dry and then fe and placed in a warm spot for its sleep.

Some idea of what it is possible to do with an ordinary Kentucky mountain orchard handled by practical methods was outlined to Kentucky farmers and their wives here today by F. O. Clark of Berea, who appeared on the programme of the eleventh annual Farm and Home-Convention at the College of Agriculture in Lexington, last week to tell what has orchard in the northern edge of Rockcastle county.

The orchard, which contains 150 acres of Todinary, thin, rough mountain land, was bought ten years ago at an average price of $23 an acro-One-half of the land was set in apple and peach trees, last year yielding 5,000 bushels of fruit. Hogs, sheep and clover crops have been used to bring the soil up to a point where it is now productive orchard land.

The total cost of the orchard up to the present time is around $50 an acre, this cost being only one-fourth of the present value of the orchard, Mr. Clark said. He said that the orchard was pruned once each year and sprayed three or four times annually.

Advertising makes throesible for him to sell around $10,000 worth of fruit right in the orchard each year, Mr. Clark told the farmers and shoir wives. Last year approximately 76 per cent of the crop was sold in this manner, a total of 400 automobiles having brought purchasers to the orchard.

having brought purchasers to see orchard.

Mr. Clark intends to develop this method of marketing in view of the fact that he finds people enthusiastic about getting their fruit fresh from the trees. The average price received for peaches in the orchard last year, containers not included, was $1.25 a bushel, he said.

Misses Lucy Newman and Lilliaf Bristow, of Union neighborhood, were visitors to Burlington, Tuesday. These young ladies were here in the interest of a pike from Union to the Rice cemetery, and what success they had before the Fiscal Court we did not leism, but they claim from the work they have done they are entitled to some help. While in town they made the Recorder office a pleasant call. It would ea bard matter for the members of the court to tura down an appeal for help from these two handsome young ladies. Since the above was put to type we understand the young ladies appeal had the desired effect, and the court agreed to furnish the remainder of the funds to domplete the proposed pike.

Since the appearance of the ground-hog on the 2nd inst., there has been quite a "Katy Did and Katy Didn't" argument among the citizens of this part of the country as to whether his hog-ship, saw his shadow or not, but the weather last Sunday morning was decidedly in ... vor of the "Dids."

Notwithstanding the man at the head of Cincinnati Weather Bureau in last Saturday's Enquirer, says: "The ground-hog did not sage his shadow yesterday and that if there is anything in the weather lore of "ye olden time" Cincinnatians can depend upon it that there will not be six weeks more of winter weather. "There were a few minutes of hazy sunahine sarly this morning."

Mr. Daveraux said. "It might have been light enough to throw a very leen light enough to throw a very leen light enough to throw a very feint shadow, one you or I, or any body with keen eyes might have seen. But I don't believe the ground-hog, coming out of his dark hof's and with his vision dimmed by his long winter's sleep, could see well enough to detect his shadow the lew minutes he was out."

Rubber heels now are on 60 out of each 100 pairs of shoes worn by men. Such is the estimate going the rounds in the shoe industry. It is not surprising if you have noticed how many men wear rubber heels. But maybe you remember back only a few years when rubber heels were unusual.

What brought them into popularity?

when rubber heels were unusual.
What brought them into popularity?
ADVERTISING.
Three-fourths of the rubber heels sold are for men's shoes. This is because most of the advertising habeen directed at men.
One of these days some wise manufacturer of rubber heels will notice this.—Then he'll call in the advertising man and his staff of writers and artists. Campaigns will follow. And soon women will be wearing just as many rubber heels as men.
It's all a matter of advertising—the most powerful force in the sale of goods.
Our present standard of living is largely the creation of advertising. For advertising creates the demand, makes people want the thing advertised. When the lure becomes powerful enough, they hustle about and get the money to obtain what they want.
Advertising thus spure sales. It also stimulates production—both of the things advertised and the things that have to, be done on a bigger that have to, be done on a bigger.

Advertising thus spure sales. It also stimulates production—both of the things advertised and the things that have to, be done on a bigger scale to obtain money for purchasing advertised wares.

There is a new thought for you—that advertising is a definite agency of production. Most of us have been thinking of it merely as a medium of salesmanship.

Advertising is what is making us buy.

Advertising is what is enabling us

Advertising is what is enabung uv to buy.

It creates the demand. And the demand induces us to work harder to get the money to spend. If all advertising were abruptly discontinued, the American standards of living would quickly drop to the levels of grandpa's day.

The letters said that the dealers have arranged to obtain their milk elsewhere and will, not take milk from the producers as long as they are members of the Co-operative Association.

Arrangements have been made by the Association to take all this distress milk and all producers who are members of the Association and are members of the Association and are members of the Covington plant. Operations of the latter are progressing satisfactority and the opening last week has resulted in large increases of customers from the Northern Ky. cities.

KENTUCKY'S NEXT GOVERNOR.

"Congressman Cantrill of the 7th Kentucky district has announced has candidate, for Governor. It is an honorable ambition and he has a perfect right to run for the office. He is 52 years old, has been a member of both houses of the legislature and served 14 years in congress, it ways giving President Wilson his loyal support and is one of the best organizers in the state.

But his candidacy does not suit the Courier-Journal, Louisville Peat Shelby News, Elizabethtown News and a few others who attacked him before he even announced. For the last two months these journals have used yards of space in advocating was only a politician and that if nominated and elected Governor he would use the office to get another. What is this modern business Colosus that is going to put flour in our bird with these better-than-their-party editors are going to elect Governor of Ky. Why don't they name him They denounce Cantrill and every other candidate thus far announced as wholly unft for the place but do fot name their beau-ideal, If it budge Bingham why not let the Democrats know it? What they want, is not so much a business man as a reactionary that has about as much use for democracy as the devil for holy water. There are 452,000 democrats in Kentucky who voted for James M. Cox for President, and it is their right to say who shall be the mext Governor of Kentucky and now tright of a few self-constituted political bosses."

The above from the Midway Clipper should furnish food for thought to some people who are not trying to run politics as well as to some self made leaders. The Metropolitin press has urged for months some dark horse for Governor and at the same time filled their columns with fault finding of Congressman Barkley and Congressman Cantrill who had the temerity to announce for the proud position of Standard Bearer for the great office of Governor of the greatest State in the Union, Upon what mean three filled their columns with fault finding of Congressman Barkley and Congressman Cantrill who had the temerity to a Confidence.

There are good things in store for us in 1923 if we know how to work and look for them. Aside from the foreign situation there is little in the conditions outside of business that will prevent the continuance of good business; should a check defelop, it will be due to conditions developed within itself.

In many ways this will be a critical year, a year where effective management, sales efforts, better salesmen, more intensive training, harder and more conscientious work will be necessary.

Loung the inflation years when business fairly elbowed its way invour factories, offices, stores, and farming sections, there was a tendency to slacken on those qualities now needed. Under such conditions it was quite natural that a change, should take place. It was natural that people should try to "get by with as little effort as possible, to form extravagant habits, for price to jump, for wages to advance and efficiency to recede. It was natural for people after turning many of our good old-fashioned, sound principles topsy-turvy, to experiment with them and try them out.

Many are anxiously—asking the question. A lot of just urificism could rightfully be heaped upon the shoulders of anyone who would have the courage to give a definite answer. There are still too many unsolved problems. The first few months, however, seem to be quite firmly established. There are nevertheless sufficient forces at work to mage business adopt a cauctious attitude.

During the year, business will be good or bad as we choose to make it. As has been ably said, "The people will make the people" Those conditions which might octied as favorable to continued prosperity can be listed as semployment almost universal throughout the country; industries running at capacity, or nearly so; money and credit plentiful; commodity prices firming; torder hooks filling; purchasing power of the farmer increasing: Irraportation in the shall be a supported by the same old-fashioned perserpition that has been used since the beginning; two parts bommon

LONG KNOWN AS THE DAY OF HEARTS AND LACE

"For this was on seynt Valentines day, Whan every bird cometh ther to choose his mate."—Chauce.

The old notion was that birds began to choose their mates in February.

They Marcus Aurelius Flavius Claudius had a bishop of the church put to denth on 14 February, seventeen hundred and fifty-two years ago. The bishop became a martyr and a saint and because his name was Valentinus-February 14 became his day, St. Valentine's day.

It is easy to find some satirical significance in the superposition on the calendar of these days, the bishop's and the bird's. It takes something of the courage of a Christian martyr to publicly choose a mate.—They used to draw lots on St. Valentine's eve, the young men and the young women gathered together, making merry. And it is safe to suppose that when a young man was not pleased with his lot,—he made—sereastle resnarks,—until to occurred to him to transfer his bitterness—into drawings which garacted the crossed eyes or the straight hair or the ugly expression of the unlowed one. Having vented his own wrath, he could then show it to her, thus spoiling the evening for both of them, but possibly satisfying the "grouch" that at some seasons af flicts-even lovers.

It's a fortunate thing that the people who start customs which are, to last until the planet cools, have no notion of what they are starting. Fancy poor old Valentine's dismay as he ascended to the stake, if he had realized that his hame would be taken in vain by every young man making ansorous advances to a-young woman—along in the early spring—"I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really saying was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really asyling was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really asyling was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really saying was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really saying was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really saying was, "I am your walentine," not known; that what he was really saying wa

"The Catholic Encyclopedia" tells us that at least three different St. Valentines, all of them martys, are mentioned in the early martyrologies under the date of February 14. One is described as a priest at Rome, another as Bishop of Internantia (the modern Terni), and these two seem both to have suffered in the second half of the Third century, and to have been buried on the Flamenion Way, but at different distances from the city of Roma. Of both of these St. Valentines some sort of Acta are preserved, but they are of relatively date date and of no historical value, Of the third St. Valentine, who authered in Africa with a number of companions, nothing further is known.

Addition to National Shrines

Next to Mount Vernon, the house most closely associated with Georgs Washington is the famous colonial mansion, Kenmore, in Frederickaburg, Va., where a relative, to whom he was very much devoted, had her home, and where he met his future bride and many of the nation's founders. The house has been in difficulties, having been occupied by a negro family after the Civil war, but now it is to be set aside as a national shrine, as was Mount Vernon. Kenmore is considered one of the finest examples of colonial architecture in the country.

GAVE WASHINGTON TO THE NATION

The noisy marved a design of the series when the series were series with a series of himself, in subjection only to his conscience. The English historian says that "no nobler figure ever stood in the forefront of a nation's life." Thackeray's tributes to him are familiar. All who have studied the character and work of this great man agree that there was in him nothing of the self-secker, nothing reven of ambition—except in that noble sense in which all good men are ambitions. Much he undonbtedly owed to the character with which he was born, and to his inheritance, but much he also owed to discipline. He had, schooled himself to generosity in victory, patience in defent, and in that finepess of soul which safeguarded him against the blandishments of power. Washington's fame grows with the years, and shines ever more brightly. He was a strange figure to be cast up out of a revolution. Demagogues or tyrants are usually the fruit of such uphenvals. Perhaps the difference between him and other revolutionary leaders—or some of them—reflects in a measure the difference between aur revolution and other revolutionary Ag any rate it was the happy furture of our country, and of the world, that this nation was ted during the perilums slays of the Revolution and of the formative period by a man who loved order and institutional liberty, and who covered for America Suly the longer of intyclolug and of service to the world.

HAPPY FORTUNE THAT, URGED SUPREMACY OF LAWS

Significant Paragraphs That Are Found in Washington's Famous Farewell Address.

For many years there was a disposition to think of Washington as good-man, but not a great one. This year prevailed even in this country to a very considerable extent. But it is no longer held by those who are best informed, for Washington is greatness is now everywhere exhowiseled. It would be dillicult—perhaps impossible—to polit to a more completely rounded character. John Fiske has shown that he was a great military commander. Of the fine quality of Washington is statesmanship there can be no question. He was a patriot-without even the suspicion of a tain of lingolam. He thought of his country not as something to be bragged about, but to be served.

The law of service was, one may almost say, the fundamental law of the life of Washington. He newer sought office, and never desired it. One can not imagine him suggesting—or consenting to—legislation, in order to win votes. The first President's moral courage was perhaps his most striking trait. He resisted every effort on the part, of politicians and people alike to force the nation into war with Shapiand on the side of revolutionary France. One may faintly imagine to a suggestion that he could win votes by going to war, and would lose them by staying out. Not often has there been a more accurate characterization of a man than Lowell's of Washington, "Where the tol turks that you sell left for most of the man race, non choose, where most Machanistration and the nansver popular ends dusprace."

The problem still for us and all of human race, non choose, where most Nor, ever failared 'neath the load Of petty cares, that gall great hearts the most.

TYPHUS FEVER

Typhus fever prevails to an alarming extent in Eastern Europe and in Asia Minor. Occasionally too it invades Central Europe, and consequently some Americans are afraid that immigrants from Poland and other countries where the people are starving and miserable may bring it to this country in spite of our careful quarantine. As a matter of fact, it already exists in mild form hin New York City and in other large cities, but fortunately the form, which is called Brill's disease, beldom or never changes its character and becomes malignant typhus.

Typhus occurs chiefly among peo-which is caused brills or careas, when can becomes malignant typhus.

Typhus occurs chiefly among people who are herded in squalid quarters and whose powers of resistanchave been weakened by privation. Formerly it was called ship fever, jail fever and camp fever, which shows eloquently enough what the conditions were a century ago in ships and jails and army camps. Tho typhus has all the characterictics of a germ disease, as yet the causative agent has not been definitely determined. We know, however, that there mined we know, however, that there must be such an agent; observation shows that the disease occurs in persons who are bitten by vernin that come from the bodies of the sick.

The-first symptoms, which usually declare themselves in about two weeks after exposure, to infection, are severe headache and fever. Prostration occurs early; the mind is clouded, and the face has a dusky hue. The rash begins as dark, pink spots on the body limbs; many of the spots rise in the form of pimples and soon are the seat of an effusion of blood that stretches out in streaks from the centre. In mild cases when bleeding into the skin does not occur the eruption fades in three or four days but in severe cases it lasts for eight or ten days or even longer.

The fever itself lasts from 10 days to two weeks and is steady, it does not show the zigzag rise and fall of typhoid. When recovery begins the temperature falls rapidly to normal, sometimes in a few hours. Bronchitis occurs so often with the disease that it seems to be really a part of it. Delirium is frequent and often is mild and suicidal. If care is taken to free the patient and his surroundings from vermin and to bake his clothing, there is no danger that the disease will spread to the attachants. There is no certain cure for typhus fever, but when properly nursed about three out of every four patients recover.

MAN CATTLE FEEDERS USING TOO MUCH MEAL

USING TOO MUCH MEAL

Lexington, Ky.—Overfeeding of cottonseed meal is one of the biggest mistakes being made at the present time in the winter fattening of beef cattle in Kentucky, Wayland Rhoads, beef cattle specialist of the College of Agriculture, told livestock men of the state at the recent eleventh annual farm and home convention held at the colleye. Some instances have been found where as high as six and eight pounds of the meal were being fed each day to a ferage size steer, this amount being about double the amount that should be fed for the cheapest gains. Using too much cottonseed meal is one of the main reasons why it costs ome farmers and feeders from $15 to $40 to put 100 pounds of gain on their steers while other farmers are getting the same gains for from $6 to $14.

Many feeders make the mistake to $14.

Many feeders make the mistake of feeding cottonsted meal with corn after their steers get on grass. The use of meal under these conditions is unnecessary as corn alone and grass make a much better and cheaper feed during the first part of the summer grazing season for steers that are to be marketed as fat beef by July.

As a general

y July.

As a general rule, cattle that are be put on the market after July ill not make good use of extra rain except where pastures are ry short, Mr. Rhoads pointed out. owever, the feeding of grain when is steers are on grass should be racticed if the animals are the hearketed during the early part of summer. A plain picture frame painted or stained and fitted with handles makes a lovely tray. If one has a piece of Chinese embrodiery brocade or a qualar old priot to put underneath the giase. A coffee can covered with tapeatry or cretonne edged with gold braid and topped with a colored giase ring for a handle forms an attractive cake or candy box. The powder dish is made of a grapefruit glass covered with gold net. The curtain pulls are easily made.

While overfeeding of cotton seed meal has proved to be one of the big profit cutters in the state, the use of the silo, for either winter fattering or the carrying of steers over winter to be fattened on grass, has been one of the big factors in economical cattle feeding in the state, Mr. Hhoads added, Despite this fact, the silo is not used nearly as widely as it should be by Kentucky cattle feeders. Not more than five per cent of the state's corn crop goes instead of t

Washington is expected to be the first of the 48 states to make definite plans to wife out all bovine tuberculture. The commissioner of agriculture. The commissioner of agriculture and the state veterinarian have planned a state-wide program that will be presented to the legislature in January. The governor is understood to be in favor of the plan, and there is every reason to believe that sufficient money will be appropriated so that with the co-operation of the department of the state will be tested within a reasonable time.

The light infection of the cattle herds in the state is and the fact that most of the cattle already have been tested within a reasonable time. The light infection of the low percenture of the cattle already have been tested make the outlook particularly promising. An indication of the low percenture of tuberculosis was found in Spokane county this summer. The veterinarian in charge tested 463 herds, containing 2,754 animals, and condemned only 4.

receiving of all tobacco from members of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, has been postponed and no tobacco will be received by the Association until further notice.

The continued wet weather for the past few weeks has cause acco to get in an exceedingly high case and practically all the tobacco that is being delivered now should be hung up in the tier by the far mer and allowed to dry out and come into case again. When tobacco in as high order as this is prized in in the hogshead it practically ruin it, and causes us to have to lower it from one to two grades, which neans a tremendous loss to the farmers who owns such tobacco

It may mean some delay to the growers but the temporary incom venience will be ten times more than offset by the prevention eavy monetary loss that would result from the continued deliver of tobacco in too high order, as at present.

Hold all tobacco booked to be received the coming week. When we sume receiving, it will be received in the order already booked, so that nc grower will lose his rights by the delay. The time of the resumption of delivery will be announced thru the newspapers.

See that your tobacco is in proper condition before you deliver it, s. can not be received if wet or in too high case.

How God Restores

By REV. LEW W. GOSNELL
Assistant Dean, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

To und another had filled her had for her had filled her had for her had filled her had for her had few gone away.

The late Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman used to tell this story to illustrate God's graclous way of restoring his erring saints. In our text we have one of the kreat scriptural examples of such graclous restoration, from which all may take comfort.

Christ inquires of Peter, "Simon, son of Joans, loyest thou me more than these?" Peter had protested that though all others might forsake Christ, he would never leave Him. But he had shown, too adily, that he did not love bis Master "more than these." How Christ's question must have rebuked him! And in his reply it is to be noted that all the old spirit of bonsting is gone and there is no claim to love Christ more than others love Him.

Some Searching Questions.

Peter's humility is shown in another way. In Christ's question, the word used for love, in the original, indicates an unselfish love which expects to return—the love of friendslip. When Peter replies, he uses a lower word for love, indicating a personal, clinging affection which seeks return. In other words, he has ceased to boast of his love, not only as to quantity, but also as to quality. He only dares to assert he is fond of Jesus! Moreover, the third time Jesus inquired as to Simon's, love, He used the same word, in the original, which Peter had been using, as if to say: "Are you sure you have even this lower kind of love, that you are even fond of """ No wonder Peter was grieved when Christ said unto him third time, "lovest thou me?" He can only reply: "Lord, thou knowes that I love thee." Peter feels he has so failed in showing his love that only his Lord, who knows all things, can see it!

But let us nos, lose sliph of the gree underlying the searching questions to christ. There had Peter de-see it!

But let us not, lose sight of the grace underlying the searching questions of Christ. Thrice had Peter debied Him in public, and he is here given the privilege of thrice publicly confessing Him.

But our text deals not only with Peter's confession, but also with his commission, "Feed my-ambs." Indeed, after both the second and third confessions, Christ says: "Feed (R. V. tend) my sheep." These are the lamba and sheep for whom the Greit Shepherd died. What a great evidence of His love for Peter, and of the confidence He reposes in the acce erring disciple, that He will commit to his care those who are so precious to Him 1 Christ had said to Feter behave the feet has been converted, or turned, and knows als swn weakness, he is preparing to help others. It has been beautifully said: "When they are converted, the will be been beautifully said: "Whistorought to nothing, He can use us in our nothingness, and when He can use us, It has been beautifully said: "When thou said supprediated. After the third confession, Jesus said: "When thou weat young thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest hut when thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not." John explains: "This spoke he, signifying by what death he should giorify God." Tradiction tills us that Peter was caucified head downward, since he did not feel worthy to be upright on his cross as was his Lord. Not all would cover tuch a death, but it is to be recailed that Peter had boasted of his willing neas to die for Christ and then had miserably failed. How he must have appreciated the opportunity of making good even at this point!

The nun in the story only got back her position, but Peter was advanced from being a shepherd of the flock of God, who shall receive the "crown of giory," and a martyr, who shall receive the "crown of giory," and a martyr, who shall receive the "crown of giory," and a martyr, who shall receive the "crown of giory," and a martyr, who shall receive the "crown

Peace In The Coal Fields
It was good news for the American people that a peace agreement had been signed between bitumin ous coal operators and miners in three leading coal producing states, which probably means that an agreement will be reached in other localities where a strike was threatened. Thus one of the greatest menaces against American prosperity for 1923 has been removed.

There will not be full satisfaction with the agreement that has been reached. It does not provide the cheaper coal for which the people are clamoring.

But wages are only one factor in the high price of coal, and the public can not take any positive steps toward better conditions in this industry until the federal coal commission makes its report. If that body offers a plan for reorganization that seems rational, the public should insist that the same be accepted by all parties, and it should use all the powers of the government to accomplish that result.

Plash that result.

Prosperity In Steel.

It is generally considered that when the steel milk one of the property. Such conditions a run of prosperity. Such conditions getting more orders than they can fill.

Good times in this industry ought to promote confidence in severy line of trade in Kentucky. These who still others, so that sometimes nearly all the players on both teams soon

In saving money for their members, successful cooperative associations usuallyperform a variety of services, including better grading and handling to get higher quality and more uniform products; sale on the Nasis of grade so that the grower having products of high quality is rewarded; selling in large loss; gathering crop and market information: furnishing expert salesmanship; bargaining m ore effectively than can the individual grower; finding new markets and expanding old ones, and using better business methods.

The product to be handled and the local conditions play a leading part in determining the plan of organization of a cooperative association is to decide whether or not conditions of a cooperative association is to decide whether or not conditions ver favorable. The Divine Element In Conversion •

By REV. C. P. MEEKER rector of Practical Work Cour Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

The great George Wilitefield was nee asked why be, preached so often on the necessity of the new birth His short and sufficient reply was "Becaus oy you nust be borr again." The text expresses clearly new life of faith in Christ, the soul stands in need of a distinct transformation of life called a new birth. We enter this life by birth; our entraince upon eternal life must be preceded also by a birth. Sin has effaced in man both the moral and spirtual image of God. The new birth restores both. This is the uniform testimous of Scripture. The best that will.

The parable of the sower aptly ilmatrates this. Therein four kinds of soil are represented, in three cases the soil is inhospitable. In one case
the soil is inhospitable. In one case
the soil is inhospitable. In one case the soil good. But even here it does not germinate the seed nor create iffe within it. It only receives it, for which it has the capacity and formishes a hospitable environment in which it may develop and grow. The interpretation of the parable as generally given reats of the soil as the Word of God. It is therefore the plant ing of the Living Word in the heart (which has the capacity to receive it and furnish a hospitable environment for its development) that results in the reproduction of the moral and spiritual image of God. This recept tion of the Living Word into a heart is definite, and more or less clearly marked in the experience of the individual, being accompanied often by as positive a crisis as when a child is born into the world.

In His talk with Nicodemus (John 3:5), Christ gives us the one instrument, the Living Word, and the one active agent, the Hoiy Spirit, in effecting the wonderful transformation called the new birth. These divine elements of conversion are expressed in other connections, as for instance.
"That He might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the Word" (Eph. 5::26); "Being born noi of corruptible seed, but of incorrupttible, by the Word of God, which liveth and ablieth forever" (I Peter 1:23); and "According to His mercy He saved us, by the washing of regeneation and the renewing of the Holy Ghost" (Titus 3:5).

Whenever, therefore, the Spirit is mentioned in connection with water it signifies the Spirit of God operating in and through the Word. To be born therefore, of water and of Spirit, is the New Testament way of saying that the Divine Spirit is the active agent, and the reservence of the soul. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the fiesh profiteth noth respirit, and they are life" (John 6:63).

dure the words I speak unto you the are spirit, and they are life" (Joh 6:63).
"Here then from headquarters w

"Here then from headquarters we have a statement that HIS Words are very spirit and life; that HIS Word and Spirit are instrument and agent in the lamense work of creating a new nature for the believer." "In the new birth, then, the Word of God it the seed; the human heart is the soil; God by HIS Spirit opens the heart to receive the seed; the heart believes the Spirit quickeus the Implanted seed into life in the receptive hearts the new divine nature springs up out of the implanted Word; the believe is heart again, created anew, musted alley, passed out of death into life."

So sin has faced the image of God, leaving; hind its own unmistakable mark. T divine method of recovering what w lost in sin is a new creation based an act of faith in the finished work Christ. Threatened Break in Levee and Stop Rising Waters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Affectives.)

A federal-aid roud has just been completed in Arkansan which has already saved millions of dollars to the community in which it is built. Recently during high water in the Mississippi word came to Helena, Ark., that the levee at Old Town, 17 miles away, was shout to brenk. The situation was critient. A few hours' delgy and thousands of acres of rich farming land would be flooded, and possibly many lives lost. Helena was the only source of aid, and many men with tools and material were needed. Every available motor vehicle was pressed into service and over 600 men, properly equipped for the work, were in a short time speeding over the new road to save the levee. They arrived in the nick of time and by almost superhuman efforts dammed back the rising waters. Residents say that had it been necessary to make the trip over the old road the levee could not have been reached in time and that the workers would have needed boats rather than motor vehicles,

BROKEN GLASS

WHEN Sergt, John F. Brennan of New York's police force reached.

Skity-linth street and Park avenued the death of John McHugh, he found practically nothing which coale come under the head of "evidence."

McRugh, it appeared, had been driving along in a light bugg, shortly after dark. An automobile, speeding from behind, lind struck the buggy and smashed it to bits, stilling McTown heatingth, apprechaft of the property and smashed it to bits, stilling McTown heatingth, apprechaft of the property and smashed it to bits, stilling McTown heatingth, apprechaft of the property and smashed it to bits, stilling McTown heatingth, apprechaft of the horse, but, as Brennan, said, "there's no way of makin's horse talke".

So the sergeant set to work to collect what bits of evidence he could gather from the surcounding street.

Caught on one of the spokes of the buggy whech, where it had evidently been torn off by the force of the collision, was a nickel-plated imp rim bearing the name of the "Ham Lamp-Company, Rochester, N. Y." That, and a small fragment of automobile three about three inches in length, appeared to be the only results of the damage which the automobile had suffered.

But Brennan figured that, as the tire about three inches in length, appeared to be the only results of the damage which the automobile had surfered.

But Brennan fagured that, as the lamp rim—had been torn from its socket, the lens of the lamp would naturally have been shattered, so he set to work to pick by the bits of glass. When he returned to head-quarters that night he brought with him an envelope containing twenty-one pieces of ginss, together with the nick-eled rim. the buggy spoke on which it had caught and the fagged piece torn from the automobile tire.

"What are you going to do with that junk?" inquired his associates on the force. "If Sherlock Holmes had had those he could have told you the make of the ear, the complexion of the man who was driving it, the themse number and how many galions of gas there was in, the tank—but her? say the some brains when you look at 'em you'll hote several things that may be of help in forthing the say the say the say the say enough to fix it so that your here can solve a problem that you know the answer of —but her?s one case in which I think that his deducin' theories will come in pretty handy.

"See that smudge?" and the sergeant held up the buggy spoke and pointed to what appeared to be a worn place on the wood toward the ead which had been nearest the wheel. "At first. I thought It was merely where the paint had worn off and the wood showed through. But the rest of the buggy was spick and span. Only a few days out of the shop. So I examined it more carefully and found that I twas a bert of gray paint, excatched off the body of the death car teself!

"Take that lamp rim, now. There are fourteen cars on the market that are equipped with lamps made by that company. So that reduces the number of suspects that much more. We've got to look for a gray car of one of those fourteen makes, which ellm-inates more than 70 per cent of the cars in the city."

"But what about those pieces of glass? What are they goin' to tell you?"

"Eventually, the name of the man-who owned the car," repided Brehnan. "There are three kinds of glass there—one plain glass, one mirror lens and one concave-convex lens. If you'll fit 'em together you'll see that the car carried eigh-linch gas headlights and six-inch oil hidelights. Therefore it was an old model, The bit of rubber was very evidently ripped off a four-inch tire. Now, you members of the traffic squad, what kind of a car answers those specifications?"

"A 1909 Packard, model 18," came in a chorus from several of the men who had been trained to recognize the make and model of an autômobile from the appearance of its head-lights." "Snanned Brennan "Old "Pennan".

"Right!" anapped Brennan. "Old

TRIPPING UP A GENIUS.

The young man who married 14 girls in three years seems almost to have deserved better tuck than a prison sentence. He was evidently after Solomon's record and he seems to have been on a fair way to eclipsing it. To be sure, his moral code was exceed ingly twisted, but a person who car get away with 14 marriages all hi own must have a good deal of pristing originality which will go to wasts I prison. The specialty of Hammon, which was his name, seems to have been desertion, says Battimore American. He deserted first the army and then the navy, and then, one by on, his 14 brides. The questrest thing about him was that It wasn't the desertion of the militury. He he kept clear of the whole 14, howevy will give most of the married men puzzle to solve. That reporting is a young mabusiness is illustrated in some nepaper very day by some news if melling about something, usually interested to any life man or an aged woman. Often the melling man or an aged woman. Often the story, is fifty-three, we will say, or somewhere between fifty and sixty. As every editor has reason to know, this youthful point of view of the reporter not infrequently is resented by the aged pegeou referred to. To be run over by the motorar was bad enough, but to be called aged is adding insult to injury. Nobody under sevently seems old to blimself, and many between seventy-five and eighty would rather not be considered aged.

In the course of his recent interview the former German kalser remarks, sadly: "The sword of peace was struck, out of my hands by my best! friends." That is about what would be apt to happen to an autocrat whose idea of peace was to sustain it with the sword, says Topeks Capital. It is what would be likely to happen to "the sword of peace." Somebody would always be taking the Joy out of peace keeping by trying to turn the sword the other way, to its legitimate use.

FATTENING MARKET POULTRY

Great Variety of Fsede Can Be Used In Preparing Fowle—Breilsre Grow Rapidly.

(Propared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The most desirable types of rations and the most profitable feeding periods for the different classes of poultry fattened in packing plants are discussed in Department Bulletin 1052, Rations for Feeding Poultry in the Packing House, just issued by the bureau of chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. Since the fleshing of poultry has become a large industry in the United States, information of the kind contained in this bulletin should be of a great deal of value.

The results obtained in the experiments reported in this bulletin should be of a great deal of value.

The results obtained in the experiments reported in this bulletin show that a great variety of feeds can be used in fattening broilers, springs, roasters and hens, a fortunate situation since it permits the feeder to adapt his ration to market conditions by taking advantage of special prices of certain feeds and also to use feeds available locally. A growing bird, such as a broiler or spring, requires a different ration than a mature hen, which changes most of her feed finto fat. A simple ration of corn meal and buttermilk is about as good as any for hens. Broilers fed rations containing protein concentrates, such as peanument, coconut oil, soy-bean meal, or meat scrap made appreciably better gains than those fed on corn meal and huttermilk. They grow rapidly and need tissue-forning feeds. Springs grew very rapidly during the first two four-day periods, but not so well the last six days. It was found that the partice of feeding hens only six to eight days is well founded. The dressing and chilling shrinkage of hens, however, was much less than in the case of broilers, springs and roasters. Any of the ordinary cereal grains supply the necessary carbohydrates and fats. More care is needed in selecting feeds for protein, sqits and vitamines. The proteins of the cereal grains are present in too small amounts and are of too poor quality to produce the best results in broilers and springs unless other protein concurrates are added. Milk and cereals make one of the most profitable rations, as milk supplies mineral substances, vitamines and very valuable proteins from the protein so the protein concentrates are ment and fish seraps, cottonseed meal.

REMOVE HORNS FROM CATTLE

ere Clipper Can Be Ussd Strong Stanchion is Satisfactory— Casting is Different.

There are many ways of confining cattle that are to be dehorned. Where the horns are removed with a clipper a strong strendly many besund that is necessary, or a dehorning chute can be made if a number have to be removed, but for one or two alimais and where a saw is used a convenient method is to cast the animal. For this purpose is casting harness such as the one shown in the illustration and known as the English hobble has been used with good results. In fact in throwing an animal for any purpose it will be found a convenient and easy method. You can make this by placing a rope hobbie around each pistern. Have the hobble tight enough so that it won't slip down over the hoof, but loose enough to slip a rope between it and the leg. After a hobble has been applied to each of the four pasterns, tie a rope into the hobble on a fore limb, then pass the rope through the hobble on the opposite fore limb. Then run it backward through the hobble on the hind leg of the same side, then across through the hobble on the opposite hind limb, and then forward through the king hobble, or hobble in which the rope was first tied.

When you pull up on the rope this will bring all four legs together, and as one person does this have some one gently push the animal over (away from the one pulling on the rope). Then tie the rope around the feet so the animal cannot get free. As soon as the animal is down have an assistant keep the head down by holding the peration is over, untle and remove the rope and hobbles. A leather strap just large enough to go around the pastern and which can be buckled, with a large ring on one side, makes a good hobble, and one that is easily put on and taken off.

During the last 12 months the sys-tem was tried out in the experimental work in McLean county on nearly 10, 000 pigs of both fail and spring litters. TALKING BIG.

When the companions of the Chicago boy who stole $772,000 were asked about his ways, they said he had "talked pretty loud about what he could do." They searched their memories to think of anything out of the way. It struck them as worth mentioning that he bad talked loud. Trust boy instinct to detect the faise note in a comrade. They knew what his Job was; they thought be talked bigger than it came to. They probably did nothing more than smile at him. To each other they remarked that it had gone to his head. We all know the man or the woman who talks big about "bat he or she has done or seen. If they are lucky, they are laughed down to the standard of ordinary folks. But some get the habit, and the talk has to get bigger. Presently there is a dilemma; elter give no being believed or do something to make good. What a safety vaive it would be if we could only listen in as an outsider to our own talk, says Milwaukee Journal, We should pretty soon say, "Here is some one on the road to becoming a first-class liar." Big talk is a danger signal in an ordinary world.

"College education is not the gateway to beaven. There are other things

"There is too much family and racial

EASY TO MAKE SELF-FEEDERS

Sire Desired and, With Any Number of Compartments.

In response to requests for instructions for making self-feeders for hogs W. H. Underwood, in Farm and Ranch, gives the following directions, the illustration giving a general idea of what the feeder looks like:

The illustration shows a hinged lid made of 1 hy 8-linch boards, one lid being on each side of the top of the feeder. The dotted lines show the four compartments, three of the compartments, three of the compartments there is covered with-common siding such as is used in house building, the siding being nailed on the outside of the frame and the end boards united on the outside. The frame is made of 2 by 4-inch material. One by 8-inch boards hinged at ends swing free from about 1½ inches from the bottom of the ronds. The hogs root these boards when the feed is not coming fast enough or when feed is lodged on the side of the Feeder. The troughs are made of heavy boards. A trough is on each side with a partition in the center. The pherform is made of 2 by 4 pleces and heavy plank. The feeder is 12 feet long, 5 feet high and 3 feet wide at the top of the compartments.

One farmer wants to know if the feeder should be made-on a concrete foundation. No, that is not necessary.
But build it on a good, solid, firm wood foundation, and then when you want to move it from one pince to another you can easily do so with a horse or mule.
About 16 average size hogs can eat at the same time at the feeder shown in the accompanying sketch. Of course feeders may be made any size desired and with any number of compartments.
When you have finished making a feeder give it a good cast of paint. It pays to keep such things around the farm well painted.

In 1921 approximately 5,000 miles of concrete highways were completed and put into service in the United States. PROTEIN FOR YOUNG ANIMALS

One of Three Elements Necessary in Order That They May Thrive— Proportion Varies.

Protein is one of the three elements in feeds that are necessary in order that animals may thrive. The proportion of protein in feeds necessary for best results varies with the age and character of the animal being fed. For young and growing animals, and those bearing young or producing milk, an average of one pound of protein to five or six pounds of other constitutents is about right.

This part of the country has been experiencing the worst weather of the winter since Wodnesday of last week, when biting wintry blasts, cerrying the meious, down to zear, the zero mark, swooped down upon us. It has been the bitterest weather experienced for sometime.

Tobacco growers of the 1921 pool received their checks last week for a final settlement. While the money received fell considerably below expectations few expressions of disastisfaction ere heard. The final payment was from 30 to 75 per cent of the first and second payment.

The task of the shepherd these wintry days is indeed a strenous one, for the flock must be kept under constant surveillance to avoid the chilling to death-of the new born lambs. Several farmers have reported the arrival of as many as six lambs in one night. Thos. Hensley saks have fifty young lambs in his flock, and hab been a labour mannight and day the past two weeks.

Said a well known farmer the other day: "If we were a tobacco grower, we would rather belong to the Pool and take if necessary, five cents less per pound for our tobacco than we could get on the Loose Leaf market. The Pool guarantees a good price for tobacco every year. Without the Pool, what would the growers be getting for their tobacco today? The high prices paid on the Loose Leaf floors are but bombs thrown by the wily Trust managers into the camp of their opponents for no other purpose than to stampede the selfish, thoughtless, unstable and weak kneed membership into Trust may regain the winning hand in the marketing of tobacco, which was wrenched from its grasp by the Pool."

Men who have had exeperience in co-operative enterprises lay down certain principles and forms of organization which such a movement ought to accept. But after all the principal element in the success of such an effort, is the kind of men who are put at the head of it. If you choose men of ability and experience and industry, it will in a probability be a success. If you don't have such men to run it, it may be regarded on correct principles, but it will run chances of failure.

How then shall a co-operative movement secure and retain the service of men of sufficient ability to assure its success? Some times a group of farmers that contemplate such an effort will not be able to find any one of their number who will give the time necessary to carron the management of their enterprise, or they may not have anyone who feels competent to undertake to a secure and keep a thoroughly good man, the salary may some who feels competent to undertake to secure and keep a thoroughly good man, the salary may some times be too big for the business done. The people who some years agy bought houses and settled down to live in them, made an exceedingly lucky stroke. A lot of folks are now getting their living quarters at a rate far below what the average renter pays. They might not be able to build a new home for less than double what their home coat them.

The favorable result of a good investment in real estate should be considered by every family that is ambitious to acquire an independent position. There may not be so many chances in future years to make money bf the advance in value of a that one owns. "JAP" CLOVER GOOD BET ON KENTUCKY PASTURES

Lexington, Ky.—There are close to 100 counties in Kentucky in each of which 1,000 bushels or more of Japan clover should be sown this spring as one step toward the improvement of pastures throughout the state, according to Ralph Kenney, crop extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. The sowing of this clover is a practical step for every farmer and would do much toward bettering the state's pastures which are now run down and bad'y neglected.

However, if the clover comes of its own accord on land that has been laid out, three years are required to get a stand of it, whereas a stand can be had in one year by sowing the seed in March and April. Japan clover seed costs around $1 a peck, authorities estimating that a dollar invested in this seed wil return more than one invested in any other. The seed can be sown in mixtures with any other grasses or clovers at the rate of a half bushel to the acre.

Japan clover already has received some attention from Kentucky farmers as a pasture improvement crop with the result that a few trying it in all parts of the state outside of the blue grass region. In the Police Court a man declares he was not drunk when the automo bite he drove collided with another automobile. A patrolman says the defendant was drunk. The man is convicted, fined $25 and sentenced to five days in jail, for having been drunk in a public place.

Being drunk in a public place may not enlanger anyone's life or property. But being drunk at the wheel of an automobile in a public road or in a street is another matter.

Such punishment as a fine and a jail sentence for having driven an automobile when drunk is inadequate. The drunken driver can be dealt with in the interest of publicately by enforcing laws to deprive him of his license to drive his automobile.

s HOGS GAIN 1,123 POUNDS
IN 60 DAYS., Making eight pigs gain an average of two and a third pounds each over a period of 60 days, a total gain of 1,123 pounds, is the record of Robert Asheraft, a Meade county farmer who has just finished a domonstration which he put on in co-operation with County Agent Melnteer to show farmers in his neighborhood the value of ecommended practices in fattening hogs. Despite the fact the feeding period ran for only twmonths, the eight porkers made their owner a net profit of $28.04.

Mr. Asheraft gave his pigs corn and tankage and the run of a whitton and Japan clover, pasture. During the 60 days of the feeding period they late 70 bushels of corn and 70 pounds of tankage, producing 16 pounds of pork for each bushel of corn and eash pound of tankage that they used. The fact that the pigs made good gains on the small amount af tankage is attributed to the Japan clover. The pigs also had reached the stage in their growth when the growing elements of a ration, suppil deby tankage are not as necessary for cheap and rapid gains as they are fer younger pigs. They weighed 123.7 pounds each when the demonstration started and 264 pounds wenl it ended.

RHOGERM

Farmogerm is a double-action inoculation that makes larger crops of legumes, and adds about $30 worth of the finest nitrate ferstillier to every acre for next year's crops.

It makes this year's crop more productive and builds up the soil for next year. Progressive farmers use FARMOGERM inoculation every year, because the high-bred Earp-Thomas bacteria are five to ten times stronger than those found naturally in the soil.

INOCULATION SEED

FARMOGERM s crops, such as sifalfa, clover, beans and peas, but it is valua-ble in the vegetable garden. All kinds of garden peas and garden beans will produce much larger and better pods and more of them, where FARMOGERM is used.

NEIGHBOR CATTLE FEEDERS
GET FACTS ON PROFIT, LOSS

Levington, Ky.—Two Nelson-c., cattle treers, living near Boston, who worked with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in carrying out feeding demonstrations on their farms, have shed considerable light on why some farmers lose money in the catte feeding same whie others make money. Reslus of the demonstrations which they put on have just been compiled by Wayland Rhoads, beef cattle specialist of the college. Despite the fact that oth farmers fed their cattle under almost identical conditions, one of them, who used silage as the basis of his ration, made a net profit of $27.40 on each steer, while the other farmer, who fed a heavy gran ration through the summer and winter, lost $6.33 a head on each steer that he fed.

Steers in the lot that received silage weighed 900 pounds each when the demonstration started while those in the other lot weighed approximately 1,000 pounds each. The animals in both cases were fed for the came length of time—240 days—and were marketed June 30 after having been carried through the winter and finished on grass. When sold, the two lots of steer swere equal in quality as shown by the fact that they brought the same price. The big factor in determining profit and loss was the fact that the feeder who used slage fed only 17 bushels of corn to each of his steers, including that in the silabe, and got greater gains, while the farmer, who used the older method of dry feeding, fed a total of 50 bushels of corn to each of his steers.

The feeder who made the profit carried his steers through the winter on sliges, five each of them.

The feeder who made the profit-carried his steers through the winter on silage, gave each of them a total of one pound of cottonseed meal a day when they were getting silage, and allowed them a light feed of corn during the latter part of the winter feeding period and while they were one of the winter feeding period and while they were on grass. His feed costs for each 100 pounds of gair, including winter and summer parture, was $6.85. The steers in this lot made an average total gain of 375 pounds each.

ONE KENTUCKY FARM IN 83 HAS WATER PIPED IN HOME

As water PIPED IN HOME.

Lexington, Ky.—Only one out of every 52 farm homes in Kentucky has water piped into it according to a new circular entitled, "A Simple Hot and Cold Water System for the Kitchen" which has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture and which is being sent out free to interested persons. There is meed for a hot and cold water system at a cost that will make its use possible in the great majority of rural homes that now have no running water; a system that can be installed easily in houses already built and used in kitchens in which water may freeze, the new publication adds.

"Many farmers feel th need and realize the value of a water supply system, but think that it is too expensive, not knowing that successful simple and inexpensive systems can be had. Hot and cold running water in the farm home lightens house work, improves sanitary conditions, and adds to the comfort and heafth of the family."

of the family."

The system described in the new circular has been used successfully in a number of other states, including Kansas, Missouri, Minnesota and Ohio. It is a step between the pitcher pump system, described in an earlier circular put out by the college, and the attic-tank system. It is intended to be used either with a cistern or shallow well near the house.

cistern or shallow well near the house.

Most of the articles needed in installing the system in the farm home can be bought from local plumbers and put in by the farmer himself—if necessary. The total cost of he materials is about $85.00.

Parts of the system, including the well or cistern, the pump, range, boiler, the water-back, three-way cock, the sink and the disposal system, are described in detail in the circular. Directions for operating the system also are given in the circular together with a complete list of the materials needed for putting it in. The circular also contains a number of illustrations one of he/sich shows the plan of the entire system. The new publication, which is No. 139, may be obtained free by writing the college at Lexington.

URAL SCHOOLS IN KY.

Tax Law Bars Aid of Poor Commun ities By Richer Sections of the State.

Frankfort, Ky.—Rural schools in Kentucky are closing this month in 102 counties where the taxable wealth is auffecient on local district taxes or supplemented county revenues so that the schools may be maintained for him to the counties are taking care of themselves by subscription.

All the schools now run 7 months, and most of them started late last summer. Records of the extent of the term in each of the 9,000 rural schools are not yet collected by the State Department of Education but the full term of nine months is observed in Shelby, Mason, Scott, Feyette, Boyle, Bourbon, Franklin, Madison, Jefferson, Harrison, Harlar, Kenton, Campbell, Warren, Hardin, Daviess, Henderson and McCracken, There are sixty independent city school systems and 316 graded districts. These and the 449 Hi schools have nine months terms.

Rural schools commence during the summer, some of them by the middle of July. Lack of funds under the maximum county tax of fifty cents prevents the great majority of counties from maintaining more than the minimum session of seven months of twenty days each. Thirty-five counties, according to the Education Survey report, either by local taxation or contribution are encouraging districts to stend their own terms and while the number of schools thus continuing in session the full term, cannot be absolutely stated, it is not contribution are encouraging districts to a post of the services.

Before the compulsory 7 months term was adopted at the 1922 session the survey report showed Clark, Boone, Campbell, Fayette, Henderson, Jefferson, McCracken, Mason, Robertson, Union Washington and Woodford counties extending their term to seven, eight or 9 months, and Bracken, Bullit, Carisle, Daviezs Fulton, Grayson, Harlan, Henry, Lee Hickman, Letcher, McCreary, Manion, Marshall, Montgomery, Nelson, Owen, Perry, Pulaski, Shelby, Todd and Spencer encouraging districts to months.

Delusive Dainties

drawn between the pleasant, but harmful; and the less pleasant, but holy. The Christian is saved by One, and he follows One whose wars fit exactly into this portion of Scripturfor he forfeited the sweet morsels muthe elaborate banquets, and accepted the lunger and thirst by the way, lending to the cross.

the hunger and thirst by the way, lending to the cross.

There are other dainties upon which one may feed hesifes those which are pleinsant to the appetite Dainties of fundscape, dainties of apparel, dainties of apparel, dainties of fundscape, dainties of apparel, dainties of fundscape dainties of apparel, dainties of them. But Christian people possess many of them. But Christian people have met the crisis in which they have settled that there are things they are willing to do without. Not only that they have duly considered things they would prefer to do without because over against them is something of greater worth than they all. Happy the man who has fully decided that Lazarus at the gate is richer than the man who fares sumptuously every day. Lazarus has tomorrow spells everlasting, bankrupter.

The childran of Israel "went after the nations that were round about them, concerning whom the Lord had charged them that they should not do like them." (If Kings 17:15.) The Prophet Amos pictures them as a people who "abound in superfluities." Thus they claimed these cheap and perishing things while they turned from the sure covepant and the unfalling providence of God. Through the eye they saw and through the lasts of the flesh they went after the detulyse sights and songs and deeds eremplified by the idol worshipers in their neighborhood. We must pard against the same singli tendency today. Since our Lord Jesus Christ pad the entire debt and we receive Big grice without money and without price, we must consider that He does not asave us that we may lightly regard His will.

Make of it what we may, the Christian is a pligrim joursering home and attranger on a spling where his Lord was crucified. There is a vast difference between our living in the neighborhood, to live its God-defying program in our soulis.

What are those dainties when carefully examined? Men risk all for them, but the ardent juest is a dejusion. Do they imply licutigence of appetite? What if with the area holy illustrations of the fact that the

he would have to pass through the flame.

O, it is great to step over the line that divides between things and Jesus. Just to see Him with the eyes of the heart until the glory of His face shines upon the things men consider dainties and reveals, how easily they decay or how quickly they leave v. or how great are the hosses they bring the things and reveals, how easily they with them. But do not begin by trying to cross that line. Begis by receiving few the things to cross that line. Begis by receiving Jesus cancer. The torbidden dainties, but the next it is Jesus saves. The torbidden dainties will claim you until you receive Him. What you have may seem all attractive until He is yours.

But I have dainties of which the workers of infiguity cannot partake. Have you never partaken or them? Then come to the feast. They will appear at their full value one day when we who are in bodies of humiliation now, shall find "mortality awallowed up of life." There is the grace of God for us. No earthly field yields it, It brings all the bounty: Love, joy, peace, long suffering, goodines, diellity, meeknes, temperance! Such dutilities! Come to the feast Drop feur loughd basket as if chroute to a picnic, for here "there is enough and to square." What you can bring will per-dain; what God provides hover data.

Jehovah's Blessing

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE

His people and tell of His activities on their behalf.

1. "Jehovah bress thee." You cannot explain that word, "bless." It breathes Itself into the soul like a rare perfume, but you cannot tell what it is. It touches the weary life like a teader mother's hand and lifts it up. into rest and strength. You know by sweet experience what it is, but you cannot define it. It is the heart of God disclosed. It embraces all other elements found in this benediction; the keeping, the silning fuce, graciousness, the uplifted countenance, the gift of pence. That is His blessing. Who that inas beheld the cross—has seen the Well-Belowed hanging there, can question what that greatheart holds for him? "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered Him up for us sill, how shall He not with Him freely give ur all things?" Oh, let us magnify that word. "bless."

2. "Jehovah make his face shine upon 'theo." If His blessing reveals His heart, this discovers His nearness. Not afar off, but nigh. Do not think of Him as far away in heaven, velled away in, His own eternity, unknown, and unknowable. There is no distance. "Ye who sometime were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ." In that place of nearness, His face shines. What Joy to know'that the face from which heaven and earth shall flee away and that is against them that do evil, is shining typon those in whose midst He dwells.

is shining upon those in whose midsi He dwells.

8. "Jehovah lift up his countenance upon the." Frequently have the Lord's people been heard to say that He has hidden His face from them. It cannot be! For He who looks upon His beloved Son with unchanging delight "sees you and me ever ... Him and cannot turn away from us. If there be hiding, it is you who are doing it, not He. The clouds that obscure the sun do not come from the sun.

4. The Lord be gracious unto thea. This attitude explains all else. His grace is His kindness to the undeserving. Grace is not a frame of mind or a state of soul, but the attitude of God. "By grace are ye sawed" and over and over again, because we are so slow to believe it and because He desires we should do' so, comes the salutation: "Grace be unto you."

But not only in His attitude but in His activities on our behalf do we see how all His heart is occupied for us.

But not only in His activities on our behalf do we see how all His heart is occupied to us.

Jehovah keep thee.—This is our assurance and our security that He who is gracious keeps us for His own. "Kept by the power of God." "behovah is thy keeper," says the Pasinist, and they are safe indeed whom He keeps. But not alone as His own possession. He will keep that life in all its daily affairs as though you were His only child and His soiliary care. "Jehovah keep thee." That implies what Scripture elsewhere emphasizes and what every hour of your experience has proved: that you cannot keep yourself." It mu not being put to shame, Broyed that while you to shame. Every more than the condition of the flesh puts you to shame. Every munifestation of the flesh puts you to shame. Every munifestation of the flesh puts you to shame. Every munifestation of the flesh puts you to shame. He can keep you and He will if you but give Him a chance. Turn that life over to HC; and see what He can make out of it, see how He can keep it if holy through and joy.

2. The sast element—is at sweet, lingering strain of the anthem—it peace. "Jehovah give thee peace." In all the wide universe. In all the tongues that meh have spoken, their our peace is for your precent possession. He desires you to have it.

Have you seen the full significance of this blessing of God to thy poor heart. His own peace is for your precent possession. He desires you to have it.

One rarely sees a hunchhacked person novadays. People thus afflicted used to be far more numerous. But needeal science has learned how to treat such cases, as well as lateral curvatures of the spine, with remarkable success.

Harold J. Rink of Chicago, has new-typatented a contrivance for the purpose of straightening backbones which is interesting. The patient is literally hung up in a doorway by the chin, his toes barely touching the ground. Thus his spinal column is pulled straight, while cords attached to beits that he wears, one under the arms, and the other about the hips, exert drags sidewise to correct a curvature.

TIME TO PREPARE FOR SPRING PIGS

TIME TO PREPARE FOR SPRING PIGS

Lexington, Ky.—This is the time of the year to clean up farrowing pens and get ready for the spring litters of pigs, according to Grady Sellards, swine specialist at the College of Agriculture. Unclean quarters lead to infection in the young pigs, thereby causing farmers heavy losses. Even strony, healthy pifs die if forced to live in dirty, fifthy pens.

Any old straw or bedding that heaben 'left in the quarters should be burned and the inside of thehouse disinfected with a three per cent sociation of creolin. Creolin used for stock dip will do for disinfectiny the house. After the house has been cleaned out and disinfected, clean, bright straw should be scattered over the floor.

Successful hog raisers of, the State have found that putting the farrowing houses on a grassy spot of about a tenth of an are is a good plan in raising pigs. This spot should not be used for a general hog run, since it may become infected with parasites or disease germs. Worms are a menace to paying pork production and are to e found in one-third of hogs that are mature. The farmer can guard against these peats by keeping the pigs on a grassy lot until they are a few monts old.

Allowing the young pigs plenty of sunshine is a pig item in raising them successfully. In the winter, however, the sun's rays are a few monts old.

Lexington, Ky. — Kentucky produces nearly three-fourths of a million tons of straw a year, a largy part of which, outside of that used for stable bedding, goes to wast, according to R. E. When spread at the rate of not more than a ton to the acre, straw helps considerably in boosting the yield of wheat and helping out the stand of grass or clover. The ashes that are left after a pile of straw has been burned make only a small spot of ground richer.

STANDARDIZE-BRIDGE DESIGN

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)
Greater standardization of practice in the design and construction of high-way bridges is urged by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is believed that there is no sound reason for the amount of variation in specifications that now exists and that it results in greater cost of bridges. State officials take the same view as the bureau and a committee composed of bridge engineers has been appointed by the American Association of State Highway Officials to consider the matter. A "Manual of Practice" is being prepared, which will represent the best thought on the subject and which it is believed will be accepted by all the state-highway departments. Not only will the adoption of such a manual lead to the building of bridges of good design, but it will also make possible a saving in money, as bridge companies will not be called upon to meet so much variation in design.

INFORMATION HARD TO GAIN

cs Concerning Roads of Diffe States in Some Cases Not Easily Obtained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture or conds and streets in the United States approaching the billion-dollar mark, more accurate information and better means for obtaining it seem necessary, says the burean of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. One thing very much needed is the concentration of all sorts of information and statistics concerning the roads of the various states in the state highway departments. Engineers of the department are now gathering complete information regarding the road mileage and expenditures in the United States. In many of the states much of the information desired is easily obtainable from the state highway department. In the case of Iowa the figures were obtained almost immediately. In other cases it has been necessary to seed out numerous questionnalres and sometimes the information has been obtained only after personal visits. In one state 1,500 questionnaires had to be sent out to bring in the needed figures, and in some it has been found that practically no records have been kept. For some of the counties in New Mexico questionnaires had to be translated into Spanish before the road officials could understand them.

BRIDGES ON IMPROVED ROADS

Few Structures Less Than 18 Feet Are Now Being Constructed, Say Engineers.

Few highway bridges with a width of roadway less timn 18 feet are now being constructed on improved roads, according to engineers of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the past some 12 feet and a good many of 16-foot width have been constructed in an effort to economize, but it has proved shortisighted economy. Only one line of traffic can pass over a 12-foot roadway, and 10 feet of width will not accommodate two lines in safety. Many of the states, such as Pennaylvania, New Jersey, Ohio and Massachnsetts, have found it advisable in replacing old bridges on important roads to make them wide enough to accommodate three and four lines of traffic.

IMPORTANT POINTS IN COWS

Missouri Expert Tells Just What to Look for in Buying High Producing Cattle.

Look for in Buying High Producing Cattie.

"The man does not livy who can pick the good cows from the poor ones without ever making a mistake." says W. W. Swett, of the Missouri College of Agriculture. "Even the best Judges sometimes make a mistake. But there are certain points about the dairy cow that are aimost always associated with high production."

The udder should be deep, wide and long with good attachments. It should be evenly developed, level on the floor and equipped with teats of good and uniform size, symmetrically placed. It should also be soft and pliable, indicating that it consists of secreting cells rather than flesh.

A good set of milk veins indicates that the udder is well supplied with blood. Long, crooked milk veins entering large wells or openings through the body wall" are assually associated with high production.

A cow cannot be a maximum and continuous producer unless she has a strong constitution. Vigality and strength of constitution are indicated by broad, open nostril, and a chest which is deep and broad.

Feed capacity is essential. In order to produce heavily a cow must consume large quantities of feed and water. A barrel which is long, broad and deep indicates a large capacity and good production. A large cownearly always has the advantage in production, provided she is not deficient in other points.

Alertness in temperament is an asset, and a singlisheow is seldom a high producer. Dairy temperament includes those characteristics which indicate that the cow's feed is need for the production of milk rather than for body fat. Angularity, prominent points, lack of heaviness and flesh, and the presence of the triple wedges are good indications.

HERDS TESTED DURING JUNE

Of a Total of 250,886 Examined 8,810 Reacted, Disclosing 3½ Per Cent Tuberculous Cattle.

Tuberculous Cattis.

Cattie officially tested during June, 1922, for tuberculous numbered 250,-886, according to a summary issued by the bureau of animal industry. United States Department of Agriculture. This figure exceeds the normal amount of tuberculin testing by several thousand. Of all the cattle tested, 8,810 reacted, thus disclosing about 3½ per cent of tuberculious cattle. The removal of such animais from herds otherwise healthy is gradually bringing about better health among farm live stock, safer milk supplies, and many economic benefits. The popularity of tuberculous eradication is evidenced by the length of the list of herds waiting to be tested. At the end of June there were applications on file for the testing of 35,239 herds, containing more than half a million cattle.

SKIM CREAM MORE CLOSELY

Keeps Better During Hot Waather and Makes Better Butter—Kaep 8kim Milk on Farm,

If it's to keep best during the warm weather and to make the highest quality butter, cream needs to be skimmed closely. Better butter is made from heavier cream as the fine, sandlike grains that are precipitated in charaling are more solid than the butter resulting from thin cream. Also it will pay to ship the heavier cream, as there is no use to pay shipping charges on skim milk. It will make better feed on the farm.

Get Rid of Peer Cows.

Dalrymen are now realizing more keenly than ever the necessity of retiting rid of the cows that are warredy paying their board. These cows place too heavy a tax upon the herd to make the dairying go as it should.

Cows to Keep Up Fertility.

Ten cows in milk would be about the logical number to keep up the fertility on a 100-arc farm where commercial fertilities are used, and

This cream, when needed for whipping, may be thickneed by using one-third of a teaspoonful of viscogen to each cupful of cream. Viscogen is a mixture of lime, sugar and water. To prepare it, dissoive five ounces of sugar in ten ounces of water. Four six ounces of cold water over two ounces of quicklime, sit and strain. Combine the two liquids and shake occasionally during the next two hours. Allow the liquid to settle, then pour off the clear iquid and store in dark bottles, using glass stoppers. If exposed to the light and air it darkens and loses its atrength.

To prevent the graining of chocolate in sauces, add the chocolate to a little hot water and then add, gradually, the augar and the remainder of the liquid. Keep a piece of fine sandpaper in the kitchen; it is useful to secure the meat grinder from slipping, if fastened to a slace or aluminum covered table. THOSE WHO RISE

Teachers who go into the more remote and backward districts of the country often remark on the intense desire for education manifested by the young people of these sections. They will often deny thenselves many of the necessaries of life, they often go short of food, to scrape together the money for book learning.

And you go into a prosperous town, and you find boys and girls of prosperous families who work justs barely enough in their schools to get by, but whose heart in on their pleasures.

Prosperous circumstances often dull ambition. There are in every city boys who are struggling to get their heads above the current, who 20 years from now will be the format men of the community. And there are others who have every advantage, who will in the future count for nothing. Their money may give them a certain position, but they will not be a force that achieves anything.

THE PERSONALITY OF

THE TEACHER

THE FERSONALITY OF
THE TEACHER

The educational experts can write magazine articles and books without limit on their problems. The authorities can deliver their elousent lectures at the teachers' conventions. But after all the vital question in regard to education comes right down to this. Have you got good teachers, and others have not. If you employ teachers having this capacity, they are going to have a good school, even if the equipment is not thoroughly satisfactory. It does not pay for a country town to put up with unhealthy school houses or poor text books, but the main thing is to get a teacher that has some faculty for that work, and the young people will get so they know something undet the leadership of such a no.

DANCING IN THE

DANCING IN THE COUNTRY TOWN.

One of the surest ways to keep young people contented in country towns is to have pleasant and well managked daheing parties. Many parents object to ill regulated dances. But if the older people will take some share in managing then, and see that they are properly chaperoned and restricted, they will put more life and pep into a country town than you can get in almost any other way.

The young crowd that have been pawing up the earth because home conditions were so dull, will forget their troubles if you have a dancing teacher come out a few times and show them the latest staps so they can feel up-to-date.

In spite of the universal co of continued high prices a cheep talk can still be had.

Some people are very touchy. They do not like to read or hear the plain and unvarished truth when it affects them.
This fact was rather tracically demonstrated some years ago in the case of a certain country editor, who was put out of business because of the use of three simple words.
They were: "Live where you trade."

Most Solemn People in the World Said to Be Aboriginal In-4

Laughter and the faculty of beingmerry and bright are gifts of the gods to a world in which there is not too much sunshine at any time. But this gift, according to scientists, has been denied to the Veddas, the aboriginal inhabitants of Ceylon.

They are the only people in the world who never laugh, and in consequence they are thin shd flabby folk.

For nearly 2,000 years, according to the best chronicles, these people, now almost extinct, have preserved the same characteristics, and no one has ever seen a smile on the face of one of them or heard a laugh while in their section of Ceylon.

Why these people do not smile is a mystery. They alone of all the people on the earth know nothing of the sensation of laughter.

A scientist, who journeyed to Ceylon for the purpose of investigating this question, persunded some of them-to-permit him to tickle them in the ribs and in the middle of their feet with straws. He never caught even the dicker of a smile on their faces, nor did he ever succeed in making one of them squirm during the operation.

Another strange—thing about the Veddas, and one which may possibly be connected with their lack of humor, is the fact that every one of them-lis a George Washington, unable/ to tell a lie or to conceive of anyone eise telling a lie.

The Australian government has laid the foundation for future supply of good workmen by regulating the apprentice system by which the interests of all the parties concerned are taken care of. The pay, care, instruction and amusement of apprentices are prescribed in carefully prepared laws. In certain specified districts, instruction from a state or continuation trade school, approved by the authorities, must be given for not less than five hours a week for not less than five hours a week for not less than three years and this must be given on the time of the employer. If the apprentice elects to take such course in his own time, allowance must be made for it upon his term of apprentices hip. All disputes between apprentices and employers must be settled by the board, which has the power to prescribe a punishment in the shape of a fine.

Start your boy right and he will travel the rest of the way on his own mettle.

The fellow who brags about nis birth generally has nothing else to brag about. Don't orate about your own virtues. Talking about nothing is an unwise habit.

The fellow who kicks the cat seldom stays long enough to ger-kicked himself.

The popular theory of the way to get, into society seems to be to spend more than you earn.

The farmers are urged to go in or bean culture, but the colleges re supposed to attend to that.

.Make a practice of really earn-ing your small salary and you will soon be receiving a bigger one.

The most cheerful givers are not always the most lavish in their giving. They don't have it to give.

Many women believe in charity beginning at home. They don't like having to sponge on their neigh bors.

So far no organization of hushands has claimed that the card clubs do anything to promote home cookery.

Probably the real reason why women jurors get drawn, is that they aren't smart enough to dodge a public duty.

These pension ideas are all right, but they really ought to extend it to everyone who is struggling to sup-port a family.

The voters are exhorted to stick to party lines, but when election day comes they may be more inter-ested in fish lines.

It is urged that there should be more art in daily life, and it is cer-tainly awful that the ash can re-mains undecorated.

These flowing sleeves the women wear are fine, but they should not wear 'em so long that they get tangled up in their feet.

The women folks are showing as much skill now in operating automobiles as they used to do in running the sewing machines.

Do one thing at a time, and do it well. Too many irons spoil the fire, and as a result they all get cold and are difficult to use.

Many young boys are growing up in this town whose futures are yet to be carved out. If taught the proper use of their, brain power while young they will become air made men of the future. If allowed to drift along until they arrive at man's eatate they will find greater use for the hand than the brain. They may not become failures, but at best they will simply be cogs in the machinery of better men.

GIVING LAMBS GRAIN IS PAYING PRACTICE

GIVING LAMBS GRAIN IS PAYING PRACTICE.

Feeding a little grain to lambs at this time of the year is one step that every farmer can take tomake sheep raising more profitable on his farm, according to R. C. Milber, sheep extension specialist of the college of Agriculture. While it is a general practice in the blue grass section for farmers to depend on grass entirely in fattening their lambs, most sheep raisers who have tried feeding a little grain along with the pasture find that it pays. In sections outside of the blue grass where forage crops are not available some grain is necessary if lambs make good gains.

Lambs should be taught to eat grain just as soon as possible which is usually when they are about two weeks old. The young animals can be fed without being bothered by the ewes if creeps are made for them. A good feed for the first month can be made of equal parts, by weight of ground corn, crushed oats, oil meal and wheat bran. For the second month, this should be changed to three parts of whole corn, three parts of whole corn for the second month, six parts of whole corn, three parts of whole corn, thr

If the country people would put their money in the banks of their own town and county, there would not be so much trouble about credit for the farmers.

One minute is all of the time required to study up some improvement we need. If each citisen du votes that one minute each day to this study, it will be but a short time before our detecfs are so well known to us we will be insistently demanding their correction.

When that is done we have started something.

This "cold window" will be found most useful during the cold months when one just hates to buy ice. There is just space enough between the doors and the window at the back of the cupboard for narrow shelves, and by raising or lowering the window the debated temperature, may be kept.

FAITH IN THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

Many persons feel today that the young people have become rough and almost degenerate. They are supposed to be loose in personal conduct, and charges that drunkenness and other vices are increasing among them are freely made.

supposed to be loose in personaconduct, and charges that drunkeoness and other vices are increasing among them are freely made.

This pessimistic view is frequently entertained by a type of parents who have lost control over their children. Those whose young people at an early age get in the habit of managing their own affairs altogether, observe them comnatting many follies.

It is perhaps natural for such ones to feel that the young crowd
ones to feel that the young crowd of today are running loose and wild. There comes a time in the life of a boy or girl, along from 12 to 15 years of age, when the young ster begins to look with some contempt on his parents, and feels a desire to do whatever else is done in his crowd.

He does not usually pick out the worthiest examples for emulation.
If he is allowed to have his own way a few times, he is confirmmed in his rebellious habits, and pretty soon is obeying his ill regulated in pulless. The blame is really on the parents, for failure to assert their authority with some force.

Teachers as a rule are disposed to have faith in their young people.
They find there is less disorder in schools than there used their energy by ill regulated social ife. But as a whole the teachers believe in the young crowd spending less time is mere idleness.

They deplore the fact that many young people are loose and vicious, is which must have some tendency to make such 'ways popular among them.

If the people of a town want it to go ahead, they must get over sentiments of that kind. They must be willing to plunge into public efforts in a "don't care" state of mind, and take it good naturedly if some of their scemes prove unworkable. If they keep plugging away on projects for making their home towns better and more successful, some of their ideas will make good.

Clifford Sutton, of Cincinnati, was in Burlington, last Thursday, enroute home from a visit with his mother, Mrs. Jane Sutton, of McVille. He said his mother was 81 years of age and enjoying the best of health. Cliff is in the employ of the American Express Co, with a run from Cincinnati to Chicago, a position he has held for several years. He enjoys a visit to the scenes of his boyhood, where he can, meet with and talk with his friends of days gone by, and never fails to can un the Recarder when in Borlington and we are always glad to see him.

This part of the county in the next few days will resemble a gam: of checkers, in the way of moving. A. L. Nichols has moved to town, Mr. Greenup will move to the farm vacated by Nichols; Charles Judé will move to the farm vacated by Mr. Greenup; W. W. Craddock will move to the Stephens farm owned by J. G. Jones near, Waterloo; Thos. Hensley will take the, farm vacated by Craddock; P. E. Gulley will move to Lloyd McGlasson's farm near Taylorsport, and a Mr. Hornby will take charge of the farm vacated by Gulley—next.

Nowhere in American life is wasted more conspicuous than in our forests and forest products, says the annual a-port of the Porest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. In all the stages of manufacture there is appalling waste. American business has begun to see the vital hipotrance of better methods of manufacturing and using wood. The Forest Products Labor atory is solving the problem of cutalling waste.

A grumbler is lazy. Not lazy about grumbling, for that is the only thing he wants to do. It is work that gets his goat, for work is something that does not agree with his system. He would die to keep out of work, if he could quit grumbling long enough to draw his last breath.—Ex.

It is said that if we could destroy every rat millions of bushels of grain would be saved in America, but think of how much more would be saved if we could elect to office men of business sonse and constructive aim, instead of professional politicians, concerned about nothing but grawing in the public crib.

The six states leading in potato production in 1922 are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, and Maine, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1921 the six leading States ranked as follows: Main. New York, Minnesota, Michigan. Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

O. P. Phipps, formerly of Bur-lington, but now living one a farm near Lawrenceburg, Indiana, was a visitor to town last Thursday, saking hands with his many friends. He reported the rest of the Boome county boys in that part of Hoosier as well and oing nicely.

SILVERY VOICE

After when Chatting
After his guests had departed an'
while he was chatting with Mrs.
Cockran, he suffered a headache and soon lasped into unconsciousness.
Last rites of the Catholic church were administered shortly before he died

were administered shortly before he died.

News of Mr. Cockran's death stunned his colleagues in Congress and throughout the day at the Capitol, wherever groups of men gathered, stories were told of his remarkable facility of expression.

There were many high lights 1: the life of Mr. Cockran, but those which have stood out in great relief were his oratorical efforts at Defocratic national conventions.

And of these perhaps the most remembered by the present generation was the crossing of swords with William Jennings Bryan at the 1920 party gathering in San Francisco. There he met the "Commoner," himself made famous by a convention speech, in a memorable battle over the proposal to place a dry plank in the platform.

COUNTY BOARD TO MEET

COUNTY BOARD TO MEET
The County Board of Equalization will meet in the court house Monday, March 12th, for the purpose of equalizing the assessment of Boope county made as of July 1st, 1922, and making such increase as the State Tax Commission may require. Boone county is now assessed as high as any of the surrounding counties, and it is hoped that the board will not be required to make a general raise. The board is composed of B. H. Berkshire, Al Rogers, W. B. Johnson, J. B. Cloud and J. H. Walton. They will hear any and all complaints, where the taxpayer thinks that he has been us sessed at an amount in excess of what his property is worth. All property should be assessed at its fairvalue, 100 per cent. The board will remain in session two weeks if necessary to complete their work.

Modern Road As Adventicing

Modern Roads As Advertising
The cost of building and main taining good roads seems so great that many taxpayers are inclined to lie down, and say they simply can't be afforded. Yet before taking that the afforded. Yet before taking that titude, it is well to refect on the returns that a good road brings.

The news that a certain town or district has good road spreads for many miles around. Motorists drive that way when out for pleasure, or will go in that direction when seekting a trading center. They will go many miles out of their way it they can strike a good road into some business center.

The convenience and comfort of a good road is thus a magnet that chraws trade and business, that spreads prosperity into the surround ing country. It makes a town seem; like a live, one. The streets of its business center are well filled with, visitors, while a town with poor outlying roads finds visitors going elsewhere. It costs something to solve the good roads problem, but it costs more not to.

Country School Sports

more not to.

Country School Sports

The country school is a place for children to learn lessons, yet It ought also to have diversions associated with it. Every school house lessons and to play with nearby schools. If the town lacks tennis courts, the same and to play with nearby schools. If the town lacks tennis courts, the same and to play with nearby schools. If the town lacks tennis courts, the sold ground school provide one or more.

Both boys and gris should play these game, and others like basket that. The old timers say it is not the business of the schools to provide aports, but such diversions do more to give young people an enthusiasm for their school than you could accomplish by lecturing them for six months.

Stilled By Death--W. Bourke Cochran is Summoned Suddenly.

Washington, March 1. Death stilled the voice of W. Bourke Cochran, conceded to have been one of the most eloquent orators who ever spoke from the floor of Congress. The famus speaker, a Democratic Representative from New York, who had matched his powers with many of the greatest of his time, died at 7:10 o'clock this morning of appoplexy.

Last night he delivered a vigorous denunciation of farm credits legislation in the House. And later he celebrated the sixty-ninth anniversary of his birth with an old-fashioned days.

Apparently in the best of health, Mr. Cockran entered in to the split of the occasion with his heart. He reptatedly remarked to those the tree tops with a soft misty haze that forecasts summer beauty to come.

The return of the spring birds is a glorious event in country life. Every familiar bird note is a welcome voice, telling of another season of fruitfulness and joy.

When the leaves finally come out in all their soft green glory, of a far more ethereal tint than the one that prevails through the heats of summer, the earth seems a more heavenly place than it can even under the most brilliant autumnal folicy. The bossoming of fruit trees and shrubs is a time when the earth seems verily to sing for joy. It may be thought that country people are struggling and working so hard that they see none of these things. But country people as a whole are deeply sensitive to sill this beauty. They are satisfactions in this panorams of changing seasons that can never be found in the luxurious mansions and artificial pleasures that some find in city live.

Deputy Sherig Utz arrested the drivers of the Fedder's & Sons and the Cincinnati Hay and Grain Co., truck drivers last Thursday. Both o' these trucks were too heavily loaded and they were violating the load lilt law. They were both bound over to the grand jury. The roads will not carry such heavy loads and the owners of trucks, by overloading, are not only violating the law but are putting the roads in such condition that the road funds will not keep them in passable condition. The roads belong to the people and are for their convenience and use but not to abuse.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

Closing Days of Congress Dark

Washington, March 1. — In the closing 6a. — he "Sixty-seventh Congress a very unusual spectacle was staged at a result of the election of the congress as a result of the election has a dispectated was a result of the election of the congress and ministration attempted by the cotters, and some of them for the voters, relying for its passage upon the vote of "lame ducks," who had been likewise repudiated by the voters, and some of them for the very reason that they were for the Ship Subsidy.

Ordinarily a filibuster against legislation is indefensible, but at lart two cases can be cited where a fill buster can be successfully defended, and these two cases were cited by the veteran statesman and legislator Senator John Sharp Williams: First the case of the anti-lynching bill, which, as he said, "would have deprived the states of their very life, which is the police power; Second, the case of the Ship Subsidy bill, in which "an accidental and incidental temperary majority in a legislative body tries to forestall the future and defeat the will of the majority of the people as expressed at an election and as will be expressed by a majority of their recently elected representatives."

As Senator Williams sees it, fyrthe Congress now to pass this Ship Subsidy bill, would be to overthrow the expressed will of the majority of the people, which, ashe says, "in treason to the spirit of democracy." The situation in the Senate at this time is this: The Democrats and the Western Republican progressives are opposed to the bill, in addition a number of the reaching and the world of the majority of the people, which, ashe says, "in treason to the spirit of democracy." The situation in the Senate at this time is this: The Democrats and the Western Republican progressives are opposed to the bill, in addition a number of the reaching progressives are opposed to the bill of the majority of the people, which, ashe says, "in the subject of the bill, in the second of the progressives are opposed to the bill of the majority of the peopl

Moral Standards

Some people seem to feel that the American people are becoming leadent, and that loose ideas of conduct, as respects family life, moral conduct, and business honesty, are becoming exteremely prevalent. It is no doubt tree that in city life one finds a large number of people who seem to have no moral standards. Also, you occasionally find remote rural districts away from helpful influences, where very lax ideas prevail.

But in the ordinary country town.

Tongues That Talk Too Much Many a life of purity has of clouded by the crimson tongue of shame—blasted by the idle gossip of tongues that never cease to wag.

Purity is never safe as long as gossip is at large.

Sometimes it is not vicious gossip, but rather thoughtless or idle remerks that are not intended to harm, but that are taken in the wrong spirit and result in character crucifixion.

Good things said of a person are taken as a matter of course, and are often forgotten.

A detrimental remark, tho amali and of no material consequence, will be taken up and magnified from day to day until it becomes a mountain of iniquity.

That is what tongues do that talk too much.

WHY DOESN'T EVERYBODY

Most of the injuries that occur to athletes of to those who are too strenuous in their sports, golf, tennis, football, driving, fishing, horsahack riding, or what not, are the sprains of the special muscles most used, though occasionally there are fractures, joint injuries and more serious accidents. It will suffice to enumerate the more common injuries and then to speak briefly of the treatment.

Golfer's back is a sprain of the broad muscle of the back and also of a deep-seated muscle running up on either side of the spinal column. Bowler's side is a sprain of one of the anterior serrate muscles which run-from the ribs to the shoulder blades, and of one of the lateral abdominal muscles. In driver's elbow it is not the joint that is affected but the muscles that straighten there are not server the surface of the ligaments to the abductor muscles of the thigh, with mal's sides and so gets his grip; somewhat more serious, for it is usually a rupture of some of the fibres that attach the ligaments to the abductor muscles of the thigh, with mal's sides and so gets his grip; sometimes, however, it is a simple sprain of one of the calf muscles and of the hamstring muscles, which pass as two cords on either side behind the knee from the thigh to the leg. Angler's or fisherman's elbow is virtually the same as driver's elbow; the injury occurs when the fisherman is casting a by or throwing out the hook when fishing with bait.

Two other common sprains are tennis leg and tennis arm. The first is a spasm of the calf muscles which throws down the front of the foot and raises the heel so that walking is impossible; the contraction is often so powerful as to tear some of the muscle fibres and cause urfavire slobe, and the make the throw-hack movements.

Treatments of the several varieties of sprain is simple. Temporary rest with hot applications and not toop owerful rubbing or, better yet professional message will usually effect a cure in a few days. Rest shoud for the prolonged, for a sprain of mining the muscle should be tive long.

Whoever makes frequent or even occasional use of the telephone, and who does not, know that with some people conversation can be carried on with ease and satisfaction, while with others the attempt to do so in variably results in irritation due to inability to understand. The Tree Planting Campaign

The Tree Planting Campaign

The Tree Planting Campaign

If the plans of the American Tree association are carried out, this will be a great tree planting year. Arbor day observances began 51 years ago. The above named association has begun a campaign to have the country make a big start on its second half century of tree planting observances. Alabama and Texashave already begun big on Arbor day celebrations, and California, with its Arbor day March 7, is doing a lot of planting this 'spring. Kentucky should keep right up with the band wagon on this good cause.

People who plant trees gain udvidend of happiness and satisfaction every time they note how they are growing. Every added foot on the growth of such saplings gives them a sense of proprietorship in their community, the feeling that they have made a permanent addition to its beauty and comfort and health.

T. B. Figgins, well-known farmer of near Johnsville, has the distinction of producing the best crop of tobacco in the State. He raised 515 pounds of tobacco on one-third acreo that. He delivered his tobacco to the Foster warehouse and received a grade of $19.33 per hundred. There was $59 pounds of eigarette wrapper in this crop, and the crop had more of this quality of tobacco in it than any crop delivered at the Foster warehouse this season. This little crop was produced without rain, and was cut just $80 days after transplanting. It was the Kelly variety of Burley.—Outlook.

There seems to be no reason whatever why any tobacco grower should want to get out of the pool contract, as the Association is the life-saver of the industry, yet we read now and then of someone who wants to test out his contract, tho they always get defeated in the attempt.

they always get defeated in the attempt.

A few years ago the world was wasting scorn on Germany for her disregard of signed papers—mere scraps of paper. A parallel would not be far wrong for the man who lightly holds his contract whether it be verbal or written. A pool contract should be as good as the growers' cash, so far as intend is concerned. But there are some who have a mania for "besting" some-body or some thing in court, regardless of the understanding under which a contract is made. The Sun holds them in no wise better than the nation which so lightly side-stepped its obligations; and they are "infinited; more counted since it is to their unquestioned benefit to "stay put."—Vanceburg Sun.

One of our local townsmen was asked the other day what he considered the best investment he had ever made, and his reply was quick and illuminating—"My Wife."

Whether a wife may be considered an "investment" or not, she certainly is his most priceless possession, if she is a good woman.

A few men overlook this fact in their seifishness, only to learn of her true value when it is too late.

If it were not for the uplifting influence of the women of this world, life would not be worth living—to any self respecting man. It is thruthe love of women mainly that men are able to acquire and retain the inspiration necessary to battle the forces of evil that are continually attempting the destruction of morality and common decency.

They should not be backward in this respect.

WE WANT BETTER ROADS

There is a persistent and growing demand sweeping over the United States for better country roads.

This demand does not come alone from the man in the eity or town who wants more comfort when touring with his car. It comes also from the farmer, who demands the same degree of comfort when touring or going to market with his car. We have the automobile to thank for this much, for without the automobile we would have drifted along in the same old muddy ruts for years to come.

Talk the necessity for better roads wherever you go. Talk it in season, between seasons, and out of season. Talk it all the time.

Some people may not want to impress with the necessity of better roads.

Be a good roads booster and you will be boosting your own interests.

ON THE WRONG FOOT.

It makes a difference which foote shoe is on.

It makes a difference which foot the shoe is on.

Not a great while ago a subscriber walked into our office and demanded to know why we do not publish all of the news. He referred to a certain matter of an unsavory character.

We have omitted many such spicy stories during the years that we have been in the newspaper game. Possibly we have deprived evertain people of the exquisite pleasure of reading them, but we have at the same time saved many a torn and bleeding heart from unmerited misery ann shame, for the sting is felt more keenly by the innocent relatives than by the eguilty party. It was quite a time after the subscriber took us to task that he himself was involved in a similar episode.

This time he did not demand that we publish the facts. Instead, he pleaded with us not to make them pdblic.

The shoe was on the wrong foot.

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

Sometimes we hear some thought-less person make a disparaging re-mark about this town—and it hurts. This may not be the best town—in the United States but it is a ex-tainty that there are hundreds of thousands not as good in proportion to population and natural advant-ages.

Only half the number of babies today die after the first month, compared with infant mortality 15 or 20 years ago. During the first month four per cent of all infants die, just ass they did in years past. Life it aurance statistics show that it is easier to survive a year at the ago of 65 than for a new-born infant to reach the age of one month.

Hardly any argument is needed to support the statement that girls are greatly superior to boys. Every red-blooded man carries the knowledge in his bones. Poets of all ages have acclaimed it. The folkiore of the nursery veils it in eloquent symbolism:

"That's better!" they approved. "My, the heat feels good!"
A few of the more imaginative convicts are reported to have begun perspiring. All this time, of course, the temperature had, not changed, and the furnaces were cold.

Fewer Trucks in Italy.

Railway transportation in Italy was so bad after the armistice that the use of motortrucks increased rapidly. A large number were sold from Italian war stocks to private firms, and the inanufacture of new vehicles practically stopped.

The railway situation has recently so improved that the use of motor-trucks is being discontinued, as the result of the high cost of gasoline and the fact that railway transportation is cheaper. It is estimated by a large tire manufacturer that the number of passenger cars in use at the present time totals about 40,000, while the number of trucks is less than 15,000.

WHY GOOD QUALITY IN SIRES IS SO IMPORTANT

Although the sire and the dam contribute equally to the heridity of an animal, the influence of the sire in a herd or flock is much greater than any one of the femiles because in practically all cases a sire is the parent of a much larger number of offspring than the dam.

Figures kept by the United States Department of Agriculture, representing the proportion of males to Epartment of Agriculture, representing the proportion of males to femiles on more than 8,900 farms in 4. States, show that the male has from 13 to 30 times more influence than the female, among all classes of animals, in determining the character of the offspring.

These ratios are based on more than a million head of breeding stock listed with the department 'nte "Better Stres—Better Stock."

The figures show that on the average farm where pure-bred sires only are kept, there is one bull to 18 cows; one stallion to nearly twenty mares; one boar to 13 sows; one ram to nearly 30 ewes; one buck to 25 does; and ohe rooster to 21 hens. These figures show at once the economy of beginning improvement in nimal breeding with the use of pure-bred sires.

The history of the nation-wide movement for better live stock shows, however, that the use of pure-bred females quickly follow: the use of pure-bred females quickly follow: the use of pure-bred improvement in the quality of the female poultry listed in the better-sires campaign are themselves pure-bred sires.

Relation of Low Death Rate

To Good Weather Conditions.

The low death rate in the United States in 1921-was not due to wide-spread health propaganda and improvement in the food situation, but also to several other factors, including the conditions, says the Weather Bureau, Inited States Department of Agriculture. Further evidence of the weather factor is presented in figures just released by the Bureau of the Census, which show an increase in the death rate for the first quarter of 1922 from 12.6 to 13.7 per thousand. The weather during the first three months of the year was abnormally cold in many parts, of the consure.

The death rate for 191 was not only the lowest on record in the U.S. but was also about the same in value for countries and cities widely separated. It would be interesting and valuable to be able to trace out the definite connection between specific diseases and the weather. Thus, in England, in 1921, when dry weather was persistent, there were severe epidemics of scarlet fever, and medical authorities had previously noted a connection between carlet fever and dry years. A correlation study of the Binghamton, N.Y., records, and those for Pennsylvania, leads to the bellef that it is low relativity humidity that the important factor, coupled, of course, with a suitable field for epidemic prevalence of the bacterium.

"But what as to the second part of the answer—'from each according to his ability? As a restorative, work of hand and head is an imperative need. Recreation also is necessary. So our public institutions, as agencies for the healing of the sick and the restoration of the wayward, and because of the economic value of work, must require from the inmates according to their capacity to perform. "What I have so briefly and incomplecely indicated as the minimum standards of our public wards is at least indicative of the broad policies adopted and already in operation in many States."

Fur-Farming Problems Being Solved By Biological Survey.

The rapid development within the United States of the industry of rearing silver and cross foxes has necessitated particular efforts, on the part of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture to work out practical methods for handling the problem's constantly confronting the fur farmer regarding the health of animals in captivity. During the year past a large percentage of the fox farms in this country and Canada were visited by representatives of the bureau for the purpose of study ing practices of feeding and man agenet employed and conditions affecting the health and forundity of the animals, and conferring with fox ranchers regar... "Ima requiring solution.

Returns from a questionnaire sent out to persons in the fur-farming industry in this country were incomplete, but it is estimated that at least 500 ranchers are raising silver foxes in the U. S., that they have between 12,000 and 15,000 foxes in captivity, and that the value of the Investment is about $8,000,000.

There is indication that internal parasites of foxes are prevalent, and studies are being made to determine effective agents for their removal and improved methods of administering remedies. The most important parasites found are hook-worms, roundworms, lungworms, flukes, tapeworms, and occidian Valuable information has been obtained as to the occurrence of such parasites among wild foxes and investigations have been made with regard to the susceptibility of fox pups at Arrious ages to infestation as compared with adults. Numerous other subjects relating to the hearth of foxes have been studied.

THE MAJORITY SHOULD RULE

The Majority Should Rule.

The ship subsidy bill was adopted in the House of Representatives by the slender plurality of tewenty-four and this was made possible by the favorable vote of sixty-six representatives who were defeated for relection last November. The situation is the same in the Senate. The subsidy grab has not a chance except through the support of "lame ducks," The President knows this, and he knows, too, that the new Congress will have nothing to do with subsidies; therefore the whole subsidy fight has raged around the propriety of appropriating wast sums of money for a bad purpose through the votes of men who have been repudiated by the people, some of them on this direct issue.

All of this has been said before and it may reasonably be said abain in defense of the filibuster in the Senate. That filibuster is far more defensible than the average senatorial filibuster. Boosters and Buckers and they become honored as well as prosperous.

Be a Booster—a Bucker never does anything worth while for his community. Some people are Boosters by nature. They never lose an opportunity to do a good deed for the town, and when no opportunity presents itself they get out and make one. Towns are made by such people, and they become honored as well as prosperous.

The Bucker is of a different class—quite different.

If the Booster comes out with a good suggestion the Bucker can see nothing redeeming in it. He bucks it because the booster suggests it.

He may not know anything of the merits of the case, but that does not matter. It is his nature to buck and he is not happy unless he is bucking—mething or somebody.

A bucking horse never brings a good price.

A bucking man is worth less.

MANY GOOD HENS GO AT LOSE IN SPRING SALES

LOSE IN SPRING SALES

Lexington, Ky.—Thousandss of hens that are good layers and therefore profitable are sold at a loss out of Kentucky farm flocks each year about the time that eggs begin to get cheap, according to H. R. Jackson, poultry specialist of the College of Agriculture. It has become quite a common practice for farmers to sell off hens at this time of the year without questioning whether they are good or poor layers, he says. Good layers should be held over, because no matter how cheap eggs are, these hens always produce them cheaply enough to more than pay for their cost of production.

Selling hens without paying much attention to their laying ability also hampers the progress of the poultry bree. " — according followed on the farm by taking away the hens that are desirable breeders and leaving culls in their place. On the other hand, making sure that only poor layers leave the farm in the spring when hens are sold gives the good layers a better chance. Feed goes farther, the poultry house is not so crowded, many disease germs being carried by the poor layers will be climinated and the flock in general broaght down to a more profitable basis.

TAXING COAL

The State government in Illinois is considering the imposition of an 8-cent tonnage tax upon the probabilities are that something of that kind will be made into law. In the mean time the Illinois coal operators are peading strenuously against the tax—pleading against any tay, and against the proposed tax as too high.

This is a atter which it will be well for the State of Ky, to watch carefully. When a tonnage tax was proposed in Kentucky during the first Legisature that met under Gov Morrow, a strong argument was made against the proposition, on the theory that if K. coveky imposed a tonnage tax and Illinois dislate, the Illinois operators would have a big advantage. But if Illinois is to impose a tonnage tax, as Pennsylvania has already done, that argument disappears.

The next Kentucky Legislature argument disappears.

The next Kentucky Legislature will unquestionably meet with a mandate from the people to do something about taxing coal. There are several ways to do it. One is through a tonnage tax; another is through a tostate income tax. A third is by increasing assessments upon coal lands through the State Tax. Commission. At the present moment the tonnage tax seems the most feasible. But we must determine how much the traffic will bear. If we do impose a tonnage tax we should be careful not to make it so large as to check coal production.—Louisville Post.

The Prevalence of Divorce Figures of divorce in some of the leading cities show that the number of such separations was from a third to a half of the number of marriages. It seems a terrible tragedy that all these marital shipwrocks are occuring.
What becomes of the children set adrift! Every little one needs the care of both a father and mother, but millions of young people are going to grow up semi-orphans.
Young people ought to be taught that marriage is a serious responsibility, and one that should not be lightly cast-aside. The country needs more moral principle. We can teach all the sciences to be found in libraries. But if the young crowd have not conceived the idea of moral obligation and right and wrong, millions of homes will go 'o wreck, and the future of another generation will, be prejudiced.

ARE THEY GROWING BETTER?

ARE THEY GROWING BETTER?

We know of several families who have almost gone to the wall in the hast three years on account of lactor work and enterprise on the part of the boys and girls who seem to have thought that it was not necessary to help the parents make a living and pany off the indebtedness upon the home.

The time was once when the young folks took a delight in helping the old folks and we believe that time will come again. Probably not until some few homes have been broken up and sold for debt but the wages of idleness are certein and the lessons learned will cause the young to take notice.

In the past twelve months many boys have settled down to work and are laying up money, and will soon be owners of their own property Education and industry plays a winning part in the successo of all and 1923 seems to have opened up bright prospects for those who desire to succeed and the indications are that our young folks and old are growing better.

The Understudies

The success and advancement of a young man or woman often depends on whether such a person can quickly take up the work of some superior or his employer, and carry it forward successfully for a period. The past winter has seen a great deal of illness, and many people have been knocked out for temperary periods. In either a bilg or little concern, when folks are out for sickness or other cause, some one must-step in the gap and try to perform the functions of the absent one.

HEARTLESS PEOPLE

HEARTLESS PEOPLE

The indifference that some folks manifest toward the comfort of their domestic pets is surprising. Complaint is made at summ resorts, for instance, that many people leave cats there at the close of a season when they start for home. In many cases they get these cats as playthings for their children. When the summer is over, they turn them loose without a thought of how the poor hungry creatures are going to live.

loose without a thought of how interpoor hungry creatures are going to live.

Many people never make any citort to teach their children to be kind to pets. One woman tells of seeing child who had cut off the paws of a sitten with a pair of large scisors, also some boys who had tied a cord to a cat and were swinging the suffering creature around in the air.

The Chamber of Commerce of Carton, Mississippi, and the United States Veterans Bureau, are cooperating to encourage world's was veterans to undertake farming. It is hoped eventually to set up 150 of them with 17,000 acres in that in-cality. Also the Illinois Central Railroad assists by an arrangement for providing pure bred hogs.

The American people have a heavy responsibility toward tho veterans, particularly those who were disabled. If a large number of them could be settled on good paying farms, thus avoiding the ups and downs of factory employment, it would be a happy outcome. Business associations and railroad companies would do well to give them some tangible encouragement, as the instance reported above.

COUNTY EGG-LAYING CONTEST. BURLEY PLANTS TO REMAIN OPEN TILL TOBACCO IS ALL IN.

DIRECTORS ORDER RE-OPENING OF THE DUCKS FOR THE CROP YEARS OF 1923 TO 1926 -WELFARE.

Lexington, Ky.—Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, in regular monthly session here Wednesday, directed the re-opening of the books for the 1923 to 1926 crops, besides transacting a large amount of routine business and discussing thoroughly the situation in the Burley district.

time business and discussing thoroughly the situation in the Burley district.

Director of Warehouse Ralph M. Barker reported that the closing of the Association receiving plants in some of the smaller receiving points would take place March 15, but that at all points the plants would be kept open as long as there was any tobacco to deliver and as long as the interests of the Association seemed to require it. He urged all directors, however, to stress the importance of early deliveries in their districts, so as to terminate the expense connected with keeping the plants open.

Stone announced appointment of Miss Verna Elsinger, of Atlanta, Georgia, as head of the Welfare department of the Burley Association, which will work among the women and children of the tobacco growers, fin connection with the Field Service Division. Miss Elsitger will assume her duties April 1. She will conduct a department in the Burley Tobacco Grower, official publication of the association, in the Interest of the women and children of the Burley district.

The railroads which Senator Cummins says must be operated by the United States Government unless transportation can pe made more profitable than it is are known in railroad and Government circles as "the weak sisters."

Operation of these railroads by the Government probably would have the effect, although not designedly, of an opening wedge.

It should be obvious to anyone that if the Government should operate, at a loss, railroads not noverant and a profit, taxpayers would object, and Government operation advocates, who are, in almost every instance, Government ownership advocates at bottom, would dedlare it unjust to the taxpayers to operate the "weak sisters" at a loss while permitting the prosperous railroads to be operated privately, at a profit. It would be said that if the Government must stand a loss on some railroads the only fair thing—to the public—would be to operate all railroads, that the losses of the "weak sisters" might be offset by the earning of the strong roads.

Any adventure in Government operation of railroads would be snapped up by propagandists favoring nationalization of industries as available capital. No solution of the transportation problem in keepiny with the principle of the independence of the visual states of the strong roads.

The electric lines were, in almost the principle of the independence of the roads that now are losing money. The electric lines were, in almost all instances, losing money a few years—ago. Many of them now—are being town their feet—as privately owned and managed enterprises—with the service improving. Had the Government undertaken to operate all olising trolley lines it flow would be operating practically all; or all, trolley lines, and operating at a loss many systems which now are being operated privately at a profit.—Courier-Journal.

SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

Boone County Farm Bureau,
Mr. Clem Kendall, President.
Burlington, Ky.
Dear Mr. Kendall—Replying to your telegram of February 21, sent from Covington, in which you asked support of the Fillea Milk Bill, I wish to say this measure was passed and it gave me pleasure to support it.
Yours Pery Truly,
RICHARD P. ERNST.

The above speaks for itself in ahowing the effectiveness of Farm Bureau sentiment in influencing legislation favorable to the farmer. The purpose of the Field Milk Bill is to prohibit the sale of products containing substitutes for mik, thus protecting the interests of the dairymen.

Some folks seem to feel that un leas the American people are ex tremely careful they are likely to have good government put over or them.

ent by the Secretary of Agri-lture, Henry C. Wallace.

On the last day it was in session Congress enacted the Agricultural Credits Act. This act is designed to give the farmer the sort of credit he needs to produce efficiently and market in an orderly way the products of the farm. It is an effort by Congress to meet a need which has been felt for at least fifty years. The act may not be perfect. Quite possibly experience will show the need of amendments from time to time. But it furnishes the basis for a system of intermediate, credit adapted to farm conditions and farm needs. Also it should bring about a reduction in the interest which farmers must pay for money borrowed.

The act is divided into two parts. In the first, it provides government agencies for handling agricultural loans. In the second it authorizes the organization of private agencies under government spervision formaking loans on live-stock security and on farm commodities on the way to market.

The government loan activities will be carried on in connection with the Federal land banks. At the present time the country is divided into twelve districts, and in each of these districts there is a Federal land banks there is to be established an intermediate credit banks with a sepital of not to exceed $5,000,000. The land bank which makes land mortgage loans, these twelve banks being directed by a central Federal Farm Loan Bureau in Washington. In connection with each of these land banks there is to be established an intermediate credit banks are authorized to discount farmers' notes which have been taken by banks and other financial institutions, and then can carry such notes for a term of from six months to three years. The banks may also loan direct to farmers' count farmers' notes which have been taken by banks and other financial institutions, and then can carry such notes for a term of from six months to three years. The banks may also loan direct to farmers' coperative associations under conditions set forth in the act.

The Federal Reserve Act is amended by broadening the definition of what is called agricultural paper, making it include the grading and processing of agricultural product by cooperative marketing associations. Heretofore the Federal Reserve Banks have not been permitted to discount agricultural paper for a longer period than six month. This period has been increased to nine months.

DIMINISHED PRODUCTION

goods produced at increased expense.

Many people feel that this low total of production has been caused by reducing hours of labor. If people do not put any more energy per hour into an eight hour day than they used to put into ten hours, the cost of their output should correspondingly increase. They would have to work a day and a quarter to produce as much as they did before a day, hence the cost of their labor would have increased 25 per cent additional to such increases as were caused by raised wages.

People who have been given the advantages of a shorter day ought to feel so much more energy, that they would do nearly or quite annuch as they did in the longer period. In past years nany wage earners were no doubt driven too hard, yet working too little has its dangers as well as working too much.

Some people think that when the productiveness of labor falls off, the cort of the deterioration comes out of the employers. But that is not the case. If the manufacturer or builder finds his production cost more, he raises his price, and the mass of the people have to pay. Thus in the end the producers whose output falls off have to pay for their own diminished results.

Three millions will be used in construction, it is explained, the fourth million being an endowment fund for the upkeep of the building.

The foundations for this huge temple are already in place. The corner trone laying will be held early in November. Large delegations will be used in construction and the consistency of the building. The foundations for this huge temple are already in place. The corner trone laying will be held early in November. Large delegations will come on that occasion from every section of the country, fully 50,0601 being expected from the various jurisdictions, in addition to the thousands from Washington and neighboring counties.

This great building is one of a number, now hullding and proposed which when completed, will put Washington, D. C., and its environs definitely in the lead in cities of the world which are architectural treasure houses.

rule by organized minorities which thwart the will of the unorganized majority.

The Right Reverend Thomas F Gailor, Bishop, of Tennessee, lays at the door of the "reformer" much of the disrespect of law, of which the country complains, and says that laws which restrict personal freedom and crimes of natural acts cause contempt of courts.

Evidently something is wrong! When the lawyer, the layman, and the churchman all agree that something is awry in our legal structure, something probably is!

One man's guess is as good as another's as to what; but there is a decided undercurrent of belief in many quarters that one of our troubles, if not the cause of all our legal tangles, is too much aw; too much adding statute to Etatute, regulation to regulation, practice to practice, without any clearing out of the dead wood of old and worn our ideas.

There are even those who say that much legal trouble is caused by lawyers; there is too much reverence for tradition and precedent, and accanough common sense, and therefore not enough expedition in law processes.

That the lawyers, themselves are forming an association to investigate and initiate reforms is comforting; that they may have the vision to call to their aid some commentense viewpoints from laymen and churchmen, for whom the laws are made, is devoutly to be hoped!

WHO GETS THE HONOR?

WHO GETS THE HONOR!

In this time, as, in all others, there is one man or woman who does more for community betterment then any other person-possibly more than any several other persons.

Who is that man or woman?

A question of this kind ought to start you to thinking. And after you hape thought for a time it ought to start you to doing something yourself.

Any energetic person can do a lot for this town alone and single handed, but many persons working in harmony can accomplish wonderful results.

And there is room for all that we can do.

Hang the badge of honor upon the can do.

Hang the badge of honor upon the man or woman to whom it is due, and then go out with a determination to grab that badge off for your own self.

That is the way to get results.

MOTOR MURDERS GROWING

In one of our large cities reckless motorists have run down and killed more than a hundred people within two months, and the merry killing still goes on unchecked.

Considering that this is merely the record of one city, the roll of motor murders sthroughout the country must be frightful indeed.

There are two reasons for this condition of affairs. Legislatures are unwilling to make laws to fit the crime, and prosecutors and courts seem unwilling or powerless to properly apply even the laws that we have.

Fortunately we will always have a heavy influx of immigrants from foreign countries otherwise motor murders, coupled with our ordinary death roll, would in time depopulate our country and leave it a barran waste ot land.

CO-OPERATION.

The spread of the idea of co-operation among the farmers is something marvellous, and in many sections it has the enthusias of a religious crusade. The country people have perhaps concluded that God helps those who help themselves, and perhaps they can get shead faster by organizing a better distribution system than they can by any legislation the politicians can get for them.

From Small Beginnings.

Missionary beginnings have been marked by mainy discouragements. Dr. Rohert Laws of Livingstonia, Africa, balanced assets and liabilities after the first five years in that mission. On one side he was atle to count one convert, but against this there were five European graves, five years' hardship and an expense of $100,000. But what a difference today! Before the missionary arrived Nyassakand was a vast region where day! Before the missionary arrived Nyassainal was a vast region where cruelty, witcheraft, drunkenness and bloodshed terrorized the people. "We want steep," they cried as Livingstone became acquainted with them. Men now carry spears but it is to ward off wild beasts. Women and children are not afraid to aleep or travel the bush paths. The Hiblys shrine has six classes of weddings, analog from 15 to 70 yen. During the war most families desired the first or econociass ceremonies, rated 70 or 50 yen, but this year's weddings were generally performed with the pine, bamboo or plum classes, the cost being respectively 25, 20 and 15 yea. I was anxious to get the windows washed, but all the neighboring jan ltors were too busy to undertake the work. I happened to see a man washing the windows of a house that had recently been sold. Impulsively, I went into the yard and asked him it he would not do mine. He laughed and said he did not believe he had time, and I later on, much to my chagrin, learned the real reason: He was the owner of the house, and had had the same difficulty as I in getting the work done, so had put on his old clothes and got busy himself.—Chicago Tribune.

as many as three or four classes of society in our little section of country, not one of any of those classes associated with any of these classes associated with any of the class be neath their's, and yet, all christians, maybe members of the same church—why? Let us get this one cold fact in our craniums, filthy lucre cannot huy "Heaven or the Here after" if it could have, I am afraid, there would not be any "Happy abode for our soul't welfare now" and our earthly banks would be crowded with "bulletin" of precious metals of the purest and lastiff, torn up from the streets, and jewels from the walls of that city eternal; and we think our banks are robbed wastly, aften now. but think of *har robberies, the cold distrust, malice; envy, hatred one for another, and if we were all supplied, we would not have to do or make any of the conveniences of life. There should be two classes—a "good moral class" and a "Bad" but, let every one be hid own chooser, for his own environment, either for good or bad in accordance with the motto of frommed from the dust of the ground but, can we find any Historical fact, that any better grade of dust,—any richer in quality is put in one of us, than another? or any finer delicate bodily organs are southered in one, more than another? We see those organs roughenced and nicked and tempered to hardness and ruddy health in the labore—like a diamond in rough use, or before it is polished, as it comes from the mine, but the quality and value is all there. So then if our friend is a diamond in the rough, though without financial accompaniment, and maybe intellectual accomplishments, his mind craves unknown to us, because we have ignored mask of indifference? Remember that talent is going to be required of us some day with usuary at a big per cent. Are we going to be able to pay it? So "get buy" and think for yourselves—that is what that bright, young intelkct is given you for.

Is this a good country in which to live and prosper?

Is this a good country in which to live and prosper?

Millions of people in other countries think so, whether you do or not. They want to break through our immigration barriers and become citizens with us, and are making use of every known device to attain that end.

American consuls abroad are literally deluged with requests for passports, with every conceivable pressure backing up those requests. Fortunately, however, the number that can be admitted to our shores is limited by law, otherwise they would become a pest surpassing the seven year locusts.

Thina a sun before you thought-lessly condemn a country that appeals so strongly to other people.

Three thousand or more years ago
King Tut reigned in Egypt. Tut

His grave was recently discovered

Very rich men of today do not have their wealth buried with them.
It is needed to support their gilded

Back in those days it is assumed

Today many of them merely rat.

Today many of them merely rattle around in their dad's old shocs

THE BIGGEST BUSINESS

What is? FARMING, MR. FARMER, as a partner in that busin are you making the most of your opportunity? Are you giving your dividual support andinfluence toward the organization of that busing that you may successfully meet up with all other forms of busin need of which are unorganized, and thus established and protect y interests?

IF YOU ARE NOT DOING YOUR PART, ARE YOU PLAYING FAIR WITH YOUR FAMILY, YOUR BUSINESS, YOUR COMMUNITY AND YOURSELF?

If YOU REALLY, YOUR BUSINESS, YOUR COMMUNITY AND YOURSELP?

Would it not be the proper course for you to at once identify yourself with that system of organization? You will naturally ask now the name of that system and what it has accomplished to prove its merit.

Mr. Man, below is the first of a series of articles considering the relationship which exists, or should exist, between the farmers and the farm BUREAU in presenting these articles to you, it is appreciated the FARM BUREAU movement has made mistakes, but can you cite one instance of any worthwhile movement which has not had to weed out the tares as it — 3-covard a stable foundation? NO, you exministed to it, neither can you point out any other agricultural organization which has had such enormous strides and achieved such remarkable and profit cable results as has the FARM BUREAU. It is also realized the average farmer has not had the time to read up and become familiar with the FARM BUREAU, and the string of the farmer has not had the time to read up and become familiar with the read up and become familiar with the some of the most important facts relative to the County Unit; progress.

THEREFORE, the purpose of these articles is to acquaint him with some of the most important facts relative to the County Unit, the State and National achievements for 1922 and the proposed action for 1823. With such facts before him, whereby he can painly see how he is represented, through the FARM BUREAU, before Congress, Interstate Commerce Commissions, etc., whereby he was saved to a painly see how he is represented to the county who does not postered to the farmer in old Boone County who does not postered to the farmer in old Boone County who does not postered to the farmer in old Boone County who does not postered to the farmer of the farmer of the farmer of the FARM BUREAU but for your own betterment, for the FARM BUREAU but for your own betterment, for the FARM BUREAU but for your own betterment, for the FARM BUREAU but for your own betterment, for the FARM BU

Let us first consider an ideal county organization of the FARM BUREAU. It would be as a set of wheels, intermeshing and working smoothly together, producing recults as surely as does your oil Elgin. With the county signed up as a whole, each community would be under the middle of their Director. At their frequent meeting the members would discuss the better of their schools, a program for road improvement, the standardiaction and improvement of farm products, the assisting of commodity or ganizations — in fact, everything which has a tendency lower of improving and progression of agriculturar interests. Then, in the matter of supplies, toward which they would justly turn their attention, each Director could have his members anticipate the reduction of the supplies, the supplies of the supplies at a figure fair both to them and the seller. Sounds like a dream, doesn't it? But why couldn't it be carried out? The bally requirements are affiliation, loyalty and confidence in the officers of your organization.

What about the other side of the above question? You are asked by the supplies of the supplies o decinition of the confidence in the officers of your organization.

What about the other side of the above question? You are asked to take the place of the Manager. That memberahip is limited and co-operation is weak. Suppose you have a limited capital. You do not know how much, feed, seed or anything less will be purchased thru you. You cannot phrehase with any pressure because you are thus handicapped. A member may come in and say he thinks he will need 20 bushels of soy beans and 5 bushels of clover. You quote him the best price you have. The next day he will return with the encouraging (?) news that he has beaten your price and bought lesewhere. Don't you know why he beat your price. Also, don't you know what you could have done in the way of quoting him an interesting figure had you been backed by a pool order for a thousand or two bushels of seed and had used that the competative in the your limited ed capital in stock. The sad story of co-operatives, in that particular, is pool order, and the same applies to caring for The fearmers' rest in the farmers' rest to the sake and the farmers' rest to the caring for The fearmers' rest to caring for The fearmers' rest to the same applies to caring for The fearmers' rest to the same applies to caring for The fearmers' rest to the same applies to caring for The fearmers' rest to the same applies to caring for The fearmers' rest to the same applies to caring for The the same applies to caring for The target and the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers' rest to the same applies to caring for The termers'

LIGHT-EDGED ROADS FRIABLE

Road Break Undar Traffic of Light Trucks.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Articulus).

Some of the lighter sections of the Bates experimental road failed under the traffic of light trucks driven along the edge of the surfaces on the first day of the test. The road, which was especially constructed for the experiments now being conducted by the state highway department of Illinois in co-operation with the bureau of public roads, United States Deparament of Agriculture, is two miles long and consists of numerous sections of different types of construction.

On March 30, the day the road was opened for the tests, 12 trucks with bodies removed to make a load of 2,748 pounds on each rear wheel were started on trips, which will continue with increasing londs until the suitability of each type is determined. The trucks were driven so that the outside wheels were on the edge of the paving, and almost immediately some of the sections began to fail. This was expected, as the sections were of light design and intended to demonstrate the futility of such construction.

The road will be subjected to a number of tests under the destructive pounding of the trucks, and it is expected that much valuable informa-moved.

Hon will be gained for use in future road construction. In addition to specialists assigned to investigate soil conditions, temperature effects, and other factors, five engineers are constantly observing the effect as the trucks continue their daily grind. The experiments will continue until all the sections have been thoroughly tested.

BOOM IN MATERIAL TESTING

Idly in Past Few Years in Different States.

The great boom in highway building which has come since the federaliad act of 1916 has led to an increase in the facilities for testing highway materials. The hureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture keeps in touch with all laboratories which test material for federal-aid roads and reports that the number has grown from a scattered few in 1916 to at least one in every state with two exceptions. They are distributed as follows; State highway department inhoratories 20, university laboratories 27, and commercial laboratories 21, a total of 68.

Conditions have become such that it is practically a necessity for each state to have means of quick testing in order not to delay work. In passing on materials the laboratories are governed by the idea that roads must be constructed with materials close at hand wherever possible and give as surance for the use of such material where it is suitable.

KENTUCKY CHILD WELFARE cial Lessons For Adult Sur School Classes Lesson No. 3. Topic—Child Placing. Sunday, March 18, 1923.

"Be it ever en humble, there's no place like home."

"There is a growing realization that the home even though not the child's own is the best preparatory school for life. Using this as a basic principle, several states have closed their organical properties of the control of the child in the child best properties. The closed their organical properties of the control of the child proves unforted the child in the child placing depends on a careful investigation of the family where the child is to be pinced. It is impossible to exercise too much care in the selection of a home for a dependent child. The child is made or marred by the home in which he or marred by the home in which he placed. A child placing agent should be a most capable person trained for the position. "Certain States have pointed the wind the field of child welfare. Thru well organized Boards of Public Wel-fare, they supervise the care of every dependent child in the State. They preserble minimum standards for in-stitutions caring for dependent chil-dren.

"The following quotation made by Miss Sarah Brown will indicate the situation in Keutucky: 'In Kentucky, children left homeless have no friendly authority with flual responsibility for their care and as a result fail into the hands of whoever happens know and care enough to see that a permanent home is secured for them.

"How long shall we permit this haphazard policy with our children? "Remember Christ once said: Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

"Is life worth living? Yes, so long As there is wrong to right—
So long as fath with freedom reigns

And men are free to think and act,
Yes—life is worth living still."

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

The keynote to success in cookery accurate measurement and accurate

Is accurate measurement and accurate untensils. A measuring cup may look all right, but may vary from one to three tablespoonfuls. This is often true of the glass ones as a beavy bottom deceives the eye. There is no such thing as luck in cookery. Accurate measuring and careful following of a recipe will bring good results. All measurement in most cook books today are level and uniform. Heaping and rounding measures are rarely uniform even with the same individual.

DAVIESS FEEDER MAKES STÈERS GAIN ALMOST A POUND MORE EVERY DAY.

Owensboro, Ky.—J. D. Reigz, a Daviess county farmer and cattie feeder living near here, has made a success of cattle feeding by giving his steers plenty of room in the barn and following other practical and up-to-date suggestions made to him during the course of feeding demonstrating with the extension demonstrating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

A state of the college of Agriculture at Lexington with his barn, which gave his steers more room the installation of a warmer and the samell variation in the ration being fed, coupled with the fact that the feeding period was sightly longer, made it possible for him to get an average daily gain of 2.36 pounds of beef a day on each of his steers, whereas he had been able to put on only 1.4 pounds a day on each animal-before the changes were made. During the first year that he coperated in demonstrating good methods of feeding, cattle on his farm, Mr. Reisz got a gain of 172 ½ pounds of gain on each of his steers during a feeding period that lasted 120 days. This was an average daily gain of 1.4 pounds. The animals were fed under shelter but were altogether too crowded for the biggest and cheapest gains.

Before starting feeding operations the following season, Mr. Reisz than was leading of a feeding period that lasted 120 days. This was an average with Wayland Rhonds, beef cattle extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, and took a number of steps to put his cattle feeding overations on a better basis. Among other things he built a concrete watering tank in his feed iot, put an additional runway on the barn and slightly changed the ration that he was feeding. In this second year, with a feeding period lasting 156 days, he put an average gain of 392 2-3 pounds on on each of his steers thereby more than doubling the total gain that he had been able to make on each steer the previous year.

LIME AND PHOSPHATE MORE THAN DOUBLE TOBACCO CROF

Lexington, Ky.—At present prices, there are few Kentucky crops that will pay larger returns for fertilizer than tobacco, R. E. Stephenson, soils and crops specialist of the College of Agriculture says. The average yield of this crop in the state is now low, scarcely more than 800 pounds an acre, although the best farmers produce two and three times that amount on good land. Results on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station's soil experiment field at Greenville, which are illustrative of resuts obtained in tests and demonstrations in many other parts of the state, show that limestone and acid phosphate, used in a rotation of tobacco, wheat and clover, increased the yield of tobacco nearly two and a half times. The yield of wheat was nearly trebled and the yield of clover nearly five times as great. The money invested in lime and phosphate returned profits at the rate of nearly $9 for each dollar invested.

These are average results for a seven-year period and have been almost duplicated by many farmers. As much as 500 pounds of acid phosphate an acre can be used with manure on poor land for tobacco. A very rich soil in a favorable season and a produce a heavy yield of coarse quality leaf, for extremely large yields as a rule, lack the quality of the more moderate yields. However, the average yield of tobacco in Kentucky could be about doubled without any danger of sacrificing quality.

Nearly all farmers use stable manure on tobacco land and get a good supply of nitrogen and potash for their leaf crops. However, manure. Itse soils outside the bluegrass section, lacks phosphorous. To get the best yields, a liberal application of some form of phosphate are abundant.

THE RETIRED FARMER

Up to recent years it was the ambition of men in all occupations to be able to retire when they reached an age when work comes a little hard. But many who have tried it have found that their inactive life was not what they hoped.

They grew older faster than if they have they have they hoped they are to the time. Farming has in the past been such a laborious occupation, that many of the older farmers sell their properties and move into downs and cities. Probably many who do so wish they were back again on the old acres. Those who by keeping their boys at home or securing other satisfactory helpers, are able to make their home permanently on the old place, get more out of life than they could by uprootting themselves and moving into a strange city.

Thorugh increased use many many.

Thorugh increased use many many streams once plentifully stocked with fish are becoming depleted, says tine Forest Service of the United States Departent of Agriculture. In Colorado the Forest Service received 4.178,000 trous fry from State hatcheries and 776,000 trous fry from Federal hatcheries, which were successfully planted in streams and inkes within the national forests.

A FAMILY WEAKNESS

"You are descended from the Pil-grim Fathers?"
"I am, sir," replied the impecunious citizen. "My ancestors came to this country 802 years ago and it's my firm bellef that none of their descendants has ever accumulated ehough money to make the return trip."

Gave Parents Good Laugh.

A. N. R. writes that this took place the other day at his family table:

Mother—Good for you, what is lit?

Patience Overplayed.

"A farmer has us we patient."

Recitation.

"True," answered Senator Sorghum, wearily; "but why should so many insist on serving as postmaster?"—Washlington Star.

HAND-BRAIDED RUGS ARE EASY TO MAKE

Hand-braided rugs of the old-fashloned variety are more easily made than many people think. The rags are torn about three inches wide, and the edges turned in as they are braided. The braid is then colled in the center and sewn flat, or, for the oval rugs, two parallel rows serve as a center. Always keep the rugs as flat as possible. The round rugs at the top-of the sketch are blue and white with blue borders. The 'middle colored ginghams, and the lower one of tan and black stockings.

May Be Rain-Making and Fog-Dispelling, It Is Said.

(Pittsburg Dispatch)

What next? Rainmaking and fog dispelling may be the coming marvel if 'the claims of Prof. Bancroft of Cornell and L. F. Warren at Dayton-flying-field are sustained. Precipitation has been caused and the clouds made to disappear, they say during experiments conducted in cooperation with the army air service. The process was simple: electrically charged grains of sands dropped upon clouds from airplanes. Fogs over cities, harbors and flying fields are to vanish upon-command, and rain to fall, though perhaps, it is admitted, with less certainty, since all clouds do not contain sufficient morture, and the mist may be evaporated before It reaches the carth. THE ATTRACTIVE COUNTRY HOME.

Recent years have seen splendid progress in the effort to make country homes attractive. The old time country place was often sadly defective in this particular. Many farmers and villacon respile woul." The country place was often sadly defective in their yards, and it never occurred to them to do a thing around in their yards, and it never occurred to them to do a thing charm or attractiveness.

Any home owner can make his dwellings more salable, more livable, and more of an advertisement of the country of the Farmers are making use of the radio in obtaining market reports. Nation-wide, practical use of these geports sent broadcast by the Unite's States Department of Agriculture is indicated in survey just completed. Nearly 50 per cent of the hundreds of returns to an inquiry sent out by radio were from farmers who had radio receiving equipment. The mainder of the returns who had radio receiving equipment. A storm of cyclonic proportions

A storm of cyclonic proportions visited this part of the county, last Sunday night. The storm was accompanied by rain, thunder, lightning and a heavy wind, which did considerable damage—blowing down trees and unrooffing houses and barns. Half of the roof on Odd-Fellows Temple at Florence was blown off as was also part of the roof on a barn on the farm of the late J. T. Craven on the Burlington and Florence pike. In this immediate vicinity very little damage was done.

SOYBEAN SEED SCARCE AS ACREAGE INCREASES

AS ACREAGE INCREASES

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky probably will have a shortage of soybean seed this year, according to a statement issued here by Ralph Kenney, crop extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, urging farmers to get their orders for seed in early. Even though the acreage of this crop was doubled in the state in 1922 and tripled in many counties, indications now are that there will be a big increase in the acreage again this year. Even with an acreage twice as large as that grown last year, Kentucky will be growing only one-tenth as many acres of soybeans as she should, Mr. Kenney says.

says. Farmers who are planning to grow soybean hay are being advised to use the Mammoth Yellow variety, the seed of which can be obtained from growers in North Carolina and Tennessee. The Haberlandt has always been recommended as the variety for planting in corn to hay down in the state. The home supply of this seed soon will be gone but there is a reasonable sumply of seth down in the state. The home supply of this seed soon will be gone but there is a reasonable supply of seed from the Hollybrook and Mongol varieties, two yellow-seed during ties maturing about the same tinc that Haberlandt does and well-suited for hogging down, that is available. These two varieties are grown in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois and have been renamed under the combined name of Midwest.

A larger acreage than usual of beans planted with corn is being planned this year with the expectation of letting the bean roug rot after the corn is picked. Last year's experience with this practice demonstrated that the rotted beans were equal to two or three tons of barinyard manure an are. The Mammoth Yellow variety is said to be best for use in this connection because it makes a larger growth and gathers are more nitrogen from the air than it gathered by some of the other varieties.

With the heavier demand being made for soybean seed, the production of it probably could be under that whe broth or of proclamation to take part in the item of the proclamation to take part in the indicator of the production of it probably could be under that the week of April 22 to 28.

HEN LAYS SAME TYPE EGG
FROM WHICH SHE HATCHED

Lexington, Ky.— One of the main reasons why farmers get so much less for their eggs than is paid by commission merchants and produce dealers in large cities is the fact that eggs from farm flocks show great variation in size, edolor andshape, unacce—ding to J. H. Mastin, in charge of poultry work at the College of Agriculture. This need not be if farmers would hatch, their pullets from eggs that are of good shape with the right color for the breed and weighing at least two ounces. Size, color and shape of reggs are inherited characteristics and a pullet or hen will tend to lay the same kind of egg in these respects from which she was hatched. A uniform product of high quality always brings the best price, Mr. Martin points out.

It is highly important that eggs for hatching be large if for no other reason than that small eggr process.

All eggss used for hatching should be true to color for the breed. Legshorm, Minorca and Anona eggs should be pure white, free from any yellow tint or foreign color. Eggs from the heavier breeds, like the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte and the Rhode Island Red, should be brown. The color in these may vary from a light shade to a clear, dark brown. Eggs for hatching should be as near as possible the normal shape for the breed they represent. They should not be too round or too oblong. The texture of the shell should be firm, entaining no weak piaces, abnormal pores or ridges.

Ten days is about as long as eggs for hatching should be safe with a temperature ranging from binding can be kept with safe ty. They should be kept in a room with a temperature ranging from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Wraphing eggs keeps the fresh air away from the shell and thereby tends to weaken the germ inside.

LEGION NOTES

Indianapolis, Ind.—More is being done by the American Legion to promote friendly feeling between the United States and Panama than by any other one agency, according to Lemuei Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion, who has just returned from a visit to Panama and Cuba. Mr. Bolles quotes the president of Panama, Dr. Porras, as saying that he believes the Legion is largely responsible for the continued feeing of good will between the two nations.

Mr. Bolles visited the posts of the Legion both in Panama and Cuba while on the trip. He reported the functioning of the Panama diparament of the Legion is being duplicated by Cuba in its departmental work. The Legion posts in both these countries, Mr. Bolles states, are vital factors in the community life. Excellent relations with the local and government officials have been established in every case, he says. The Legion has assumed the job of maintaining friendly and sympethetic relations between the countries in which posts are established and the United States, and is succeeding admirably. Mr. Bolles reported.

Everywhere that Mr. Bolles wenthe was cordially treated. Receptions and banquets were given in his honor and the President of Panama, the American minister and the governor of Arosimme, at Colon, all received and entertained for him and Mrs. Bolles, who accompanied him. He said that the foreign officials especially were kind to him, and the typo when the proposed to admit it.

A WELLY NEWS.

A number of Boone county bankers were in Burlington last Thurday and together with their attorney, J. L. Vest, of Walton, appeared before the County Board or, Equalisation claiming that the banks were not assessed as the law requires and at a sum meater than their actual value. It developed that the banks in Kentucky are not assessed on the same basis, and that their assessments vary from 50 to 100 per cent. The board after hearing the arguments and statements of those present decided to let the assessments stand as made by the Assessor who acted under orders of the State Tax Commission. The banks will appeal from this decision and will take the queation involved to the Court of Appeals for final determination.

Conditions are constantly changing and those who do not keep up with them lose advantages they might have availed themselves of had they been wise. The great surplus of feed which has been carried over from year to year has been fed away. Last year the corn acreage was cut down millions of acres and in severatiates there were severe drouths which cut the crop yield. In the Southhigh priced cotton and in the burley district high priced tobacco will cause farmers to not put in much corn, so every thing points to much higher prices for corn and oats. From the signs of the times this is the year to grow what feed the farmers will need to winter the stock to be carried over.

According to the annual report of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, a large part of the danger to the national forests from man-caused fires is due to the sensonal influx of tourists, expuners, hunters, and fishermen, and other visitors from the cities and from distant parts of the country. A national campaign of public education on the subject of forest fires is domanded if the task of protection of the vast area of the national forests from Maine and Florida to California and Washington is to be successfully performed.

ANOTHER GOOD MAN GONE

ANOTHER GOOD MAN GONE
Frank Hartman, aged 70 years.
and 8 months, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Otho Hayes, Lawrenceburg Ind., Tuesday morning, March 12th, 1923, after several weeks of intense suffering.
Mr. Hartman was born of German parentage in Cincinnati, O., July 27, 1852. He was the son of Peter Hartman. He was reared on the old Hartman homestead near Lawrence-burg Ferry this county, where he spent his life on the farm.
He was a faithful member of St. Lawrence church, was a much respected and upright citien, known his honesty and integrity of purpose.
He leaves two brothers, Henry of nis nonesty and integrity of pur-pose.

He leaves two brothers, Henry of Lawrenceburg, and Peter of Boone county, and one sister, Miss Otho Hayes, of Lawrenceburg. Funeral services were conducted at St. Lawrence church, Lawrence-burg, Interment in Greendale ceme-tery.

The CensusBureau's survey of farm mortgage conditions, now conplete up to January 1, 1920, shows that on that date the total mortgage, debt on farms in the United States was $7,857,700,000. Figured at six per cent, this total would mean that three years ago the farmer was paying interest at the rate of $471,269,000 annually.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Penn were called to Georgetown again last Friday, on account of the serious illness of their parents, who have been quite ill for two or three weeks.

OFFICIAL INVITATION TO THOUSANDS OF MASONS

SHRINERS TO CROWD WASH. INGTON IN ANNUAL CONVEN-

Washington — Potentate L. P.
Steuart of Almas Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the MystiShrine, has issued his official invitation to more than half a million Ma sons to visit Washington, D. C., next June, to attend the annual Imperial Council Session of that Order.
Congress has taken official notice of the Nation-wide importance, of a:
imperial session in the Capital City, and two joint resolutions passed un animously and approved by the Pres ident, authorize the fullest coopertion by the executive departmenty.

animously and approved by the President, authorize the fullest cooperation by the executive departments and by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Seating arrangements, routing of the parade of Shriners at their convention here in June, establishment of public comfort stations, extra police, and other matters in confection with the conclave are being arranged by Harry Standiford, of the Shriners' Committee, worning with District Commissioner Oyster, in charge of police, and Maj. Wheeler of the engineering department of the District government.

The problem of housing the multitude is being solved with the use of Army tents and cots authorized by the resolution signed, very room available in Washington will be used and if necessary, a great tented city in some available point like Potomac Park, will be erected.

No legislator, no reformer, no zealous moralist, will admit that he is intolerant. Yet there is intolerance practiced by yood and earnest men and women who sincerely believe that what they think is wrong is wrong because they think so, and who, there fore, feel called upon to make the rest of the country believe as they de!

An earnest group in Massachusetts is trying to pass a law making any Sunday activity illegal, whether it be bread selling or checker playing. Utah is jailing men who smoke cigarettes in public kansas has long had an anti-cigarette selling law, and now is discussing whether it isn't a crime even to own a cigarette. The Naw York Assembly is considering a bill to supervise dancing in hotels, and has a civic league which wants legal sanction for certain holds in dancing, with all others made offenses against the law. Kentucky tried to abolish evolution, but was saved by some common-sense legislators, and sexal is working out the mighty problem of whether one scientific doctrine may be taught in the public school and another excluded. A bill has passed the South Carolina House of Representives prohibiting the playing of pool or billiards at any place at any time. The question of moving picture censorship we have always with us. Doubtless all this is harmless enough; the "blue aw" makes little readway against the hard iommonsense of the United States as a whole. Yet the same spirit of intolerance which declares, because on man finds rolling iyory balls over a grass lot is a crime. The spirit of intolerance, like a fire, can spread rapidly from small beginnings, and also like a fire, its effects are wholly destructive when unconfined. It may be wise to remember that this country was founded because the lunbitants could not stand intolerance of those who, abroad, legislated for the colonles; that certain Pilgrims carved New England from the wilderness become they could not stand intolerance of those who, abroad, legislated for the colonles; that certain Pilgrims carved New England from the wilderne

HOW TO GET NEWS IN

Almost everyone at some conter has to make use of the local newspaper as a means of securing some sort of publicity. Of course it is the fashion with a good many to insist that they do not like t see their name in print. However, there are times when one cannot help permitting it.

Are you active in some charity work, or there is a wedding or death in the family the names goes in. So since it's going in it is well to remember that only through your cooperation can it be put in to your complete satisfaction. The right way is to tell the editor or someone connected with the paper all the particulars, or, better still, write it out and mail it or send it or take it to the newspaper office. This insures its correct appearance in the paper and prevents just such mistakes as some people contend the newspapers make too often. Co-operate with your home paper, give out items of interest with out forcing the news man to get them in a roundabout way. And you'll soon see how much more valuable to you is your home paper than you may ow consider it.—Russelville News-Democrat.

FARM RESIDENCE BURNED

Chas. Judd and Family Turned Out of Home in The Cold Wintry Blasts.

The dwelling on the farm owned by Geo. McClandlass about a mile and a half north of Burlington, was destroyed by fire last Sunday night. The dwelling was occupied by Chat. Judd and the fire was discovered by nearly uninterrupted labor, in a time of great strain, aggravated by his personal anxieties relative to Mrs. Harding's health, has been able to get away for an extended vacation.

Modern conditions put a heavier purden on the president of the U.S. than on any other living man. His jor was created at a time when the United States government was a less complicated affair than the affairs of many single states of the present union. It needs a man of almost auperhuman intelligence to cover all the vast range of activities required of a president in these times. He needs a cabinet of very big men, any of whom would be capable of being, president himself, to take all the drail work off his shoulders and leave him free to exercise leadership in the big matters.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

No legislator, no reformer, no zealous moralist, will admit that he is intolerant. Yet there is intolerance practiced by yood and earnest men when the sum of the county, and was formerly own to the county, and was formerly own the dyll, we will be applied to the county, and was formerly own the dyll, we will be applied to being a sum of almost a president himself, to take all the drail work off his shoulders and leave him free to exercise leadership in the big matters.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

No legislator, no reformer, no zealous moralist, will admit that he is intolerance, but we will have been and the fire to was closed to be the president himself, to take all the drail work off his shoulders and leave the sevent blaze was soon beyond their the practiced by your and earnest men the proposal propo

Some of the citizens of Burling-ton saw the fire, but by the time they reached the scene the blaze wes under such headway that nothing could be done but help save some of the furniture. It was but a short time after the discovery that the building was in ashes, and Mr. Judd and wife and six little children were turned out in the cold. They were cared for by neighbors.

THE VANDERBILT FORTUNE

The estate of Wm. K. Vanderbilt, who died in Paris, France, in July, 1920, has been officially appraised vs. $54,530,000, and that appraisal has been accepted by the beneficiaries, under Mr. Vanderbilt's will and the traxing authorities of New York State and the Federal government.

When Mr. Vanderbilt died it was estimated that his fortune went as high as $190,000,000, aid-from the reposts receastly filed it is by no preams improbable that very nearly that, much property was once in his hanns. Mr. Vanderbilt gave to Mr. Oncome of the work of the

HONORS COME TO BOONE COUNTY

Two girls, Missea Jenetta Lee Kite and Lucile Rice, members of the Junior Agricultural Club of Boone county, won especial honors by having both of their young Jersey cows placed on the honor roll, in Kentucky last week. An animal must produce more than 50 pounds of butter fat per month to be eligible for honor roll. These young ladies are to be congratulated upon their success.

BIG SHIPMENT OF EGGS.

BIG SHIPMENT OF EGGS.

The Boone County Poultry Association shipped, last Saturday, 4,000 eggs to the Grayson county bank at Leitchfield; Ky. In order to push better poultry work in that county, the bank will distribute these eggs of pure-bred Barred Plymouth Rocks to farmers, who wish to get a start for the standard breed. The eggs will be put out free by the bank, with the understanding that farmers who receive them return one pullet in the fall for each setting. Quita summer of eggs of other breeds by members of the Association have been sold this year.

The Boone County Poultry Association will ship, this week 62 settings of Rhode Island Red eggs to the boys and girls of the Tayloraville school, Spencer county.

Red Cross Notes.

There was a dramatic climax to the conference between the staff and Field Representatives of the Southern Division hast week. Just as they were discussing plans for Dissaster Relief in the Southern Division a telle gram came giving first news of the have wrought by terrific storms, and Red Cross representatives were shortly at work rushing relief measures.

Fifty-three persons enrolled in the annual enrollment drive in Boone county for this year. One was a contributing membership i. e five dollars, the others the usual annual membership of one dollar.

Last week the Red Cross, nationally and locally, expended more than $8,000,000 in caring for the needs of ex-service men.

A QUESTION OF LAW

gangs.

Judge Evans' decision in the Mey er case is causing wild talk by both the "wet" and the "dry" elements. The decision will not put the prohibition officers out of business nor legalize the bootleggers business.

There is nothing in the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution to repeal or supersed any other article of the Constitution. Judge Evans' decision does not deal with the Eighteenth Amendment. It simply means that in his court law enforcement must be conducted according to law as he construes the law. If the point decided by him is decided otherwise by other Federal Judges the differences must finally be settled by the Supreme Court. In the meantime, 'h' law must be observed in the lower courts as defined by the presiding Judges.

M. E. Dilins, Prohibition Director for Kentucky, takes a sensible view of the situation when he says that "if there is a conflict in the rullings of two Judges it will have to be settled eventually; by a higher court," adding: "Let the friends of prohibition, be not unduly alarmed at what appears on the surface to be an adverse dekision. Let whisky runners be not over-bold with their traffic. They will not be permitted to 'run wild' and flood the towns and cities with poisonous moonshine liquor.—Courier-Journal.

"In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love" sang the poet. Some proasic people may say that in the old days of romance it may have been so, but in these prosaic times one is just as likely to lose his heart in the influents season as in the time of bird songs and reviving nature.

The springtime is supposed to make people more hopeful, which possibly may promote confidence that one could pay the bills for two in this time of high prices. But this mysterious magnetism does not require special conditions. It may begin its deadly work in a crowded railroad train as well as undgr romantic moonlight. Perhaps a person whose heart is in this condition of peculiar susceptibility is in about equal danger at all seasons.

While this sentimental experience the same statements of life. The beauty of a fine spring day is no greater sight than a ganuine love affair between two well mated young people.

Farm ra and Wage Workers Hit By t epracelation of the Dollar.

Admoss in the price of nearly all purcha i g power in 1913 until it is now worth only about 61 cents. The Farmers and wage-workers are the first and worst suyerers from this depreciation of the dollar, since they can not mark up their produce to offset increases in the cost of what they buy. The farmer is inding, difdificulty in solling his products for prices that cover the cost of production. Wage earners are confronted by a downward tendency of wage scales.

Loose talk often catches the ear and sometimes facts take a long time to catch up. It is safe to say that most persons have the impression that the rich are getting richer and the poor poorer every day; that the concentration of great wealth is a growing menace that the U. S. must reckon with. But the cold hard truth will not down. The Bureau of Internal Revenue shows that s.i. all classes of Americans with incomes below $50,000 show increases, while all classes having incomes in excess of $50,000 show increases, while all classes having incomes in excess of $50,000 show increases, while all classes having incomes in excess of $50,000 show increases, and this in spite of the fact that the mass income of $15,024,893,935 in 1918, increased in 1920 to $23,735,629,183.

blow to our agitators and long-hair-ed political economists.

The plain truth is that the American is living on a higher standard than any man in the world, that his income is far in excess of the income of any other nations If he must pay high prices he has the money to buy and still have a little left for a rainy day if he exhibits any of the characteristics of thrift.

FHERE WILL YOU BE?

How do you spend your Sunday evenings?

Some good people take up the current issue of a Sunday newspaper, or a highly illustrasted magazine, or the latest novel, and gently deposit themselves in an easy chair for an hour of "instructive" reading.

It is instructive most of that reading.

A fellow reads all about the latest scandal in high life, or devours the details of the latest nurder, or ponders over the faacility with which crooks and grafters and sluggers escape punishment. In short, he reads of the seamy side of life, with the scam gaping wide open and exposing its appalling hideousn.

He learns a lot in that hour that has anything but an elevating intunce upon life.

But there are others who spend that hour in quite a different mars ner.

They take the family to church.

This is your home. It is where you make your money, where you raise your family, where you enjoy the society of your-friends, where you spend your hours of recreation, and where you reap the greatest joys of life. What are you doing for the home community that does so much for you?

MR. PEPPER'S MISTAKE

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania

He has opposed the League for the

the Versailles Tretay and the Covenant

But Mr. Pepper has learned something since then, and he is honeat enough to acknowledge it. In his speech to the Bar Association he delared that he was mistaken in his opposition to the League of Nations and had misconstruced its Covenant. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that he had been remiss in his respect for his own intelligence in accepting the construction put upon a Covenant by the Senate jurtant the Harding campaigners of 1920. At any rates he now openly dmits he was wrong in his idea that the League "was conceived as a combination of States to keep peace by force." On the contrary, he now openly admits he was wrong in his idea that the League "was conceived as a combination of States to keep peace by force." On the contrary, he now openly force." On the contrary, he now a contract on the contrary, he now that the force of the contrary of citiens who abjure force and successfully resort to the enforcement method."

On any other theory than that Senator Pepper acted upon a second-hand construction of the League, whose whole object is peace, are the methods of conference and arbitration, instead of force; that its extreme resort to enforce its findings, if resisted, is not to war but to the obyect; and that in no instance can force be applied, except as a result of council and consent, as it might be applied by any body of national conferences or of arbitrators.

Mr. Pepper is not only frank to admit his misjudgment of the nature of the League of Nations but he is pleased to express his admiration of it for the work which it has already done, despite the impairment of its usefulness made by America's return the solution of its for the work which it has already done, despite the impairment of its new missing that organisation. Presumably, instead of Turther opposing, he will advocate America's entry into the League, and

Washington— Although witnesses representing many industries urged the Senate Committee on Immigration to let down the bars to admitlator from abroad, Republican leaders decided, after conferences with no change shall be made by this Congress and Representatives, that no change shall be made by this Congress in the restriction law.

Opposition to the changed basis and execulsion of apanesale were issues in the new bill which make its acceptance docbtful at any time. Adoption of the 2 per cent quota based on the 1890 census would be a deliberate discrimination against the so-called newer immigration, said many members of Congress.

"If it is not intended arbitrarily to coccococococi dtmi mmib mfo P giscrimination against the immigration from Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Poland, Roumania, Sweden, and other countries, why did the proponents of the measure take the 1890 census," a report on the now definitely shelved bill asks. If the coast of Ireland, or any part of it, were today lined with a fleet of vessels under the American flag, trying to supply arms and am munition that cannot the "irregulars" in rebellion against the Irish Free State, the situation would be closely pacallel to that presented by the rungularing vessels alony the New Jerisey coast, most of which fly the British flag.

If American vessels were engaged, on any such scale, in an attempt to violate the laws of any other power, we would be expected to deal with the situation, under the power which we get from the well known principle that any ship under American flag, is legally "American soil." A vessel engaged in this kind of law-lessness can be dealt with only in one of two ways—either through capture and punishment by the power loss flag she flies. If the nations of the world are unwilling to sanction by international agreement the use of the first method, beyond the three-mile limit they should each consider themselvss bound individually to look after their own offenders. The high seas can not be allowed to become the resort of unrestrained lawlessness. If such a condition is tolerated against one law, it will very soon be used against other laws as well Liquor is only one of many things that can be smuggled into the United States at a profit.

However, if the stalks are left piled without shelter, as is common in the tobacco growing sections of the state, a few rains will take out half or more of this fertilizing value.

The stalks of the leaf crop in the dark district amount to about 40,000 tons a year and contain plant fod worth almost a million dollars at commercial fertilizer prices. ## UNSIGHOLY FEATURES

UNSIGHOLY FEATURES

A good many horses in Boone county could be tremendously improved if only people would look their places over critically and correct unsightly features. Frequently there will be some tree or shrub or vine that is half ddead or scraggly and which gives a touch of decay to the place. Or there may be some fence that is leaning over sideways or some out building that has a tumble down roof or walls.

Any such feature as that gives a kind of a blight to a place that might otherwise look well. A little work spent in removing or repairing such an unsightly object, will tone up the whole place and make it look once more up to date and a credit to the owner.

TIMELY TIPS

Use glycerin instead of oil to lubricate the egg beater, meat cutter and such utenalis, as it will not impart a taste to the food.

Rub the grater lightly over a burned cake, holding it so that the crumbs will fall off. If carefully done all of the scorched cake will be removed.

To dry lettuce quickly for serving, wash and wrap in a large cloth, step out on the porch and whilt the cloth several times. This will dry the lettuce. If time is not pressing, just hang it in the cloth.

Butter the underside of the cream or sirup pitcher which has the habit of leaking its contents at the spout. Any chest of soft wood, well oiled once a year with oil of cedar is just as effective against moths as the best cedar chest.

To clean a rusty knife, thrust it into an onion and leave it for a short time. When washing dainty white undergarments, add a tablespoonful of sugar to the rinsing, water—this will stiffen and give them the new look after iroding.

Clean velvet with gasoline-moistened commeal; rub well, repeat until all soil is removed, then brush with a stiff brush. Very delicate velvet can abe cleaned with flour and gasoline, making a paste, then proceed as above. White gloves may be cleaned with this same method.

A few drops of kerosene on a cloth will keep the bath tub and sink clean, sawe all bits of parafin left from fully glasses. A small bit added to the hot starch will keep it from rusting, if the stove is not in use.

Into a plan which has been scorched, place a teaspoonful of soda and cold water to cover. ### UNFAIR FACTS

"UNFAIR FACTS'
A Wisconsin farm journal, Hoard s Dairyman, discussing what it terms "unfair facts," asks why a city should spend more per capita on the education of its children than it spent in a rural community. "Is there any good reason why the child of the city is entitled to a better education than the child in the country!"
There is at least a reason which cannot easily be gotten around. Public school education is supported by taxation, Taxable values are small in most rural regions because those regions are too exclusively agricultural.
This is the case in Kentucky

exaction. Arable values are small in most rural regions because those regions are too exclusively agricultural.

This is the case in Kentucky.

There is com; zome quarters that public school education in some cities goes too far; that special tequipment for earning a livelihood should not be provided in public schools, but in trade schools. No such complaint has been lodged against rural school education, and speaking generally there is not enough of it to give the rural child a thorough foundational mental training. But even if it be granted that there is undue reductancy to lay taxes that should be laid to provide thorough education in the country, there remains the fact that sparse population and low id-axable values characterize 'rural regions, while dense population and high taxable values provide cities with the means, not burdensome, of giving children a thorough education.

A higher development of the natural resources of most Statos; more diversified use of raw products within the State, to increase payrolls and nopulation, would inprove the means of providing free education—never free to the providers—in active minor cities and towns well distributed in the State, and in the strictly agricultural communities contiguous to such towns.

Kentucky's capacity to educate her rural children, while somewhat greater than its present system of education reflects, is limited by the low development of the State, by sparseness of poptation and a low average earning capacity traceable directly to exploitation of some matural resources. # ONE LAW FOR RICH, POOR ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS AND CONGRESSMEN

ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS AND CONGRESSMEN

The Washington Star of Sunday, March 4th, states that one J. M. Connor, arrested by Washington police, had in his apartment a complete list of alleged customers, carefully indexed to indicate the amount of intoxicants consumed monthly and the state of their finances. The Star says that this list contained the names of "half a dozen members of Congress, several select women's clubs, a number of prominent men's clubs, 15 high ranking army officers, and a select list of men and women prominent in business and social circles."

If any naval or army officer, high or low, has patronized a bootlegger the fact should be thoroughly established, he should be thoroughly established, he should be thoroughly established, he should be given the utmost possible publicity. He should be held up to the contempt of every honest and sincer man. It is impossible to be a partisan of the Government without being strictly loyat to the Government's laws. The extensive injury and destruction of trees of all kinds during the recent storm has brought many inquiries to the United States Department of Agriculture regarding the proper methods to, be followed in rapairing the damage done. The following suggestions are made by the department.

The first thing that should be done is to remove a une large broken branches as are now, or may become a menace to life and property; this is usually best done by cutting at 220 point where broken should then be given to injuries 20 it the main trunk. If limbs have been split, or partially split, from the main trunk, all splintered wood about the wound should be removed with a sharp gougs and mallet, if not so gituated that it can be sawed off. The scar should be smoothed in the manner indicated in Farmer's Bulletin 1178, Tree Surgery, and treated as an open cavity, or-as a large surface wound, as the case may necessitate.

Attention should next be given 'o' repairing the injuries on the larger branches in a similar mamer, and last of all to the smalley branches. Some times when a limb is broken, away the tree is so weakened at the joint of breakage that it may again break in a severe wind, and to obviate this the top-must be pruned back more or ess severely. In case of split crotches, the advice given in Farimers' Bulletin 1178 should be followed regarding the general treatment, including bolting through and above the crack.

In cases of estates where a greatment, including bolting through and above the crack.

In cases of estates where a greatment, including bolting through and solve the crack.

In cases of estates where a greatment, including bolting through and only a comparatively small force is available for repairing the damage, the final cutting of long stubs can be conveniently left for a time, but wounds or breaks on the main trunk or close to it, should be attended to promptly, in any case before warm weather/arrives.

It is not necessary to fill cavaties. It is better in most cases to leave them open. All final cuts should be inmediately covered with some good antiseptic and waterproof paint. It will not be necessary to specially treat the ends of long stubs that are to be removed close to the trunk later in the season.

In no part of repair work should climbing spurs be used on a tree. Spur marks-cause injuries thru which it is possible for disease and decay germs to enter and cause damage, in some cases more severe than would have developed from the original single break. She was only a tiny girl, unused to traveling, and it happened that in the course of the day her train was obliged to cross two branches of a river and several wide streams. The water seen in sdvance always awakened doubts and rea. Jin the child. She did not understand how it could safely be crossed. For the first three weeks after they begind to eat grain, the pigs may be allowed a corn alone ration without any danger, since the mother's milk will balance the grain. For the next two weeks, they can eat the same ration that is being fed to the mother. Young pigs should never be turned on pasture until they are at least three weeks old. Previous to that time, they will not be strong enough to withstand being drenched every day by wet pastures. While they are young, their resistance is low and they may be attacked with scours.

Castrate When Young.

Castration means but little in the pig's growth if the operation is performed during the first aix weeks of his life. However, if it is postponed until the pig is three or four months old, he is apt to suffer a considerable setback from it. The operation can be performed by any one even though he has only a limited amount of experience, but it is necessary to observe the ruise of sanitation if the pigs are to cure up rapidly. A day or two before the work is done, the pigs should be put in clean quarters away from mud wallows so that they will be clean. The lastruments to be used in the work should be piaced in a 2½ per cent solution of creolin or some other good disinfectant and the hands of the operator washed in the same solution. The scrotum should be streaked with iodine where the cut is to be maderater which the outer skin and the thin covering of the testicles are apilt lengthwise of the acrotum and parallel to the dividing line. In thoung pigs, the testicles can be removed by simply pulling out the chord, but in older pigs it is necessary to acrape the chord in two to keep down bleeding. The wound should be treated with lodine solution and the pig turned out in a clean pattern.

FARMERS WILL COOPERATE
IN SPRING LAMB SALES

IN SPRING LAMB SALES

Lexington, Ky.—A considerable portion of Kentucky's spring lamb-crop will go to the packers this year by the co-operative marketing roure according to D. C. Gard, marketing specialist of the College of Agriculture. Following the success of this plan in several counties, last year, farmers in Lincoln, Boyle, Fayette, Casey, Washington, Marion and McCracken counties already have plans, well under way to co-perate this, year in disposing of their lambs. The plan has special merits to rethe early crop, in view of the fact that it prevides an outlet, at good prices, for a few finished lambs from each flock that otherwise might have to be held over until the whole crop is ready and the price level is lower.

Not many Kentucky lambs are and the price level is lower.

Not many Kentucky lambs are ready for the Eastern market, but hany are ready during the early part of the season when lamb prices usually are higher than in the late spring and summer. Too often only a few early lambs appear in each flock and no attempt is made to sell them until the later lambs are ready. This means a loss to the farmer, because although the lambs weigh more when sold, they are not what the market demands, and the price level frequently is lower than it was earlier in the season when the same lambs weighed from 65 to 70 pounds.

70 pounds.

In the past, local livestock buyers have not been enthusiastic about lar-dling-early lambs because of the labor involved in asembling a carload when only a few came from each farm and because of the risk. of market price fluctuations early in the season. Farmers that have early lambs can work together on a cooperative marketing plan and take advantage of the good prices which prevail early in the season.

HOG FATTENING COST CUT ONE-THIRD BY PASTURES

Lexington, Ky.—Pastures reduce the cost of fattening hogs about one-third, according to Grady Sellards, swine specialist of the College of Agriculture, who is putting on demonstrations in all parts of the state to help farmers produce pork more economically. The Achievement of St. Patrick.

It is recorded of St. Patricn, whose birthday is enthusiastically celebrated on March 17, that when he began his missionary labors, there were no Christians in Ireland, and when he finished there were no heathen. One would have to search a long time in history to find records of any single man who thus had changed the convictions of a whole nation.

St. Patrick must have had the gift of influencing people to a unique degree, and perhaps something of that gift has descended upon the Irish race. They have been considered in this country to have a gift for political success, in which this power of persuasiveness has been an important factor. The Irish temperament has a sunny and friendly manner, that has won its way in the hand of their adoption, as it enabled old St. Patrick to sway convictions of a whole nation back in the misty

"Rape may be sown in March as soon as the ground is dry enough and the danger of frost has passed. Eight pounds of seed an acre usually is a good rate of seeling. Dwarf Essex is the best variety. The land should be fertile, as rape does not do well on thin land, and the seed bed well prepared before panting. The seed is covered about one and a half inches deep.

Kents are almost always higher in cities. Labor costs more there, so that-there is a legitimate reason why it costs more to hire or buy a dwelling.

The stores charge higher for the necessaries of life. Their rentals are much more than in a country town, also they have to pay for clerk hire and other costs based on the greater expensive people who live in cities have to pay a considerable amount for car fares. So from morning until night, and from almuary 1 to December $31, there is a steady tax on the people's pocket books for the higher costs of city life. The wages or salary earned is sometimes higher in city occupations, but by the time the extra costs of city life are figured out the country usually proves to be the best place to save money.

Not merely do clothing, food and money. Not merely do clothing, food and supplies cost less in the country but the standards of living are more sensible and there is less pressure to spend money on display.

HANDY SALT BOX FOR STOCK

One of the handlest salt boxes which I have seen is made on the order of the one illustrated. Two or three advantages are at once noticed. This box is nailed or botted to a post near the barn entrance and provided with a lid which projects over the front. The front of the box is about three inches lower than the back. It doesn't take the stock, long to learn that it is but necessary to raise the lid with their noses and partake to their heart's content. The moment they are through the lid fails back in place, thus keeping the contents clean and protected from rain, which often con-sumes as much sait as several cows.— Dale R. Van Horn, Nebraska, In Hoard's Dalryman.

CATCH SHEEP IN RIGHT WAY

Much Suffering Could Be Prevented by Little More Intelligent and Careful Handling.

Careful Handling.

Much of the suffering withstood by sheep might be avoided by a little more careful and intelligent handling. Many an ignorant flockowner, catches a sheep by the wool, at any place he can get hold of handlest. They do not realize that the skin is very lightly attached to the flesh and that by hold-ting the sheep in this careless manner, the skin is tora loose from the flesh thus bruising the innocent sheep. It is claimed by some authorities that it takes the sheep two months to recover from the bruise thus fincurred. The proper way to catch a sheep is by the flank, and thus no injury is inflicted non the sheep. Even a very large strong sheep will soon give up and stand still when caught in this way.

SUPERIOR CROPS FOR SWINE

Alfaifa, Clover and Dwarf Essex Rape Are Most Satisfactory—Corn is important,

Without doubt the most satisfactory crops for pigs are alfalfa, clover and Dwarf Essex rape. In many sections it is unprofitable to attempt to establish alfalfa. Dwarf Essex rape, however, in combination with the clovers, can be seeded successfully on almost any, type of soil and will yield an abundance of green forage. Usually on land that is productive and well drained, one can calculate on maintaining a ton of live weight in hogs per acre. This means that 20 hops weighting 100 pounds each can forage on an acre of feed of this character, provided they are fed as much as 24, pourfds of corn per day for each 100 pounds of live weight.

WHEY VALUABLE FOR SWINE

Whey, when properly combined with cora and grain for pigs, is a good protein supplement in the ration—too valuable to be wasted. It is commonly rated that 1,000 pounds of ordinary good whey is worth 100 pounds of corn meal as a pig fattener. This would make whey worth about one-half the value of skim milk in the ration.

CLOTHING WORK FOR GIRLS.

CLOTHING WORK FOR GIRLS.

This country was built up by many economies, both little and big ones. One of the most important of them is to teach young women to be skillful with the needle. It is important both to encourage home dresmaking, and to teach the kirls how to save partly worn clothing by a little timely mending.

North Dakota, is one of the states that have organized the young needlewomen, and in 1922 it had 15 clothing project clubs formed in 29 counties, with 551 girls working. These girls showed their industry by mending 2764 garments last year. Not merely did they add to their family resources by this usefol stund but they are better fitted to establish successful homes when they marry.

"GREEN PASTUREITIS"

"GREEN PASTUREITIS"

Roger Babson, the noted statistician, remarked in a recent article that one of the great troubles with boys today, is "green pastureitis." To one afflicted with this disease, he says "the pasture fartherest awas always looks the greenest." There are boys who think the farther away from home they go, the more prosperous they will be. Mr. Babson thinks that most boys are better of to remain in their own home town than to go to large cities.

On general principles a youn man does better in his own home section than elsewhere. There he understands the people and the people understands the people and the people of and settles in some entirely different part of the country, he fails to some extent to understand his ways and idear. There are opportunities everywhere for those who can see and grasp them.

THE COUNTRY BAND

One of the best features for One of the best features for a country town is a brass band. If you can induce the musically inclined folks to practice regularly and join such an organization, you have an asset that will boom your town. Country life provides fawedable conditions for developing fine musical organizations. There are not so many diverse interests drawing people in different directions so that musicians will not practice regularly.

The open air concerts given by many country bands draw visitors from many miler around, which helps the business interests of a town. A brass band is such an advantage to a community that its business men should be willing to subscribe liberally to buy music, provide uniforms and perhaps give its members a lit te substantial reward for their effort.

tend to make their presentation of the Passion Play an annual event, and have their own theater available for next year's presentation.

"The noted Oberammergau production will be the model for the local organization, and it is proposed to make Washington the Oberammergau of America. So many thousands of Americans go to the little European town yearly to witness the Passion Play that tremendous interest has been kindled in it everywhere, and a purely American offering, given in the Nation's Capital, would, it is believed, draw treme dous throngs here every year, greetly to the advantage of local industries and commercial organizations."

To "make Washington the Oberammergau of America" by playing here the Passion Play and thug "draw tremendous throngs every year, greatly to the advantage of local industries and commercial or ganizations" will make of the Pression Play a mock and rob it of its significance. To their credit be it exil no theatrical producers have ever dared to put the Passion Play on the boards with the idea of charging admission; it remains for the organization mentioned above to consider the making of the Capital City "the Oberammergau of America."

This is a practical word and we are a practical people! But there is such a thing as being too practical, too-hard-headed, too business like. If our indulgence in these homely virtues takes from rather than initiaters to, our well being and happiness, they are virtues out of place.

are virtues out of place.

It is American doctrine to "be shown." We don't want to buy a "pig in a poke." When we employ a man we pay him to do a job. We demand that he labor his eight hours for his pay. He must earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. If we can get someone else to do it for less, so much the worse for the man we had and whom we now fire!

And so we say to our doctors, out.

we can get someone else to do it for less, so much the worse for the man we had and whom we now fire! And so we say to our doctors, our inventors, our investigators, our men of research, our professors, our scientists, "by all means invent and discover, and delve and dig up new things for the benefit of all of us. If you do, you can sell them to us. But don't neglect to make your own living while you discover or invent, otherwise you'll starve.

It never occurs to us (the few, very few, positions in this country in which a man can make a living while engaging in research work are not enough to count)—it never occurs to our Government to say to erudite man of learning "here is five thousand dollars a year for life. Go ahead and eat and drink and clothe yourself ndd your family and forget the battle for existence. Use all your enthusiasm to invent, discover dig and delve that we may all have the benefit."

Of course, after they are dead we raise hospitals and call them Walter Reed, and erect statutes to S. P. Langley, but while they live we don't give our really great investigators, inventors, scientists, and discoverers a real chance. No sir! They have to make a living first. Every man must stand on his own feet! This is a practical country!

When parents object to some habit or practice that their children have picked up, they are told that "Everybody's doing it," and that they are back numbers" if they object. Oligre people also apologize for their objectionable proceedings, by remarking that "everybody's doing it."
If people see half a dozen of their friends following some objectionable custom, they Jump to the conclusion that everybody does the same thing. If they would look around a little they would find that plenty of scrupuleus folks still maintain high priciples in their own conduct and laftence their children toward the same.

Some people complain in these times that muscle is better rewarded than brains. The clerk or book keeper may find that he gets no more pay, perhaps not as much, as the fellow who does plumbing or more pay, perhaps not as much, as the fellow who does plumbing or bricklaying. The stenographer, after she has paid for her board and room, may not have as much cash left as the housework girl can show. Teachers are often not as well paid as some mechanics. It is a period when mechanical and muscular labor screams to be valued just as murch as many grades of work for which a certain degree of education is required. Wages and salaries are governed by supply and demand. If the manual and mucchanical trades are unpopular, higher wages will have telepid to induce people to enter those octupations.

If the girls all rush to schools to learn stenography, and bookkeeping, and few of them are willing to wash dishes and sweep floors, it is probable that the wages paid for those domestic tasks will be higher than for working in the business offices, though the latter work seems to demand more deucation.

It is a rather easy thing for a person of fair intelligence to get a superficial education. The community provides these facilities free, and almost anybody can be taught to do clerical tasks in a routine, way. DAIRY WORK OF ADULTS

Lexington, Ky.—How thousands of junior agricultural club members in Kentucky develop and later make a success in adult farm circles by practicing what they learned in work ing out their club projects has just been demonstrated in a striking way by Jeanette Lea Kite, 16 years old, and Lucille Rice, 14 years old, both members of a purebred Jersey Calf Club organized in Boone councy four years ago by the extension division of the College of Agriculture and county Agent W. D. Sutton.

Ty four years ago by the extension division of the College of Agriculture and county Agent W. D. Sutstand out with in their call work and that are now cows with their first calves have won a place on the Honor Roll of high producing cows in the state. The Honor Roll is compiled each month by the college to give recognition to those breeders and dairymr, successful enough to have their cows produce more than three pounds of butterfat in the two days that they are tested under direction of the dairy division of the institution. Added honor is due the girls, in view of the fact that only 29 other cows out of the 127 tested in the state during the list, according to J. J. Hooper, in charge of the dairy division.

Jeanette' Jersey, Affriston's Noble Pet, produced 55.6 pounds of milk and slightly more than three pounds of butterfat during the two days that he was on test, while Lucille's cow, Noble's Bright Beatty, also a Jersey, made a record of 45.1 pounds of wilk and slightly more than three apounds of butterfat during the two days of the test. Jeanette entered the calf club three years ago, but Lucille has been in it only about two years.

The two girls have worked slong with more than a score of other farm boys and girls in the calf club in developing their animals and laying the foundation for purebred herds of their own under the direction of feeding, managing and taking care of dairy cattle that both girls are able to do almost all the work connected with the production of milk and cream on the farm, County Agt. Sutton says.

But let's dress up the old town at the same time. If every citizen would take proper care of his own premises there wouldn't be any eye sores left—there wouldn't be any eye sores left—there wouldn't be anyething to criticise.

Now wouldn't that be great—sothing to criticise?

We could easily set out new shrubbery, and plant acres of beautiful flowers, and keep the yards and the yarkways green.

We can not live forever, but we can not live forever, but we can enjoy life more while we are left way.

Now don't shrug your shoulders and say it is "too much of a job," for it is not. Nothing is a big job for the man who makes up his mind that the job is a small one.

Try it and you will be surprist of the sale o

THE SUGAR STEAL

THE SUGAR STEAL

The sugar steal, which many persons declare, hotly, should be investigated, differs from the steel steal, the textiles steal, the 1,001 steals of the period only in that sugar is an obvious day-to-day necessity in eyery household. Sugar is one of the commodifies that are constantly in the eye of the public.

The attention of the average family is engaged at once when manipulation of sugar prices is discussed by the sugar prices is discussed by the sugar prices in the family is as much affected by artificial prices upon other commodities as it is affected by sugar prices based upon the ability of the reade to exploit the consumer.

The object of the Fordney-McCumber thriff bill, svowed frankly by Mr. Fordney on at least one oc casion, was not to produce revenue, by heavy import duties, but to protect American producers and distributors from competition is protected from the effect of a factor in the problem of prices that protects on the problem of prices that protects on the problem of prices that the sugar price manipultors are like the sugar price manipultors of the round only illustrate the working of the Fordney-McCumber bill as it was expected, by us promoters to work. If the beet sugar interests can be proved guiltier than the conspirators who got what they asked when the whole list of commodity schedules was prepared, and the Fordney-McCumber bill passed as an Administration measure.

When the last sugar steal was in full swing large shipments of sugar began to move to America and the price slumped. The Fordney-McCumber bill was passed to prevent, such occurrences from stopping the Joyous revels of the grafters. That is the whole purpose, excuse and 2ffect of the bill, and, baring ship subsidy, its projected complement, no bill has had such warm support by the Harding Administration.—Courier-Journal.

More land is cultivated to grow the world's wheat than to grow any other single crop. If all plant life in this country, American sales in the world except grasses, of which family wheat is a member, were do stroyed, man and his animals could

GEN. PERSHING ON THE HORSE

An Eloquent 1 ribute from the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army

An Eloquent 1 ribute from the Commander in Chief of the United States Army

The officers of the United States Army are a unit in their enthusiasm for the Remount Service. They realize that without the work of this unitring and unselfish organization the Cavalry branch of the army would be deprived of the type, of horse required for remounts. Stock farms have been established at various points where under the elicetion of Army would be deprived of the type, of horse required for remounts. Stock farms have been established at various points where under the elicetion of Army officers, thoroughbred sires mated to selected gares are producing a half-breed strain which furnishes the ideal mount for the cavalry. Leading turfmen of Kentucky, New York, and other states, have donated these stallions to the army, many of them having long and honorable records on the race track.

In I Federal Eddress Gen. John J. Pershing gave an interested in, You know, that about the first recollection I have is of diding a horse in a jend tend of a six boris quitt that dragged Fall-rake rapie across the wheet field of morthern Missouri. So you see I had a very early introduction to the horse, in fact, I was raised on a horse, that is uturally became interested took two or three men too any father's colk, and insided on breaking most it have in the state of the cavalry. The saidy love for the horse followed me up to the time when I insided my course at the Milliary Academy, and joined the cavalry.

"If you really want to knew something about the horse, you ought to join the cavalry, one and it is many to the earlier years of my service strained and you are the development of the cavalry and the cavalry and the cavalry and the service of the cavalry and the cavalry was larged to the cavalry and the cavalry and the cavalry was had the best horse in the troop; at least, it was not my fault if I did not, and often I have had the best horse in the army. Today I own a string of horses, that have wone very many often earlier years of my service practical ways on the farma and in the cities should be given careful study, as the results weld undoubtedly be of very great encouragement to horse breeders.

"The time has not come when we may say that the borse is only to be seen in museums. This faithful animal has been of too great service to mankind, in business and in pleasure, to be allowed to disappear. When we call upon him, the horse carries us to the limit of his ability and exerts for us the last ounce of his strength, and whether the days be long and the sun hot, or whether it be cold or stormy, whether we urge him through the darkness of the night, we always find him ready to serve.

"That resultids me of some remarkable rides that have been made by American cavelry. In the early days in the southwest, we used to have what we called manocurves. We were stationed in small posts, often very far apart. These manocurves were carried out by a troop of cavairy, here and there, being detailed to act as a raiding party to repressed indian raiders, while corresponding troop—were detailed in pursuit. Of course, we extract this very much, especially the pouspeters. I am still a youngeter, as far as the two properties of the properties of the second man and the end with your horses in good condition. It was done according to certain rules, and some quite remarkable marches were made.

"I do not know that I can recall all the details now, but I made one march myself with a troop of cavairy and a pack treat of 130 miles on a stretchrom 6 o'clock one morning to 8 e'dock the second morning thereafter, with only a five hour rest, and all the horses and all the pack mules arrived in at condition. I was the pursuing party in that instance and not the raider. "In another instance where I was playing the part of a raider, an officer of the old Sixth Cavairy, a Lieuteannt, started out and marched. He continued his march for 23 hours, in which he made the above detainee and, needless to say, he overtook my command and made an prisoners.

The recognition of favorite songsters and learning of new ones, is one of the pleasures of spring time, Knowledge of this kind is a permanent possession. The song of a particular species of bird is an individual thing, with a distinctive character. Once you learn it, you know it always, and would recognize it after many years, as you would the voice of a long absent friend.

The human race has been perfecting musical instruments for 5,000 years. But it would have to be a very fine violin, held at a high price that could make a fone as beautiful as the little-bird that singular liquid note in the back yards of Burlington which suggests that the simple pleasures within everyone's reach are often the sweetest.

(Falmouth Outlook.)

(Falmouth Outlook.)

The old time religion taught people the theory that you had to die and pass on to get a chance to travel the "streets of gold" in that better land. It now develops that any lame duck spiritually can take a trip to Ohio and travel the roals paved with gold. A recent report shows that it cost Lucas county, O., $106,000 per mil- and. We milton-co., $87,000 per mile to build roads.

$87,000 per mile to build roads.

Two chiropractors, a man and a woman, were arrested in Cincinnstit recently for practicing without a license. They decided to go to jail rather than pay the fines imposed on them by the court. What is bothering us is the fact that a crowd of women sympathizers followed the man to the jail door, and a crowd of off men followed the lady Dr. to thriston, and each have been showered with flowers and sympathetic words duting their service behind the bars. he question arises, would any other professional people be given this hero worship, if they were sent to jail. There must be a reason for this unusual hub-bub.

We have been told that the brand of moons. Ine liquor that is being brought into Pendleton county is very dangerous, and that a man who will drink it is flirtling with the undertaker. It is said that two drous placed on the tongue of a rabbit will make him srit in a bull dog's face. We claft hardly believe these statements until we were shown an automobile that had been driven by a man who had taken several drinks of moonshine, which made him sick. The man vomited on the fender of the achine and the moonshine had absolutely eaten the enamel from the fender. We imagine if this man had not thrown it up, it would have eaten the lining out of his stemach. Ain't nature grand" to the dumb animal kingdom?

It looks to us now like the big

It looks to us now like the big road bond issue that the majority was led or misled to vote on the taxpayers of our county is going to be distributed freely, just as we predicted, by everfeeding in big salaries and unnecessary preliminaries. First move, $250 per mile for survey on road that has already been surveyed and on record which we think a new survey will not change materially, and if it was really necessary, doubtless there are lots of competent lads who would do the job for one-fourth the price. Some officers are quite free with public funds. Any man or set of men who will, not be as careful with public unds. Any man or set of men who will, not be as careful with public of course, some of our trusted public servants who were sent to exect laws for us have put over some very nonsensical laws that consume too much of the hard-camed cash of the taxpayers. We need a to a surplice and alminate grafters and use our money where it was intended, building roads. We have too any laids strifing their pockets out of the public rib.

AN EASTER MESSAGE

AN EASTER MESSAGE

A little more than 1900 years agy an event occurred in an obscure corner of the world that completely revolutionized history. Inspired in some way through the Resurrection of Jesus, a band of fishermen initiate, a movement that has become the most powerful force in existence. Wherever this force gains control it does away with barbarism and cruelty and wrong.

Where in Christian lands there is still evil and tumult, it is because men are self-centered and beastly, and refuse to folow the light of the Resurrection.

On Easter Day the world celebrates this marvelous event. Peop'e with unseeing minds look at the surface aspects. They note the bright flowers and the cheering music, and there is to it.

The loyal heart is once more reminded that God is ever trying to enter the human heart, and to mol's human life and social institutions into forms of love and justice. His efforts to win human loyalty may be felt in the experience of anyone with the open heart. The most wonderful and historic of these efforts was the mission of Jesus Christ, who revealed God's nature and strove to win men into harmony with it.

Whether the world accepts or rejects these advances of the divine life, is purely a matter of choice. This is a world of entire person if freedom. People or nations who are made good simply through compulsion or fear have no real character. No force of resistance has been built up in them.

So the doors of invitation open wide on Easter Day as on all days. All who will enter will gain the message of hope and assurance. Insofar as they accept the principator which the Master stood, they will solve the dark riddle of existence, and find all the good gifts that life's experience were meant to bring.

Do Orchard Cover Crops Increase the Frost Hazard?
The growing belief among growers of citrus fruits in California that the presence of a cover crop in a citrus grove greatly increases the frost hazard is not substantiated by observations made thus far by thy Weather Bureau, United States De partment of Agriculture. All the evidence obtained by making scientific records of the temperatures in carefully chosen fields, with and without cover crops, indicates that a covercrop has little effect on the temperature a few feet above the ground
If this conclusion is confirmed by later experiments, any increased damage to fruit by frost in a copercropped citrus grove must be attributed to some other agency than a depression of the air temperature by the cover crop. The answer may be found in natural differences in the temperature due to difference in elevation or similar cause, or to the phy

PREVENTING DISEASE

The modern aim of medicine to prevent disease rather than wait for it to declare itself is encouraging In former days people used to remark with some anisomement that among other "quetr" customs of the Chinese—sucer because contrary to our ideas or practice—was that of paying the dector only so long as you were well; but nowadays we are beginning to think that the custom is perhaps not so funny after all. We have always been fond of saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," but, curiously enough, we applied the maxim to almost everything except health. Now, however, we are coming to set that it applies to bodily ills with special force.

The modern effort to prevent disease began with the doctors, who is special force.

FIRST: That the question of a bond issue should be submitted by the legislature to a vote of the people who alone can decide it.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

"March came in like a lion, and went out like a lion." Exit March! Enter April! While none of us accanatious to speed Father Time in his case of the scythe, yet most of us gladly bid-farewell to March. A season of the year that scems to be of ill omen to Boone county. During the past years in the month of March, we Lave lost some of our best citizens and most beloved frients. The Death Angel has called from our midst, characters that shall ever be reniembered. The bitting, stinging frosts of time and Ciscase and the cold white frests of mother earth, have simultaneously cut down meny of the county's good citizens. But, with the advent of April, we will from now on be looking for the spot where the sun shines the warmest rand wish for the days, when we can sit under the shade of the trees and enjoy the cool breezes that stir us to renewed vigor and life, and occasionally enjoy a plunge in the old swimming hole.

"Money is the root of all evil."

This has proven true since the beginning of time. It has been proven in all periods of the world's history that money corrupts the morals of nations as well as most individuals. One can see the handwriting on the wall from reading the dailypress concerning the corrupt living and business methods of the wealthy elass. Wealthy men and women are both living double lives, and it seems they are rotten to the core. The pace they are setting is contaminating the whole nation. The smaller financial fish are trying to imitate the wealthy, and it seems the nation as a whole has grown top-hea; from rictous and corrupt living. The question arises, how long before the "Fall of Rome," if a more wholesome moral condition does not take place—Pendleton Outlooks

Last Saturday about 10 a. m., as Lystra Smith and wife, John Burns and wife, Bert Smith and a little six year old daughter of Henry Smith were on their way from the home of Bert Smith in Bellevue, Campbell county, to visit Henry Smith who was seriously ill in Christ Hospital, their machine was struck by another machine at Seventh & Overton St., Newport. The machine was turned completely over and badly wrecked but fortunately the occupants excaped with a few slight bruises.

The other machine was but slightly damozed, having one broken frontwheel and a crushed fender.

The driver after calling a garage to take charge of his machine rode away with friends after forcibly expressing his displeasure at having his journey interrupted.

More than $1,350.00 a day was his journey interrupted.

More than $1,350.00 a day was added to the pay checks of the milk producers of the Cincinnati district in March through the activities of the co-operative Pure Milk Association. This was the sum which went to milk producers of the milk producers of the maket generally, not alone to those who were members of the Association but to all milk producers of the Association but to all milk producers but it was the presence of the Association in the field that brought about the increased prices to the producers. The increase in milk checks was caused by the fact that producers received $2.70 a 100 pounds delivered at the Cincinnati market for their whole milk.

Both the pooler and non-pooler are making preparations to produce a bumper crop of tobacco the coming scason. Reports from every county in the district indicate that a very large acreage will be planted, and if we are blessed with a favorable season, twice as much tobacco will be produced as will be needed. President James C. Stone is warning the tobacca growers what the consequences will be if the growers produce an over-production of the weed. Growers can not expect a fair price if they glut the market. There is one thing certain, if too much tobacco is produced, a cut-out will be necessary next year.

While spring still lingers in the lap of winter farmers are rejoicing this week over the fact that there has been no rainfall and most of them have gotten well along with the work of sowing tobacco plant bed. The weather has been unusually cold for the season and vegetation of all sorts has not yet made much progress. Freezing weather nearly every night for a week has had a tendency to keep the buds from swelling and indications are for a good fruit crop.

The Ruhsmyer Bros., of near Law-renceburg Ferry, were in Burlington last Saturday on business. Having sold their farm they will have a pub-lic sale of personal property next Saturday, April 7th. See ad In this

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

The school should be made to fit the succivit, not the student. The school," says Supr to student the school," says Supr to student the school," says Supr to student the school," says Supr to school Frank Balluo, of washington.

Would there were more educators who made this alogan, and less who were so concerned with administrative duties and a "good system."

For one of the crying needs of our fluctuation is system in that the school withing a return things are fundamental in any education; reading, writing, history, mathmetics, geography; these are among the essentials. THE SPRING BONFIRE

In former days people seemed to enter more with the children into the fun spirit. Bonfire heaps collected by the spring raking and triming would be saved so as to be burned at night. In the darkness the leaping flames scenned bolder and more picturesque. The whole neighborhood would some times gather around to see the pretty sight. Some families, taking pleasure in giving their children a good time, would carefully conceal potatoes in the heap. Extracted from the embers, after the fire was burned out, these vegetables had a roasted flavor that the children would prefer to the best hotel dinner.

But the present are prosair days, when people are too busy for such friviolities. They live so near together than open air fires often become a peril. So the spring benfire has ceased to be much of a neighborhood festivity, but the children mics an erdevnent that many of their parents delighted in.

THE POWER OF A DINNER

parents delighted in.

THE POWER OF A DINNER

English labor leaders who wer's recently invited to dinner by the King of England were considerably critiched by members of their parv for hobnobbing with royalty. Some people would seem to feel that representatives of the labor party should hold themselves quite aloof from the dignitaries of the nation and from the employing class, otherwice insidious social influences might weaken their zeal for the cause of the working masses.

Labor conflicts occur largely because capital does not understand the problems of labor, and labor does not understand those of capital. If there were more feet put under the dinner tables, while these folks, taked over their mutual problems, the terrible class conflict that meraces civilization would be less acute.

Probably their purents keep them out a good deal more to help around their places. But it is also true that in many states the country schools do not have as long terms as the city schools.

These figures suggest two ideas. First, that many country parents are not doing justice to their children. If a farmer has his hay to get in or his postoes to dig, he perhaps thinks it will not hurt the boy to keep him out for a week. But if all the farmers keep doing that, the morale of the school is lowered. Tae children are diverted from their tasks, and get a little out of the habit of studying and will not do so much work in a year.

Such parents pay a high price, in the injury done to their children's development, for the advantage gained from their labor. To accomplish good results at anything, it is necessary to make a continuous effort at it. Those who work in the school one day and in the garden the next lose the advantage that comes from steady and persistent effort in one direction. Their concentration is destroyed.

The figures quoted above also indicate that many country schools terms must be so short as to fall to give their numbs of the service of the six of the support o

The figures quoted above also indicate that many country schools terms must be so short as to fail to give their pupils a standard amount of work for their age. Many country towns have such limited resources that they can't afford to give that standard education. If so, they need some kind of help from outside. The country schools must be kept up, if the rural industries are to function efficiently, and the country remain a good place in which to live and bring up children.

COUNTRY ROADS

Many newspaper correspondents in the farm districts during recent weeks have spoken about the condition of the roads. "Roof as very bad." "Roads in awful condition," have been conimon notes. The problem of country roads is at its worst in spring, and the hard traveling is one of the biggest problems of rural life in America.

Not all the bad roads of Kentucky can be rebuilt by public taxation. The burden would be too great. There will be many of these soft places every spring. Individual country people will have to take hold more and help out themselves If every man with a horse and can would fill up a few of the worst spots along his land, the aggregate improvement would be tremendons

The violent controversy among the various political organizations of women over the "equal rights" legislation sought in the "blanket bill" of the National Woman's Party is a the age-long struggle of individual-imm against paternalism, applied to the position of women before. The law, it hinges upon the applicability of the ancient axim, "equal rights to all, special privileges to none," to persons of both sexes alike. There is protective special legislation for children; unquestioned and soon likely to have especial constitutional reinforcement. Women however, justly objecting to being classed with children, now through at least one of their organizations protest that no special legislation for keits protections needed.

There is no reason why an eighhour law should not apply to men and women employees alike. But there is intelligent reason why women should not be permitted to work undergreund in coal or iron mines, while men possess that liberty. There is ground for the mothers' pension laws, now so generally enacted, and it would only be a logician devoid .f a sense of humor who would insist that absolute equality decrees the papment of pensions to fathers as well.

THE LOVE FOR FLOWERS

The people of former generations have been considered prosaic and unimaginative and unprogressive folks. And yet they we strong on one modern idea, and that was home and town beautification by means of flowers and foliage. Many of them spent their spare time in setting out the beautiful trees that adorn the pent their spare time in setting out the beautiful trees that adorn the older towns today, and whose shade and beauty is enjoyed by millions. Also it was characteristic of the old time homes, that they usually had flowers and shrubery. Lilac and syrings and rosebushes were more common around the homes than garages are now.

Most of the homes had certain old favorites like geraniums and petunias and phlox that made those old places fascinating in spite of their lack of modern improvements. The present generation ought to be able to show as much energy and sentiment in the matter of flower cultures as was manifested by these folks of a former day.

THIS YEAR'S GARDEN

If all the vegetables are planted in rows, preferably running north amouth, it is much easier to keep the garden free of weeds than would be the case if the seeds were sown in small beds. Another reason for planting vegetables in rows is that as soon as a row of vegetables has natured it can be removed and some thing else planted in its place.

Owing to the fact that the garder usually occupies a compartively small piece of ground and is called on to produce a arge amount of vegetables each year, it is best to plan it so that a succession of crops can be grown throughout the cason. In sfact, two or three different kinds f vegetables can be grown on the same ground every year if the garden is plonned right.

In planning these succession crops care should be used to have vegetables of different types for each succession. For example, between rows of early potatoes, midseason sweer corn can be planted. After the potatoes are dug and while the orn is maturing, clery can be planted between the rows of corn. ### Some Interesting Figures

Some Interesting Figures

It is not necessary to agree to or to controvert the asserted theory that that remarkable growth of the United States, both in wealth and population, is the direct result of a consistently maintained policy of what may be termed industrial is a lation. In less than sixty years, the population of the United States has grown from about 33,000,000 to 110,000,000. But it is conceded that American ignustrialism has drawn upon and attracted, throughout all these years, the surplus poulation of Great Britain and the British Empire. The fact is emphasized that during the fifth year period ending in Dec. 1920, a total of 7,974,716 immigrants were admitted to the United States from Great Britain and Ireland besides 1,600,122 from Canada. Applying the same actuaries' estimates to these figures atotal estimated population of British origin approximating 35,000,000 would be found in the U.S. These figures, coming from authentic sources, afford a very interesting analysis. If we deduct the population of the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Ricca and other outside points with a total of about 10,000,000 fore ign born or non-English speaking people in this cointry, it leaves us about 60,000,000.00 for this balance 14,000,000 are of British Engire origin. America in not very far removed from being a British colony. above presented, 35,000,000 are British Empire origin. America not very far removed from being British colony.

"On the large markets, wools are divided into two main classes, depending on the length of the fiber. FAT HOG SHOW DRAWS FARM BOYS AND GIRLS

Lexington, Ky.—Fifteen car loads of pigs, almost all of which will be purebreds, will be fattened by farm boys and girls in 13 counties of the state to compete for approximately $1100 in cash to be offered at the first annual Fat Hog Show to be held September 7th for junior agricultural club members at the Regrebon Stock Yards, Louisville, it has been announced by E. E. Fish, assistant state leader of junior club work at the College of Agriculture, who is-in-charge of the project. Laurel, Garrard, Boone, Boyle, Mercer, Taylor, Webster, McCracken Crittenden Hart, Fayette, Trimble and Todd counties are represented in the entries that have come in up to the present time, and it is probable that several other counties will be added to this list in the near future. Garrard and Boone counties will have two carloads each at the show, while the remaining counties will have one each, according to county agricultural agents in the various counties. Each car loal will be made up of 50 hogs, from one to ten of which can be fattened by individual club members.

Of the total prize money to be offered at the show, approximately $480 more will be awarded as special prizes by breeders, breed associations and other agencies that are cooperating in sponsering the show. An additional inducement has been offered to the young, swine feeders by all Louisville parages and local purchasing agents who buy for packing houses in other sections, these buyers having offered to take the pigs entered in the show at a substantial promium above the general market on the day of the show. This will be done because a majority of the pigs will be project, which will terminate in the show, is expected to give the hundreds of farm boys and girls who take part in it practical information on feeding and cooperative marketing.

COOL SEASON VEGETABLES

CAN BE PLANTED IN APRIL

Lexington, Ky.—Many of the cocl season vegetables such as cabbage, beets and radishes, usually can be planted in Kentucky gardens from April 1 to 20th without much dan ger of their freezing, gardening specialists at the College of Agricu'ture say. A list of vegetables which they give as suitable for planting at that time includes beets, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, leaf lettuce, paraley, parsaley, pers, radishes, salsify and swiss chard. Plants started from seed about February 1 should be used in the case of cabbage and cauliflower.

Making a second sowing of lettuce later in the season gievs a succession of this crop and makes it possible for the home gardener to have young, tender plants over a longer period. Those who care to grow head lettuce usually can set the plants in the open from April 10 to 20th, the plants having been starded from seed about February 1.

Succession plantings of this crop should be made during the first part of Max. The dwarf varieties, like Gradis and Excelsion, will be found most convenient because they require no taking or supports. However, they are not heavy yielders and do not bear over a long period of time, being best for early peas.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

The farmer has a chance to make both ends meet this year if he handles his resources to best advantage, is the opinion of the Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C., in the review of the general situation. It statement said.

"Farmers who are too low down in the scale of efficiency will hardly find salvation in cheap credit, chean transportation, co-operative marketing, tariffs, price fiying, or all of these combined. Informed men appear to feel that not more than two major farm products are likely to be expanded this year at a profit These are cotton and possibly sheep.

The correspondents of the weeklices usually declare something or other to be the order of the day.
At one time it is plowing; at another it is the pie supper; at still another it is visiting. Just now the order of the day is politics. The Kentucky papers are carrying announcements that gentlemen are yelding to the earnest solicitation of friends to run for office. This earnest solicitation business may play out some day but it is going strong. In fact, it is much stronger than the power of resistance against it. Some day somebody with an original turn of mind is going to advertise himself as running against the advice of his friends and at the earnest solicitation of his enemies.—Ex.

Following the established pollcy of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association to "keep out of politics," "Milam H. Shanks, of Stanford, who has announced as candidate for the Democratic nonlination for State Auditor, tendered his resignation as director of the Burley Pool. In tendering his resignation, Mr. Shanks said he believed the policy of the association in regard to politics was wise and desired to start a precedent which he hoped would be adhered to in the future.

The year 1816 is known in history as the summerless year. There was frost in every aummer month, and the northern states were treated to a June snowstorm. Crops were almost a total failure. Some amataur weather prophets are predicting that the coming summer will be a repetition of 1816. We would advise all those who have planned to plant a crop this spring, to proceed with their work, as all cold signs fail in hot weather.

According to letters sent out for State Superintendent George Colvin, teachers, County Supts, and board members, who attend the Kentucky Educational Association at Louisville hext week, must pay their own expenses. Mr. Colvin, said, "It is not permissable to pay the teachers expenses or membership fees in the association from county funds, under the guise of a bonus in the salary schedule."

One of the best signse that the farmers of Boone county are enjoying prosperity is the fact that many of them are contemplating improving their homes and other baildings this pring and fall. The improvements will make farm life more attractive to the young folks, who are leaving the farm to go to the cities where living conditions are more attractives.

An English bank note has a very short life. In fact, it riverages only about two months. As soon as the Bank of England receives a note back from the public it is not circulated again. It is automatically canceled by having the cashier's signature torn off. Some 350,000 notes are thus canceled every week.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

The Rev. Karl Otto Walther, formerly a resident of Holoken, was denied citizenship papers by Supreme Court Justice McCarthy recently on the ground he had claimed exemption from the draft as an alien.

"You stepped aside when the warcame." Justice McCarthy saki, "on make place for some other mother's son."

Hurrah for Judge McCarthy!
You can't make a silk purse from a sow's ear, nor a good American from a draft dodger. And the more publicity given the fact, the less will be the applications for citizenship papers from those who think the United States is "a good thing" and "an easy mark."

A flag good enough to live under is good enough to fight under. A land good enough to live n is good enough to the first maked for the McCarthy's who good enough to the first maked for the McCarthy's who guard the great gift of citizenship with such high ideals.

Much is being said and published for respect for law; our willingness to flout the law upon a dozen different to auses for this condition, ranging from "reaction from the war". to "opposition to blue laws."

As is natural, the lawyer and the ranks of those who draw attention to the danger to our institutions when Americans no longer respect the law. The way to make law respected to make it worthy of respect. We quote from a news dispatch.

BOONE COUNTY EGG LAYING CONTEST.

LAYING CONTEST.

The contestants in the County Egg-Laying Contest made some enviable records for the month of March. They can be pointed to with pride, and are living, monuments of the success that can be made with poultry. Again, there has been some shifting of places among the winners this month, and we are some some shifting of places among the winners this month, and we are so ty to leave a number of other good records out of the high five.

It will be interesting to watch the next report for the winners of the five months average. Consistant layers throughout the winter months means the biggest profits from poultry and assures one of the right kind of breeding stock.

The winners are:

Mrs. Clarence Jones, Hebron. 62 hens, 1371 eggs, average per hen, 22.1 breed, White Leghorn.

Roy C. Lutes, Florence, 238 hens, 5151 eggs, average per hen 21.2 breed, White Leghorn.

Mrs. B. E. Aylor, Burlington, 250 hens, 5225 eggs, average per hen, 12.9 breed, White Leghorn.

J. L. Kite, Burlington, 50 hens, 88 eggs, average per hen, 17.8 breed, White Leghorn and Barred Rock.

Now is the time for a beginner or other poultrymen to get started with the best stock in the Boone County Poultry Association on the Pullet Return Plan. This plan requires no money to be invested. ### SCHOOL LUNCHES NO FAD

When the idea was advanced of serving hot lunches in school, some people thought it was merely a passing fad, which would eost a good deal but accomplish no useful results. But schools where it has been tried find it does produce real gains. New life is put into the children by warm nutritious foods. They can work better than if they dragged through the amount of the deal with any appetite or heartiness.

When pupils do mere work in any appetite or heartiness.

When pupils do mere work in a dwarf of the cost to their parents and the town will be less. Hot school lunches would pay for every echool.

By its euphonious nomepiclature it has achieved a national notoricty—being known at least by all post, masters who can read—and any change thereof would be repudiated by the citizens as uncalled for and ridiculous.

We are satisfied with our name, the property of the citizens as uncalled for and ridiculous.

The place had begun; it had houses and inhabitants, but no name. It was differently called anything by everybody, and as it was not yet christenied tall. But at last, when the burden seemed too great for endurance, a genius arose who lifted us out of the slough of despond. By a bold stroke, though it may have been unwittingly, he bestowed upon us a name which is destined to go "iniging down the grooves of time." May his memory never perish!

The time when this auspicious event occurred was Christmas day, A. D. 1847. As all of your older readers know, this was during the great forty-seven flood. For sever, idays the river had been rising very steadily, until now all the houses on the bank were flooded, and the owners were compelled to seek quarty-gwith their more fortunate neighbors. It was a time of considerable hardship and suffering. America is on the long pull towards prosperity, in spite of the fart that so mush of the world is "upside down." This year is going to be a prosperous year for the farmers, as well as for the business world. Entaployment in general is better now than it has been since the close of the war. DUMPING AND MERCHANDISIN'

Aaron Sapiro, the noted California expert on farm marketing made an address recently as reported in the St. Paul Farmer, which should stir up every farmer of Kentucky to see her the marketing methods in his locality can be improved.

Mr. Sapiro brought out the idea that while farming is an individual and independent process, each man working on his own acres, yet when it comes to marketing, it becomes a group problem. The individual farmer can't usually do it successfully because he does not know the vast country-wide and world wide conditions that affect the process.

Individual selling of crops means as a rule that they will be dumped on the market affect the process.

Individual selling of crops means as a rule that they will be dumped on the market when the prices are lowest. Farmers hear that prices at harvest time are low, and they start in to get their crop on the market at the earliest possible moment. That produces a vast over supply for the time being, and themarket is broken to a point where the farmer can not get what it cost him to produce the stuff.

The business men in other lines do not do that way. When a merchant gets his fall and winter stock in, he does not try to sell it in afer weeks. If he did he would have to sell at a big sacrifice the way the farmers have had to. Instead he makes plans to work it off gradually as the public demands it. In that way he is able to cell at a profit and stay in business.

The farmers must market in that gradual way in order to attain the success that men get in other lines of business. That means that in the majority of cases they should get together and prepare to handle frieir united crops will sell the best, and thus make the least sacrifice in order to dispose of it.

WILLIE SAW THE POINT

(Calhoun News.)

A 10-year-old Calhoun lad overheard a foonversation about certain bills to be paid and conceived the idea of making out a bill for his own services. So next morning he laid his statement of account on the mother's breakfast plate:

"Mother owes Willie for carrying coal six times, 20c; for bringing 'a water lots of times, 30c; for going ten errands, 15c."

"It mitcher veed the bill but said nothing about it. That evening Willie found on his plate the 75 cen's and also another bill which read as follows: "While owes mother for his happy home for the years, nothing; for nursing him through a long illness, nothing; total, nothing."

When Willie saw the 75 cents he was pleased, but when he read his mother's bill his eyes grew dim and his lips quivered. Hen he was the money to his mother, threw his arms about her neck and begged that she would let him do lots of things for her.

ATHLETICS.

Most educational authorities agree that athletic life in schools and colleges, if well handled, develops maniliness and health of boys. But if onty a small portion of the students get a chance to take part in these contests, the system is only a partial succes.

A recent study of high school athletics in Massachusetts, showed that only 17 per cent of the pupils take up sports. It is doubtful if the average in high schools for the whole country is much higher. A system that touches less than one fifth of the boys is a long way from accomplishing the desired results.

RED GROSS NEWS.

Covington, Ky, is planning a Life Saving Corps. This is a result of the work done by the Red Cross in that line. Of the eighty thousand acci-dental deaths in the United States last year, six thousand were drowr-ed.

The American Red Cross issues a Teachers' Handbook of First Aid Information in which are outlined fifteen lessons for junior and fifteen for Senior High School students. The Handbook has been adapted to the use of school teachers for regular class work where physicians or authorized First Aid Instructors are not available. Teach your school boys and girls to do more than shout and run away in case of accident.

The South Carolina League of Women voters in their last convention endorsed the work of the Junior Red Cross and promised to foster the introduction of Junior work in their resolutions they say in part: "The Junior Red Cross stands as one of the leading international agencies available today, that can give school girls and boys throughout the world a deeper appreciation and better understanding of the people of other countries."

GRAMMAR SCHOOL BASE BALL

GRAMMAR SCHOOL BASE BALL.

Not merely is base ball one of the principal features of high school and college life, but many of the grammar schools have regular teams now. It is interesting to see the younger kids start in forming a ball nine, as it is their first step toward any kind of joint association for common ends.

The boy under 12 years is an individualist. He can hardly think in terms of team play. He wants to accomplish things for himself, and display his own powers. It is difficult for num to join with others in a group where all subordinate their separate desires to gain some common result.

If modern school life persuades these youngsters to forget this desire for selfish accomplishment, and unite to do things together, it is advancing the development of the younger generation. The progress of the community depends on team work. The youngsters who form a ball team at an early age are getting a start on an ideal that is vital to their welfare.

LEARNING BY DOING

LEARNING BY DOING

One of the big differences between country and city delilidren is that the former learn by doing things that call on them for intelligent thinking. The country child is set to work around his farm or village place, and there are always thing; that he can do, and to accomplish which he must use his own inventiveness. This makes him resourceful and when he grows up—he—can think out his problems and solvathem.

More than half of the country has been always them.

More than half of the city ch'ldern get their education solely from books. That makes them lacking in inventiveness. They have no initiative. Some city boys of cours have to work, but their jobs do not usually develop this resourcefulness and ingenuity. They do not get the country boy's power of thinking things out for himself.

THIS YEAR'S GARDEN

Insects and Diseases.

It is a well known fact that there are many insects and diseases that accet the vegetables growing in the garden. For the most part, these garden pests are compartively easy to control, provided one will prepare for them with the proper equipment and material. Then by carefully observing the habits of some of the insects, it is an easy proposition to apply a remedy that will prevent them from doing scrious injury. For example, the cabbage worm can be controlled by dusting with a mixture made of one part of aris-slaked lima. The control of the

At a time when farmers were unable to sell their product on account of lack of foreign demand, the FARM BUREAU demanded and obtained from Conjeres an appropriation of One Billion Dollars to loan the farmers and others to finance export shipments. ### TANK HEATERS ARE FAVORED quently it is Poor Policy to Supply lee Water.

When a cow drinks water, her body at once sets to work raising it, if necessary, to the same temperature as exists normally in the body. In order to warm the water taken in, heat is just as necessary as it is to warm a kettle of water on the stove.

To provide the heat necessary, the blood and internal organs give up a portion of their supply until more is supplied from food previously consumer of water, much heat is supplied from food previously consumer of water, much heat is exequitived to warm it. Consequently when cows are allowed to drink water that is very cold, a shigh percentage of the feed enton is required to heat it. If it is true that some heat is being given off from the body all the time and when the amount of water taken in at one time is small the loss is unimportant. But when the cows are watered only once or twice daily, and then get near ice water, they are likely to suffer injury and more feed is necessary. Stated briefly, it is a question of a good tank heater and a few pails of colos or coal. The man interested in getting the most out of his cows and in their comfort will not expect them to be their own tank beaters.

MORE SWEET CORN IS BIG NEED OF GARDENS

Lexington, Ky.—During the latter part of April, the planting schedule for the home gardener should include such things as string beans, sweet corn leaf lettuce and the second crops of peas and radishes, gardening specialists of the College of Agriculture say.

Sweet corn should be more universally grown and used in Kentucky and when once used will be found much more desirable for table use than the ordinary field varieties, they say. Succession plantings at in-

Succession plantings at intervals of two or three weeks will furnish a ontinued supply for the tabe. String beans are included in the list of vegetables that can be plantied after April 20, for they are ali, leasily killed by frost. However the dates of the last killing frost as given by the weather bureau indicate that it is safe to plant this crop after April 20. # 6.6 YEARS AVERAGE LIFE OF CORN-BELT FARM TRACTOR.

Estimates upon the probable length of life of the tractor on Corn Belt farms have been obtained from 278 tractor owners by investigators in the United States Department of Agriculture, studying the cost of using tractors. The estimates range from 3 to 10 years, 81 owners estimating a life of 5 years. The average of all of the estimates received is 6.6 years, Some of these estimates may seem low, yet there are instances of operators who have considered their machine profitable after wearing them out in as brief a time su two years, under adverse soil conditions.

DAIRY FACTS

IMPROVEMENT OF DAIRY COW

partment of Agriculture Has Si High-Producing Animals on its Farm at Beltsville.

Farm at Betsville.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Improvement of dairy cows means a great deal more than increased profits to the dairyman. It means cheaper food and more milk, the lest bone and puneds wakes for children. What this improvement means is brought out forcefully by a poster prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and sent free to interested persons.

An ordinary cow or scrub produces only enough milk to feed five children a quart a day, while a good cow yields enough to give 20 children a quart a day. The supercow, and there are more and more of them in this class each year, gives enough milk so that a small herd of them might supply this quantity to all the small children in a small cowa.

On its farm at Beltswille, Md., the department has six cows, the result of its breeding work, that have produced an average of more than 22,000 pounds of milk in 305 days. This little herd of six big producers yields enough milk to provide 170 children a quart a day. One of them could supply nearly 30 children, or six thues as many as the ordinary cow could take care of.

Good breeding, first, and good feed-

MAKE COW RATION TEMPTING

The good dairy ration must be at-tractive. A cow is a self-respecting sort of animal and she likes palatable food. In fact, a cow will not do well on food that jowr palatable, and it should be remembered that the condion food that Isn't palatable, and it should be remembered that the condition of fire rood has the house in od owith its palatability. Moldy grains or roughages do not-appeal to the appetite of the cow, and consequently are unsatisfactory. Thus the unsatisfactory feed, no matter if it does contain the proper elements, may cause a reduction in the milk supply due to the cow's unwillingness to eat a plenty to keep up a good flow of milk.

At the same thus it must be recognized that it is not a wise idea to change a ration suddenly in order to make it better. A cow is a pretty delicate sort of a milk-producing machine and, especially if she is a large producer, sudden changes in the food are quite likely to upset her in one way or another, and the result will be a loss of milk.

KEEP FEED UTENSILS CLEAN

Wide-awake dalryme realize the importance of keeping calf feeding utensils accupulously clean at all seasons of the year. The average farmet, however, may grow a little carcless about the calf pall, especially during the warm summer months. These palls should be of the or glavanized iron, never of wood, and should not be allowed to get rusty or battered. They should be thoroughly washed, rinsed and sterilized after use, and kept in a clean place. Never use calf palls for feeding hogs, or live stock other than calves.

ESSENTIALS FOR DAIRY HERD

ve and Young Animals Should Be Provided With Plenty of Pure Water and Shade.

Provide plenty of shade and cool, pure water for the cows and young animals. Spray cows at milking time to keep off files. Look out for sour milk and cream. Bacteria and warmth cause milk to sour. The modern way to spell bacteria is d-lr-t. Keep it out of the milk, thoroughly wash and scald all milk utensila. Keep the milk or cream cool, 60 degrees or lower if possible, and, it will stay sweet for several days.

LIGHTING COUNTRY HOMES
Physicians claim there are more weak eyes in the country than the city. Cities have had up to recently rather better lighting facilities than those prevailing in country towns, although today a great many villages and outlying-homes—have excellent lighting plants.
But even if a home has no electricity or gas within reach, it can have perfectly good lighting Taeilities. The old kerosene lamp if it is kept clean and if it has a good and well shaded light, can give all the illumination needed for reading. Many people spoil their eyes by using too few or too small lights. It does not pay to economize on kerosene if your eyes need a better evening light for reading. sene if your eyes need ening light for reading

SPRING FEVER

SPRING FEVER

Springlike days have a sedutive charm, that fills the heart with sweet anticipation of the coming summer. The man who has been digging away at a desk or bench all winter, begms to long for the open. The pleasant sights and sounds of the season invite him to wander along the motor reads or out in the ountry to the fishing grounds.

Many people feel tired and languid as the warmer weather comes on. These feelings of lawguor and longing have been alled spring fever. The people who keep exercising actively all the time, however are not much bothered by "that tired feeling." But the spring desire for out door life is natural, for men and women were not made to live in stuffy buildings.

Country people have a far better chance for health than city folks, but they often throw that chance away by poorly ventilated and un-saultary homes.

THE UP TO DATE TOWN

If a group of people were askel to state what harateristies or adventages a city must have to be considered up to date, probably the inciprity would name first the facilities of modern comfortable living. Some folks, if asked to name the rost important of these facilities, for important of these facilities, which state the following: Good water, good lighting, good roads and sidewisk, good drainage or sewags.

Hustling towns will occasionally be somewhat lacking on one or more of these fucilities, but as a rule a town or city to go ahead must provide these comforts of modern life, and provide them in good shape. A city that is ambitious to excel its neighbors would do well to examine are fully its advantages in these respects, as ompared with other places of the same size in its state and section. If it is handicapped in comparison with its ruble in these respects it has a heavy load to carry in the thee for development.

puppets in the hands of ward leaders, supply them with enough inspirational knowledge of the American ideals and what they stand for, so that they, like their children in public schools, will want to stand at salute as the flag goes by? "Paternalism?" Certainly! Wy not? The more foreigners we turn into good Americans, the less trouble we will have with foreign ideas, flags, newspapers, methods, and worries! In other words, why not go beyond our present policy of "giving the foreigner a chance" to the policy of "making him accept the chance?" It would cost little, and might do much towards the greatly desired end of a thorough Americanization of all who come from abroal to make this land the permanent home.

Visitors to the Capital City who go to the beautiful Lincoln Memorial in Potomae Park, are invariably struck by its spartan simplicity, its lack of interior ornamentation and furniture.

Perhaps it may help some who stand reverently before the giant statue of America's man of sorrows, trying to visualize and reconcile the tragedy and the beauty which was the Great Emancipator's life, if they carry in their hearts the simple words of a custodian of the Memorial, who said, when asked if he was, not lonely when there were no visitors: "Oh, no! I am not lonely. For when there are no visitors and the propersion of the wents that of being "alone with Lincoln," an experience which can not hut make a better citizen of any man who has had it.

To get such a community record, the people must help. The editor and his helpers lead a very busy life. If they attempted to look up every suggestion, they would need more helpers than any country paper can afford. They must rely upon the good will and the relf interest of the people to get these netivities well reported. So if you know of any interesting doings in the county or in Burlington do not fail to give the Recorder a good account of them, or at least notify the editor so he can cover it.

Mrs. Kate A. Morehouse Dead.

Mrs. Kate A. Morehouse, widow of Wm. Morehouse, passed away at the home of her nieces, the Miss-t Gurney, on Erlanger Read, Erlanger, last Monday morning at the advanced age of 91 years.

"Who owns the air?" Owership of ground has been debated throughout all economic history. "Who owns the air?" is a new phase of the old idea of possession and one which at present delays the progress of commercial airplanes development.

old idea of possession and one which at present delays the progress of commercial airplanes development. Who wants to put money into commercial air service, while the best legal minds of the country are seriously considering that every airplane which passes over a man's property may be guilty of trespars. There is no limitation to that lengths to which this might be carried. If a man is judged to own the air above his piot of ground, is he to be allowed to collect from a commercial flying company as he would from a rallroad whose trains eross his land, Is he to have the right to enjoin airplanes from crossing a thosand feet above his house. Meanwhile governments want thu planes which will carry more and more bombs. They want greater flying gun platforms. Money and interest is provided for improving interest of warfare, while commercial development lags.

LIVING COST OF AVERAGE FAMILY.

AVERAGE FAMILY.

The philadelphia Bureau of Maniepal Research has Just estimated that $1,854.28 is the minimum amount upon which a family of five in that city may maintain health and a decent standard of living. The survey takes into consideration the present cost of food, fuel, rent and clothing and is the fifth compiled by the bureau. Its figures, if they are good for Philadelphia, ought to be fairly accurate for almost any northern city above 25,000 population, for the big items of food, fuel and rent do not differ greatly in any of them from the Philadelphia standard. For instance, the rent cost for a family of five is placed at $33.33 1-3 per month—surely a modest amount for so large a city. The estimate of $1,854.28 does not allow much of a margin for contingencies. The entire family can use but one hairbrush and must fight for the single comb. Each member, however, is allowed a separate toothbrush. The husband is treated more generously than the wife. He is to have one new suit per year, while she can buy one (including a $4.50 hat) but once in two years, with a new skirt every year. The husband's $25 overcost must last him three years; he is alrowed two pairs of shoes per year and one set winter underwear. It is not stated how he manages to have that washed—whether laundering is done on Sunday, while he remains in bed, or whether he has saved his set of the year before to alternate with the new one.

in bed, or whether he has saved his set of the year before to alternaze with the new one. The budget does not provide for any saving nor for the spending of much, if any, money tor Christms a presents. Forty-five cents per week is allowed for amusement; 92 cents for doctor's bills, medicines, dentists oculists and all other health items; 25 cents for reading, education, stationery and postage; for legal expenses, moving and incidentals, $88.88 for the year.

Under such a budget the family would have to do without a daily paper; it would have nothing for charity and mighty little for religion. There wouldn't be much use trying to convince the head of that family that giving one-enth of its income to the church was a scriptural obligation.

AMERICA'S FAVORITE HYMN.

"The Etude," a musical magazine, has recently conducted a Natio. whide ballot to ascertain the favorite hymn. More than $2,000 nominations were sent in. "Abide With Me" was the leader, by a considerable majority. "Nearer My God to Thee" is next. "Lead Kindly Light" is third, "Rock of Ages" fourth, with "Jeaus Lover of My Soull" and "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty," as the next in order. The referendum was conducted over a very wide range and may be said to be thoroughly representative as indicative of the choice of this country.

"Abide With Me" was written by the keev. Henry Francis Lyte (1793-1847) an obscure English parson, a few hours before his death, after administering a final communion service to his parishoners. These are the hymns of simple raith, of hope, of reverence: "Abide with me; fast falls the eventile;

O Thou Who changest not, abide with me."
That is the cry from the heart of reverent America—the appeal of the wanderer lost in the shadow of the approaching long night—bewildered forsaken by a pride of intellect which perhaps has teen a false guide—and ebandond bim in the wilderness to the wolves of doubt. Intellect may convince; science may scort and the new philosophies seek to destroy and give nothing in place of that they take away—yet despite these the despairing cry is "Abide With Me O Thou Who changest no —Abide with me." The tremendously persuasive appeal of music, and of hymns such as the three the people have selected, do not seem to be appreciated in these modern days as much as when the congregations were expected to furnish the music by singing hymns. Let a church be all but darkened, let the three hymns being which the American people have said are their favorites, and let there be a short, earnest fervert and reverent prayer—and maybe more people would go to church if such services were more common?

More music—more of the helping hand reaching out of the infinite—hand seleminus; to the warderns—and soleminus; to the warderns—and there will be more them to struggle in out of the darkness.

"MEMORIES." (By Pauline Rice.)

I was born in Old Kentucky,
Near a place called Burlington,
And I love the very memory,
Of that dear old spot of ground.

It was there I lived so happy, With mother, father and sisters four, But those day's have gone forever, And they cannot come anymore.

I remember the clover blossoms.
How we made them into wreaths,
I can almost swell their fragrance
In the morning breeze.

It was there we played together,
Down by the rippling stream,
Where every day the sun shows brightly,
And the stars in darkness gleam.

Fuel and oil requirements for twoplow and three-plow tractors on CoBelt farms, when figured on the basis of acres covered or other work

the investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture in the three-plow ouffit with its more

Or the heavy operations, such as plowing and disping, the two-plow outfits require an average of about 18 gallons of fuel per day and four quarts of oil and the three-plow outfits about 23 gallons of fuel and 5 gallons of oil. By careful operation the amounts used on works where the tractor is not loaded to capacity can be reduced somewhat.

The life of many steel highway bridges is materially shortened became of infrequent and improper painting, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Each year a considerable umount of money is spent for the repincement of rusted bridge members that would have remained sound if they had been kept painted; and more serious tina the wuste of money is the danger to the public due to the weakening of some bidden partwhich may cause the colinpse of the whole bridge.

Officials of the bureau urge that all steel bridges be inspected at least once each year and repulnted at the first sign of rusting. Normally repulning is required at periods of from two to five years, depending on the climate, a suitable paint should be used, and if there is uncertainty about any paint, information should be requested from the state highway department.

It is a mistake to repaint without properly cleaning the ment of all dirt, rust, loose paint, and blisters. Usually the places hardest to reach are the ones that should receive the most attention.

PREVENT SCOURS IN CALVES

One of the Most Common Causes of Allment is Dirty Palls and Feed-ing in Wooden Troughs.

Ing in Wooden Troughs.

Caives may got scours from several causes, but one of the common sources is dirty pails and the practice followed of feeding in wooden troughs. A good row is to keep the calf buckets as clean as the milk pails. The furuer who uses a swill pail for feeding caives or who hangs the pall on a post between feedings without washing it will be looking for a cure for calf scours. With warm weather and the fly senson at hand extra presention must be taken in enring for the pails. They should be washed theroughly after each feed and sterilized eitherwild, steam or het water hand then inverted in a clean place until used again.

GIVE CALF SOME ATTENTION

Stunted Helfer Will Never Develop Into Profitable Cow—Provide Shade and Water.

The calf is often very much neglected-from the time it is six until it is Fresh Grass for Cows.

Mow the pasture to kill off weeds.
Fresh grass, free of weeds, makes it possible for your cows to produce more and better milk.

Take Care of Cans.

Cans used for the return of skim unik or whey should be emptled, scaled ed and cleaned as soon as they nrive at the farm.

THIS YEAR'S GARDEN

The tomato is one of the most important crops found in the average farm garden, as it can be used thru-out the scason for immediate table use and also is excellent for canning. Some attention must be given to the handling of the plants if the best fruit is to be raised. When the young plants are to be set in the field they should be watered good before being taken out of the box in which they were grown. This will make the soil stick to the roots so that they will not be damaged in transplanting. May 1 is about as carly as it was to see the plants in the garden without danger of treezing. The thants should be transplanted on a loudy day or late in the afternoon so that they can get established before the bot sun strikes, them.

1. The plants are to be staked—

them.

If the plants are to be staked—that is the way to reise the bear fruit—they should be set two feet apart. A stake about five feet long should be driven in the ground beside each plant soon after they are set in the garden and the stalk tied to this stake with a heavy cord or rag. The plants should be kept trained to one stem and all suckers kept pruned off. Pruninp and staking tomatoes helps to raise fruit of excellent quality. In addition, if the plants are staked the fruit will ripen more evenly than it does when allowed to get down in the dirt.

"Paternalism" in Sweden.

In Sweden a farmer can be reprimanded by the governor of a province for abusing "mother earth." Over 1,100 cases of abusing farm land by neglecting to cultivate it properly have been dealt with during the last four years.

There has been some discussion as to definitions by those charged with determining when a farmer should be censured for neglect for his land, but the Swedish cultivation extension committee has come to the conclusion that corrective measures are necessary where land was found overgrown with weeds, where a field yielded notably less than the neighboring fields, where, the annual production-decreased, or where grain had been disposed of untirashed. Of the 1,177 cases considered 123 had to be brought to the attention of provincial governors before improvement was effected.

Great Boom for Alaska,
A very considerable improvement in the business of Alaska is predicted by a recent investigator who was sent there to look the field over. The exportation of fish, which has been the great source of revenue for the past ten years, will be found to have greatly increased during the last year, when an account of the business shall have been taken. There is a revival in the mining industry and the export of high-grade lumber, cut from the Tongass region, has shown a very promising beginning. The government efforts to foster the pulp and paper manufacturing mean much for the country, and the completion of the will be the means of increasing the agricultural resources of the land. The completion of this road will take place at an early date.

GOOD SIRE MOST ESSENTIAL

Dairy Farmer Urged to Stop Working for Scrub Bull and His Un-profitable Progeny.

for Scrue Bull and ris Unperfectable Progeny.

Look to the future of your herd-the herd of tomorrow, and cease working for the scrue bull and his scrue progeny, and get a good purchred bull time war work for you and bulled up a high economical producing herd.

Study of the yearly production records and feed costs of 8,004 cows in a report of the United States Dairy division shows the following results:

Cows that produce 100 pounds of butterfat in a year, with an average feed cost of $34, gave a return of $10 over cost of feed; cows that produced 200 pounds of butterfat per year, with an average feed cost of $42 over cost of feed; gows that produced 300 pounds of butterfat per year, with an average feed; cost of feed; gows that produced 300 pounds of butterfat produced 300 pounds of butterfat per year, with an average feed cost of $74 over cost of feed; cows that produced 400 pounds of butterfat in a year with an average feed cost of $70 gave a return of $106 over cost of feed.

Thus it is shown that as production of fat increases, feed cost also increases, but not in urgorytion, and the income over the feed cost also increases, it costs twice as much to feed the 400-pound fat-producing cow, but she makes ten times as great a return over feed cost, and "what is left after the bills are paid" is what interests all of us.

A good purebred bull, plus good feed and care will help you to produce the above results.—F. E. Ball, Deputy Colorado State Dairy Commissioner.

GIVE CALF SEPARATE STALL

Make It Possible to Prevent Spread of Various Diseases Among Young Animals, Young Anima,

The best breeders have come to the conclusion that it is highly desirable to provide every new-born call with a separate stall for at least a period of four or five weeks. Men who have been studying the young calf declare that at the time of its birth it is likely to be infected with a variety of germs which are apt to cause trouble. By investigating the contents of the calf's stomach, in order to determine the kinds of bacteria it contains, a number of disease-producing bacteria have been found. If several young-steer are kepf in a stall together at this early period, the chances are, if one is infected with a certain disease, that all will have the spane trouble. The separate enif stall mikes it easy to prevent the spread of these various calf diseases and by keeping calves in separate stalls for four or live weeks, the usual time of infection, many of the common lils will be climinated.

A gift of a trust fund of $1,000-000 from E. O. Robinson, lumber manufacturer and capitalist, of Cincinnati and Ft. Thomas, Ky., and 16,000 acres of rich timber lands from the lumber firm of Mawbray & Robinson, Cincinnati, to be used in the educational accionitural and economic development of the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, was announced one day last week by Edward C. The directors of the North Kentucky Fair have been busy the past month formulating plans for making this year's county fair bigger and letter than ever. Many new features in the way of a musements will be introduced this season. The fair will be held August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. With the assistance of the citizens of Boone and surrounding counties, it will be possible to make the North Kentucky Fair the best county fair in this section of the country.

According to letters sent to county schools, county school superintendents must devote "their entire time to the duties of the office and must not carry on other work in the community in which they live. "Tha law, the oath of office and the contract compell superintendents to devote their entire time to the duties of the office," Mr. Colvin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, says.

Z. T. Kelly and son Colin, of Rabbit Hash, were visitors to Burlington, last Friday. Mr. Kelly, who is one of the oldest and most highly estemend citizens of that part of the county, has been ill and confined to the house since Christmas, having had an attack of influenza, but at present is holding his own with slight improvement in his condition. He has a host of friends who hope that he will soon be restored to health.

This year's fruit crop in this section of the country is about threyweek's behind normal conditions. Extreme and sudden changes of temperature during the winter and the backward spring have kept truit buds in check and prevented their early development. Early fruit, especially the peach crop, is claim'd by some, were injured to some extent by the freezing weather around Easter.

One hundred pounds of sugar was purchased at a Burlington grocery one day last week and a notice as follows was attached to the package.

Urge your Congressmen to IN-SIST ON REMOVAL of tariff on sugar.

Norway, a strong prohibition nation, has been compelled to abandon that principle because of trade conditions. Its greatest fish markets are with Portugal, Spain and other wine producing states who demand the privilege of payment in goods. The trade agreement signed last week with Portugal provides for the free importation of wine.

APPRECIATING THE HOME STORES
Some people get the idea that there is a lot of profiteering in retail trade. If these folks only realized the true condition of acairs, they would realize that retail stores are doing business today on a smaller, margin of profit than ever before.

The higher range of prices prevailing since the war, has stimulated competition and has forred retail trade to remodel its system of operation and make every possible improvements and eronomy in its methods. The stores are saving a margin for the publis as the result of improved distribution methods.

Merchants today are putting more brains into their work than ever before. They get better expert advice, they understand markets better, they train their help to render better service.

The best way to make the people realize the fine quality of these service they get from their stores, is by consistent advertising of those stores. As they read the newspaper advertising, people learn about special chances to buy goods which they would never have known about had it not been for these notices.

They learn that stores are carrying lines that they knew nothing about. They get information warning them of conditions that tend toward higher prices, and showing them how they can save money by prompt purchasing. They find out that their home merchants have veen scouring the country to pick up the peat merchandise available. They discover their home stores are working with all their might to provide the necessities and conveniences of life at the lowest possible price consistent with substantial merit.

The advertised store is the appreciated store.

REFORMING THE JAILS

A nation wide effort to produce better conditions in county and city jails is to be started by the national conference of social work. The con-ditions mose complained of in such institutions are as follows:

1.—Herding of all kinds of pris-oners together, so that the immature and undeveloped are confirmed in evil ways by contact with hardened criminals.

2.—Idleness. "Satan finds some mischief still, for idle hands to do."

Prisoners need proper classification. The young fellow in for a first effense needs radically different treatment from that handed out to the old sinner. Work should be provided for each prisoner, not merely to occupy their time, but to teach them useful trades by which they can make a living after their release.

BORAH'S REPLY TO LORD CECIL.

Replying to Lord Cecil at New York, Senator Borah, of Idaho, declared that the League of Nations has been "dominated by governments who do not want peace on any justice," and that the proper field for disslimitation of a gospel of peace was in Europpe—not in America." Senator Borah added: "As things stand today, a ruler antinnent in blood and sacrifice the livés of millions and yet never under the denunciation or the lash of the law.
Until that standard is changed, no league of nations can function for peace. Its makers may make it for peace, but those who execute it will efflecute it for war."

The best spring poetry you can offer the newspaper editor is a check for that overdue subscription.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

Many people who become interested in town improvement, find that the great obstacle in their way is not the cost or the inherent difficulties confronting their projects, but a certain temper of inertia on the part of the people.

The trouble in such matters, is that it takes a long campaign of education to wake people up to the need for progressive measures. It takes constant persuasion, before people become familiar enough with a good cause so they will get over their indifference and give it their support.

One of the most important functions of a country newspaper, is to keep up a constant effort in behalf of progressive local causes. It should be constantly showing the reasons for such movements, helping to answer objections and arouse enthusiasm. This constant pressure inseeded in order to get public attention.

Unless the need for progressive movements is steadily kept before the people, they become so engrossed in their private affairs that public causes arouse no enthusiasm. The good country newspaper while it will not wary its readers by tire some persistence along any one line, yet it keeps up such a good natured agitation for needed improvements that the public is constantly reminded of these subjects, and induced to give such matters serious consideration.

The Recorder has tried to perform this function, and it could

THE COUNTRY SEASONS.

City people come out into the country districts of Kentucky at one season in the year, usually in the heats of midsummer, and they think they are getting the whole beauty of country life. But actually they only get a little fragment of it.

Every season in the country has its own charm. The soft unfolding of the leaves in spring in one phase. The ripe beauty of autumn is another. Every season has its own attractions. The succession of brids and flowers is a procession of beauty and joyous influence. To get all that beauty and charm, one must live in the country all the time, and become familiar with its verying phases and its less familiar aspects.

TREND OF TAXATION

TREND OF TAXATION

Taxes are increasing everywhere because the people are demanding greater services from their governments or the governments or the governments are undertaking to do more things for the people and in either event the cost is increased which means more taxes as any one must see.

The demand for better roads and schools has instigated a widespread propaganda for these purposes to which the public is responding liberally, in sentiment, and while on the one hand very large expenditures are encouraged on the other hand there is a great deal of complaint about taxes which is not level logical to say the least of it.

Here in Kentucky, where not only roads and schools; but practically sail of the institutions maintained by the State were neglected for many years; under an obsolete and unjust ax law; the fiscal affairs reached such a deplorable condition it is easy to understand that the cost of repair to say nothing of the improvement, placed an unusual burden on the government and the taxes we are paying today are not only for current expenses but for the neglect of twenty-five years during which the revenue. failed to defray the expenses.

There was not only a deficit an-revenue, failed to defray the expenses.

There was not only a deficit annually in the State treasury but 31 out of the 120 counties in the state failed to collect enough revenue to meet their local expenses and had to be helped by the other thirty-nine counties which added to the burdens of the latter and retarded improvements everywhere.

Since the adoption of the new system of taxation in 1917 there has been a considerable increase in the revenue of the State, counties and cities but most of the additional income seems to have been consumed in current expenses and there is an imperaity eneed for more money for permanent improvements and which can only be raised by neite taxes and this seems to be the situation clsewhere.

Efroymson, chairman of the reorganization committee of the boar of directors of the Gas Company. Mr. Kirk has had a long experience in the utility field. He witrained as a youth to be a carpe ter, and for a time he was a rail way telegrapher. For thirteen years he was the Monon railway agent at Broad Ripple, and there he made a rame for himself in business circles. Mr. Kirk has been regarded as a successful utility manager—one who has executive ability to a high degree.

Mr. Kirk is a native of Burlington, Ky. He went to Roselawn, Indiana, of the rafter a few years in his father's carpenter shop, and there he dound employment in the Monon telegraph office. Later he was made telegrapher at Roselawn for the company, and after two years was transferred to Broad Ripple. For a time he was on the Broad Ripple town board. He left the railroad, and for a few months he was in business selling building material, and he established the first lumber yard at Eroad Ripple.

Mr. Kirk's entrance into the public millity field was unexpected. He had known John E. Casey, of the Indiana Trust Company, when he was with an express company. The Indiana Trust Company was appointed receiver in 1903 for the East Chicago water and light companies. At. Mr. Casey's suggestion, the Indiana Trust Company asked Mr. Kirk to go to East Chicago to take over the management of the company under the receivership. He accepted.

He succeeded in the management of the water company to such an extent that in the first year it showed a profit of $17,000. His experience with the light company, however, was not so fortunate. That company continued to show a small deficit each year, until Mr. Kirk one evening relieved the engineer, took his place, and in a few days placed new employes at work, after finding what was the trouble from the inside."

CRITICISM OF FARM PAPERS."

CRITICISM OF

"FARM PAPERS."

The Country Life Association has analyzed leading farm papers and finds that half their space is given to advertising, about one-sixth to technical articles on production, five percent' to marketing, six per cent to "fiction and nature articles," about 3 per cent to co-operation, only 1.5 per cent to co-operation, only 1.6 per cent to social subjects, and less than 2 per cent to education. Politics and citizenship occupy slight ly more than 2 per cent, but recreation, social subject religious and labor news call for less than 1 per cent each, and fail of any space in a number of these principal farms a number of these principal farms papers.

The great trouble with most of the "farm journals" and many local newspapers of this country is that they do not realize the extent to which the average farmer has broken away from old-time literature. With his auto, his radio, his daily market reports, his organizations and his necessities, he demands real solid substantial information on current events, state, national and laternational. He demands something more than generalates and "bunk." He may not have time to do much reading, but he does have time to do a heap of thinking—and that's what counts.

People who play the farmer for a "Rube" will wake up some day to discover that they have "monkeyed with a buzz-saw."

LEGION NOTES

One of the first contributions to the fund which the American Legion is raising to decorate the graves of overseas dead came from Hans Hun-dorf, a disabled Legion member tak-ing treatment for tuberculosis in a St. aul hospital. In spite of his dis-ability Hundorf has enrolled 13.5 members for his Legion post this year, of whom 108 are fellow pa-tients.

It cost an Indianapolis young man $50 for falsely asserting that he was a member of the American Legion. Judge Delbert Wilmeth, of the city court, a prominent Legion member, assessed the fine when it was proved that the youth had no right to wear a Lagion button.

When it was found that there were no funds available for the purchase of gynasium equipment for the high school at Denton, Mont, the local post of the Arrian Legion decided to contribute proceeds from a post motion picture show and dance to the school.

The question whether a city or town-gets its share of up-to-date improvements and advantages, depends largely on whether that community has efficient municipal administration. Movements for good government are often ridiculed as a kind of fad of highbrows and parlor politiciens, and people who claim to be "holier than thou."

On the contrary, good and efficient government is the foundation of progress. If a municipality wastes its money in one department, is is going to put its exenses up so high that the taxpayers will not stand for the improvements needed in some other departments. Such a town will have a kind of lop-sided protters, with fine advantages in certain directions, but great lacks in other respects.
